DEDICATION

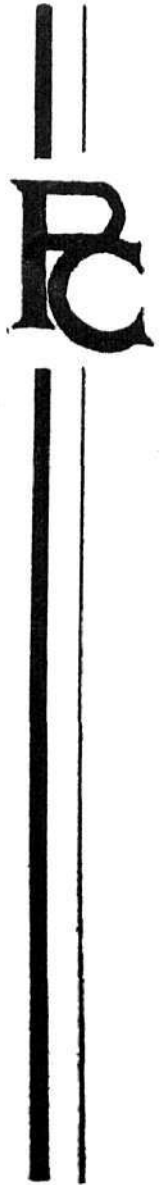

ALWAYS pleasant, always ready with a smile and a kind word, Mr. Taylor stands out in our minds as a true friend. His "Little Red Hen" stories have brought us entertainment; his basketball teams have brought us glory. But above all his spirit of kindness and goodwill has been an example and an inspiration to us all.

Therefore it is with all good wishes for the best of everything in the years to come that we of the Class of 1938 wish to dedicate this, our RECORD, to "The Duke."

HEADMASTER'S FOREWORD

SOME people we admire for brilliant intellect or fine physique others we like for less definable qualities; Similarly, each school class impresses the faculty with its individuality. The Class of 1938 has its share of brain and brawn, but its outstanding characteristic is its possession of those fine qualities which make and keep friends. The leadership of such boys ensures a fine spirit throughout the school. We shall miss the Class of 1938 next year, but we prophesy successful careers in college and in life after college.

—DR. RICHARD KNOWLES.

FOREWORD

TO YOU of the Class of 1938 we present the result of our labors—the CLASS RECORD. In it are recorded your teams, your organizations, and your achievements. We of the Staff hope that in the years to come you will look upon this RECORD with pride, and will gain from it many pleasant memories of Penn Charter. If that is the case, we shall have been amply repaid for our efforts.

To Colonel Lisle, our Class Adviser, we are deeply grateful for his help and guidance. To Mr. Wight, whose photographs adorn these pages, we extend our sincere thanks. And now we leave the RECORD in your hands, and through it bid you “Goodbye, and good luck.”

NON NOBIS SOLUM

Like wheat the Huns are scattered, before the Roman scythes;
And o'er the trampled tatters, the Roman eagles rise.
Yet 'midst the triumph of his troop, in grief, a soldier kneels
As Death directs his father's steps toward Elysian fields.
Yet, as the elder spirit fades, he whispers to his son
These words that, when enacted, have greater victories won.
"But grant me this, yea, swear to me, upon your Roman trust,
This task you'll do, for in it lies the doctrine of the just."
Then, as he pauses in the path that leads beyond life's pale,
He speaks those words that seem to spring from Him across the vale.
"Go carry to each pagan heart in every pagan home,
The sacred torch of learning, the flame of cultured Rome.
Know this to be the everlasting duty of the wise,
To cast the light of learning on their blind, untutored eyes."

—PHILIP HENRY WARD, III.

THE CLASS HISTORY

ONCE upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered, weak and weary, over many a quaint and curious volume, one of history I found. In this history were printed the records of a class known as the Class of 1938. Thinking perhaps this would prove of interest to some, I have arranged to reprint it here.

The History of this class begins in the year 1926. The original members were Dick Bauer, that noted Thespian of the Penn Charter Dramatic Club, Dick Brown, the Class Valedictorian, Russ Bement, Ted Denniston, the stroke man for the Penn Charter Crew, Bob Roberts, Charlie Webb, Jack Godfrey, the man who struggled so hard to find jokes for the Magazine, Bob Torrey, Phil Ward, that man who tried to bring "a wee mite of Scotland" to the school, Dave Bushnell, Bud McLaughlin, and Bob Brey.

The following year several more aspirants for knowledge joined the class. Oliver Crosby, the Class Prophet, Ball, the emulator of Pythagoras, Fred Clark, Jack Tunnell, the Fencing Captain, Bill Riter, and Pete Duryea.

In 1928, the class greeted Jack Staman, its future President, Dick Boenning, our expert basketball forward, Bayard Badenhausen, Bob Thompson, who performs nobly as the school hurdler in track, Francis Daniel Pastorius, V, the super-salesman of advertisements, and Evy Brown, who, as Squash Manager, was so often plagued with the question, "Any courts today, Evy?"

In the fourth year the class was augmented by the arrival of Clarence J. Buckman, the class politician, Bob Snellenburg, Henry Reifsnyder, and Terry Goodwin, that rugged individualist.

In 1930, the class roll increased only slightly. The two who joined the ranks were Henry Heymann, a loquacious gent whom the teachers loved just the same, and Le Mar Talbot, an accomplished pianist and the conductor of the Choral Clubs.

The history moves on to the year 1931. This year gave to the class Herb Sinn, the class's snappiest dresser, Sam Doak, a soccer player of note, and those two cronies, Bob Tyson and John Fowler.

The recruits for 1932 were more numerous. Those that appeared were Bill Martin, a colorful and, as Mr. Taylor would probably agree, temperamental basketball player, Ned Harrington, the Editor of the RECORD and Magazine, Harry Knox, reputed to be a mathematician, John Moeling, Ed Miller, with his high ideals, Bob Hawkins, Bill Brandt, and Frank Savage, those masters of the tall story, and Jack Slonaker, in charge of the class treasury.

The year 1933 brought to the Class of 1938 only one new member, Bob Taylor, of the Penn Charter Football Team.

The following year several more students joined the class, these being Fred Slack, Walt Steppacher, Fred Burk, that faithful Jackal of the Magazine editor, and the return of Pastorius, after a few years' absence.

The year 1935 heralds the appearance of Don Clark, a noted rhetorician, Will Sterrett, the diminutive manager of fencing and everything else, Doug Thomas, of Crew, and Adam Scheidt, the class chemist.

The year is 1936, the entrants: Jay Hartzell, the Baseball Team's able pitcher, Wallace Harding, Don Lewis, the fiery general of the school play, Andy Ziegler, Ed Fiedler, whose knowledge of current affairs was exhibited by his success in the Time tests, and Craig Eder, the vice-president of the Camera Club.

The last year has arrived. The final entrants were Jim Bacon, the Baseball Team's first baseman, Bill Andrews, George Foster, a good man on both the football and basketball teams, Irv Boeshore, Bob Hendricks, a threat to any who chose to oppose us in basketball, Jack Johnson, Dwight Hickerson, Frank Sharp, another basketball Player, Bill Lundelius, Captain of the Squash Team, Doug MacFadden, Vaughan Paynter, Bill Turner, Ed Vogt, and Bill McClenachan.

In addition to these are Wally Bostick, Dick Hey, Jack Schoenning, Ed Heisler, Dave Beers, Jim Thompson, Russ Buckley, Ned Conwell, Dave Lees, Dave Bishop, Jack Bower, and Dick Dale, who decided to remain for another year.

This completes the history of the Class of 1938. Only this remains to be said, that in the years to come the Class of 1938 will always be able to look back at its record with a justifiable pride and say that it has contributed a creditable chapter to the history of the Penn Charter School.

—HARRY E. KNOX, JR.

THE CLASS PROPHECY

YOU'VE all heard about time machines no doubt. They're supposed to push everything up into the twenty-fifth century or something. I finished building one the other day under the able direction of Larry Wight. It's quite a success and already I've made a comparatively small fortune with advance information on horse races, prize fights and six-day bicycle races. I have found, however, my greatest financial reward in the sale of college-board questions.

Well, last night, with the RECORD editor's breath hot on the back of my neck, I decided that the time had come to find out what was going to happen to the Class of '38. After putting on my dress clothes and washing behind my ears, I had Larry Wight tuck me snugly into the machine. Shutting his eyes tightly, he pushed the button. There followed a Buck Rogers noise of the most stupendous proportions, and after the smoke had cleared away, I found myself at the alumni banquet of the fiftieth reunion of the class of '38.

On my left was seated a most remarkable man. His head, of heroic proportions, was simonized to a sparkling lustre. It was impossible to tell where his forehead stopped and the top of his head began. He had a full, square, Russian beard that covered most of his face and lay in hoary spendor on a shirtfront of doubtful cleanliness across which a four-inch band of glistening scarlet satin ran diagonally.

"Is that you, Harry Knox?" I said.

"Yes, my good man. Can you be Oliver Crosby, by any chance? You certainly have fallen away in flesh."

As he bent over the champagne bucket, I caught a glimpse of my reflection in the top of his polished cranium. He was right. A shriveled dewlap fluttered in the yawning cavern of a collar four sizes too large and the dress coat hung limply on my shrunken chest. Certainly I had seen better days.

"Who is that over there playing the piano?" I asked.

"Oh, that's Talbot," said Harry. "This is a big night for him. For the last ten years he has been playing in a beer parlor at Front and Venango accompanied by slap-happy Webb on his dog box."

Just then, two men across the table from me extended their hands simultaneously. "You remember us, don't you? We are Badenhausen and Eder, of Badenhausen, Eder and Ginsburg, Attorneys-at-Law. If that blonde causes you any trouble, we can fix it." They disappeared behind a smoke screen laid down by their two-for-a-nickel cigars and I turned to look for the blonde, catching sight of the head waiter belaboring one of his subordinates with an aluminum tray. I recognized them immediately as Sterrett and Hartzell respectively. It was obvious that Sterrett was being as officious as ever.

In a distant corner six seedy-looking individuals were seated around a table playing stud poker. I tapped Harry Knox on the shoulder. "Who are those wretched-looking people?" I asked.

"Those are Sharp, Turner, Bishop, Buckley, Bement, and Riter. They work for the Philadelphia Department of Wastes."

"Oh, you mean they're street cleaners."

"Yes, they're considerably below the accepted social standards, but the Alumni Society sent them tickets as this is the fiftieth reunion of our class. They seem to be having a good time in their plebeian way."

There was a lull in the babble of conversation. I looked to the other end of the hall and noticed that the Penn Charter Glee Club was about to render a selection. I remarked to Harry that Maclary certainly seemed to have taken a turn for the worse.

"Why, that's not Maclary," he said. "Hadn't you heard? He burst a blood-vessel during a rehearsal two years ago. That's Fred Clark you see. He's making quite a name for himself these days. The long hair and the monocle certainly do get the ladies. He used to run a kiddies' hour on the radio, but Phil Ward put up too much competition with his Old Mother West Wind program sponsored by Jack Tunnell's Favorite Fertilizer."

"I suppose you know about the Conwells and the McClenachans. They were considered Chester's creme de la creme until recently when Inspector Bauer accidentally discovered that they had both amassed their fortunes in dope smuggling. This is the only thing that Bauer has ever done, but his modest manner impresses his superiors on the force."

Mr. Knox was interrupted by a commotion underneath our table, and a tuft of greasy, black hair appeared, followed by a pair of gleaming eyes. "Hello, Brandt, old fellow. There, there; don't chew the table leg," Harry said, patting him on the head.

"Woof, woof. I'm Tarzan!" the creature yelled.

"Don't worry about him," continued Harry, "He's just out for the day. Heymann is standing over there, keeping an eye on him. He's a guard out at Kirkbrides."

At this point a dignified old gentleman with mutton-chop whiskers stood up at the speakers' table. Harry whispered to me that it was Ed Miller (just as if I didn't know). After a few weighty remarks and some fumbling excuses for the absence of Jack Staman, President of Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, and the T. W. A., who was to have been the main speaker of the evening, he introduced Lefty Lees, coach of the Penn Charter football team. Lefty was helped to his feet by his assistant, Dael, who accompanies him on all his journeys to see that he doesn't get hurt. He looked on with a gloomy silence as Lefty muttered something about being sorry that the team only won three games last season. He also murmured something about hoping the team would get in there and fight, which trailed off into a sort of gurgle in his throat as he sat down exhausted.

Harry turned to me in disgust. "He certainly can murder the King's English," he said. "Say, that reminds me. Have you read in today's paper about the shooting at Brey's night spot? Beer baron Buckman was shot down by Captain Slonaker, a Federal Agent. Buckman's lieutenant, Vogt, and Killer Savage of a rival gang were both wounded, but escaped. With Buckman gone, Mugs MacFadden, king of the nation's gambling, is Public Enemy Number One. The class of '38 certainly has reached the top in every field of endeavor."

Hearing the sound of marching feet, I turned to behold a very military man entering through the large doorway at the rear of the hall. He was strutting stiffly in the midst of a number of ferocious-looking individuals all of whom were carrying sub-machine guns. At once everyone in the hall rose and commenced shouting, "Heil, Lewis!" In reply to my blank look, Knox whispered, "Yes, He's the Dictator now. That is his bodyguard. McLaughlin there is his head trigger man. He'll pick a fight with anybody. The rest of the boys—Bacon, Tyson, Harding, and Foster—are veritable walking arsenals. Of course, Foster hasn't hit anyone yet, but he amuses the Dictator, so he is retained in the guard. Those three sombre gentlemen bringing up the rear are Fiedler, Boeshore and Richard Brown. Fiedler, knowing so much about governments and things, gives the Dictator advice, which is invariably turned down; Boeshore is the silent partner; and Brown is the greasy foreign minister. He's a slippery customer all right. Why, only last week he had his crafty assistant, Goodwin, do away with Steppacher and Slack, because they wouldn't contribute all the capital of their joint trust companies to the fund for enlarging the army. He is continually ordering bombs from that master chemist Scheidt, of the Scheidt, Godfrey and Thompson Chemical Works. That's Bob Thomson. Jim is a sky-writer for Sinn's Superb Hair Oil and Shampoo."

Feeling a bit uneasy in the pit of my stomach after the hearty banquet which my corporeal being must have consumed before my astral form had arrived at this gala occasion, I found myself, by force of what must have become a strong habit, searching for something in my waistcoat pocket. My fingers encountered a small cardboard box, which I withdrew. There was a blue and gold label on the cover: LORD'S LILLIPUTIAN LOZENGES LTD. specific for CHILBLAINS, FALLING HAIR, and STOMACH DISTRESS. I swallowed a handful of these with a tumbler of water and was much relieved immediately.

Just when I was beginning to feel fine, some cordial soul dealt me a crushing blow on the back and, as I fell prostrate across the table, I heard Denniston's cheery voice. "Well, you old pole-cat, what are you doing these days?"

"Oh, nothing much," I said, straightening up with a gasp, "What's keeping you in cigar money?"

"I'm working as a diver for the Hendricks and Widenmeyer Marine Salvage Company. I've been working at the bottom of the East River for the last two months salvaging electric light bulbs out of Hey's riverside apartment skyscraper. It was quite a job too, for as you probably remember, the building fell straight across the river and the divers had to be careful not to get caught in the propellers of passing ferry boats. You know, It's a funny thing about Hey's buildings. They look wonderful, but they never seem to stand up. I was just reading the other day that the six-million-dollar Paris Casino he designed for Don Clark has caved in."

Denniston was just about to leave when I caught him by the coat. "What's happened to your old pal, Lundelius?" I asked. "I've wondered a lot about him."

"As you no doubt know, Bill has been just about tops in the Metropolitan Opera these last few years with his zippy renditions of Wagner and Verdi. Well, the funniest thing just happened. Last week, he took a few treatments at the osteopathic establishment of Jack Bower (the old quack). Andrews and Paynter, who are stooging for the unscrupulous Bower, were supposed to give him a facial and eyebrow massage, but they must have used the wrong technique, because what they did changed good old Bill from a tenor to a basso profundo. Was the Opera Company mad!

"By the by, have you heard anything about the inter-stellar rocket that Ev Brown and Bob Torrey fired off at Little Rock, Arkansas, this afternoon? I hear that those two mad scientists have put Ball, Reifsnnyder and Martin on board for the purpose of exploring the other side of the moon. It seems to me an ideal combination. Reifsnnyder will do the photography, Ball will take care of navigation and the more mathematical aspects of the trip and it is hoped that Martin will keep the other two from worrying about the possibility of a crash."

Denniston said good-by and expressed the hope that I would come to dine with him some time at Pa and Ma Bushnell's Cozy Boarding House when he was through working in New York. I felt that this would probably be a most unfortunate gastronomic adventure, but I promised to come.

At this point I noticed a slight commotion at the other end of the room. A wheezy old gentleman, inflamed by the frantic dissonances of the piano that Talbot had been mercilessly pounding all this time, rose to his feet with a quavering yell and began to do a savage dance that bore certain resemblances to the "buck and wing." I heard somebody shout, "Why, that's Fowler, the old Nijunsky!"

"Yippee!" shouted Mr. Fowler, as he jumped over a table and fell sprawling on the floor. Several of his friends sprinkled champagne on him, but he failed to rise. Indeed, his noble spirit had left the world forever. It was a sad occasion for all of us.

"At least," said Harry Knox, wiping a tear from the corner of his eye, "At least Thomas and Roberts are here."

"What difference does that make?" I asked.

"They are pall-bearers for the Hickerson Funeral Parlors and their presence is almost as ominous as that of the Twa Corbies. They were johnny-on-the-spot when Ace Snellenburg went through the rail with Two-Wheels Hawkins at Johnson's Langhorne track, and they were also present when Boenning, the tooth-brush magnate, hurled the too-insistent advertising salesman, Francis Daniel Pastorius, from the twenty-second floor of his Broad Street office building."

Just then who should come breezing in but Harrington, ace reporter of the Philadelphia Daily News, and with him his two photographers, Burk and Doak carrying great armfuls of photographic apparatus. "Hello, hello!" he shouted, pumping my hand vigorously. "Just back from Washington. Senator Duryea has just relieved Senator Taylor and it looks as though their filibuster was going to last another week. Be back in a flash. I've got to get an interview from Lewis and see that my boys get a couple of good pictures."

Burk came hurrying up and, having erected his battered old camera, disappeared under the black cloth. Doak held his ancient flashlight powder bracket in readiness.

"Look at the birdie!" came Burk's voice from under the black cloth.

"Hey! Keep that thing away from me!" shouted Harry Knox as Doak waved the bracket perilously close. But it was too late. There was a blinding flash of light and Harry's beautiful beard caught on fire. It burned rapidly, throwing off tremendous green sparks that sailed off into the dense clouds of smoke that were filling the entire hall like a shower of meteorites. The very floor seemed to tremble in the roaring conflagration which had so suddenly devoured the entire scene.

Gradually this chaos assumed definite shape. Larry Wight was mopping my sweating brow with a corner of his green smock while anxiously watching the wildly oscillating dials on the control panel of our time machine. "Well, did you find out what you wanted?" he inquired at last.

"Yes, I got all the material I needed, but I'm glad I won't have to go through it again until 1988."

—OLIVER S. CROSBY.

FAREWELL ASSEMBLY SPEECH

WE OF the class of '38 have come to the crossroads where we are leaving behind splendid early years of growth and development and are ready to venture forth into wider spheres of activity. We find ourselves in the position of Janus, the two-faced god of the Romans, one looking backward into the past, the other forward into the future.

Looking backward, we are deeply conscious that possibly we have not at all times made the most of the splendid opportunities afforded us here, but we are exceedingly grateful for the patience and forbearance of our instructors. We are looking forward eagerly and enthusiastically to what the future may hold for us in enlarged opportunities. We look back through the pleasant years at Penn Charter with great satisfaction and happiness and anxiously forward with hope and anticipation.

Our years here together have been made pleasant by happy companionship, profitable by thought-provoking lessons; they have been enriched by innumerable experiences, enlightened by illuminating lectures, enobled by fine patterns in character building. For all these advantages we can never cease to be grateful to the splendid corps of men on the faculty who have steadfastly encouraged us to our best efforts.

We gather here today for the last time as members of the student body. In a few days we shall have finished our assignments as the senior class and our work here is over. We have enjoyed being here together. We have often participated shoulder to shoulder in athletics for our own fun and for the glory of the school; we have shared good times with the Glee Club, at the Dances, and in the different clubs and societies, but now the time has come for separation, each one going his own way. Some of us will enter the marts of trade, some industry, some business, some will go on for further study in special schools, some to college, but we shall always remain united in bonds of friendship and loyalty to our school.

We are like the spokes of a great wheel, cemented into this hub or center, which is our school. We go out, radiating in every direction, each one proceeding on his individual way to the rim of the future. We shall always remain so connected that if any spoke be bent or broken, it will be felt by the whole group, for we shall be bound together by the encircling tire which will hold us together in unity, and as long as we live, we shall remember that we are the Class of '38 at Penn Charter.

To you of the Class of '39 we leave the responsibility of upholding the name of Penn Charter, its traditions, precepts, and obligations. We hope that our example has been worthy of emulation and that you will continue to adhere to the fundamental principles and ideals of the school.

We sincerely hope that you will enjoy your Senior year as much as we shall cherish the memories of ours, and we leave you with full confidence that you will carry on.

It is, therefore, with "A feeling of sadness and longing" that we have reached our Omega, and say to you "Aloha," Welcome and Farewell.

—JOHN F. CLARK.

VALEDICTORY

IT HAS been said, "Thought is deeper than all speech, feeling deeper than all thought." Particularly is this true at such a time as this, when we are experiencing many different feelings, which seem to crowd in upon us. We are torn between happiness and sadness, between affection for the old and anticipation of the new. Certain emotions, however, stand out in our minds at this time.

We are experiencing, first of all, a feeling of regret at parting from the ties which have bound us to the school for so many years. Then, too, we have a sense of pleasure which comes as a result of the friendships which we have made, and we think back fondly to the activities in which we have participated. Also, we feel a wave of gratefulness toward those who have guided our footsteps thus far along the path of life. And lastly we feel a sense of anticipation, of eagerness, and of uncertainty toward the things to come, things for which Penn Charter has endeavored to prepare us.

Our feeling of regret is occasioned by the thought that we leave teams and organizations of which we have been a part, classes where we strove to gain knowledge and inspiration, and friends whose comradeship we will never cease to value. Naturally these associations will remain with us in the years to come. Nevertheless, we must not forget our other friends, the teachers whose helping hands have ever been at work to guide us in the right direction. It is our sincere hope that the trust which they have placed in us will be fulfilled.

We often used to wonder at the sadness which students have experienced at graduation, but now it is made plain to us. Familiar sights about school which arouse memories of incidents long past are strong factors in stirring the emotions. The thought of what the future holds in store for us, however, is an equally strong force, for though we look back with affection, we cannot help but look forward with interest.

Today we are profoundly impressed by the fact that we have not come to an end, but to a beginning. Life may be compared to a long corridor, divided by many doors. In walking down the corridor the door which we close behind us really opens a new expanse ahead. Thus we see that in graduating we have arrived at a true Commencement. We are commencing a new life which will be vastly different from that to which we have become accustomed. There will be pleasures and disillusionment, obstacles and achievements. It is then that our training at Penn Charter will be put to the test, and if, as it is hoped, we stand up creditably, much thanks must be given to the school for the part which it has played in the shaping of our characters.

The future, as always, is uncertain. Some of us will enter colleges and universities throughout the country. Some will enter business, there to seek success. Others will travel far from home. But no matter what we do, or where we go, the hold which Penn Charter has upon our hearts will be always with us.

Therefore, it is with understandable emotion that we view the open door before us, the door which leads to later life. The time is at hand when we must say goodbye. But goodbye is such a harsh word! Much better it would be to phrase our parting in the words of the Roman poet, Catullus, who wrote, "Frater, Ave Atque Vale,"—"Brother, Hail and Farewell."

THE enrollment of this year's Literary Society included twenty-five members from the classes of Upper-Prima, Prima, and Secunda. As usual, the type of meeting was informal and because of this, many heated discussions arose on topics ranging from the Divine Comedy to the works of Stephen Leacock. Everyone took part in the programs, whether it was to contribute to the general discussion or to give a talk. The exchange of thought in pleasant company was found to be stimulating and uplifting. This year the Lit Dance was a great success and we were sorry when the annual banquet brought to a close such an interesting and profitable season.

WHEREVER we go, we hear what an exceptionally fine play the Penn Charter Dramatic Club put on this year. Indeed, it is a fitting reward to Dr. Strong for the long, tedious hours he spent in putting on The Queen's Husband, a three-act comedy by Robert Emmet Sherwood. The boys did so well in their respective parts that the play has been pronounced by many to be far above amateur standards. The fine work done by Bob McAdoo in the part of the weak, ineffectual king will be long remembered. In our mind's eye we shall always see Charlie Tindle as the tall, severe, red-lipped queen stalking the stage and telling His Majesty how much he needs a shave. Dick Bauer, the handsome hero, and Jack Dale, the comely heroine, will forever rise in our memory as they looked in that last fervent embrace that brought down the house. The suave Dick Brown and the brusque Don Lewis will forever haunt us as the diabolical villains whose parts they did so well, and the rest of the cast will always paint a colorful background for our thoughts.

Congratulations, members of the play cast! Next year's club will have a hard time trying to equal your record.

AS ALWAYS, the Musical Clubs had a very successful season. The program which Mr. Maclary picked was excellent in quality and was carried out extremely well by the boys. We were fortunate this year in having an able and diligent student leader in W. LeMar Talbot, Jr., who led the Choral and Instrumental Clubs. This was a very difficult job, and LeMar deserves a great deal of credit for handling it the way he did. We cannot begin to show our gratitude to Mr. Charles T. Maclary and Mr. Josef Chudnowsky, our two capable directors, and to our accompanist, Mr. D. I. Fulton. Without them the clubs could never have achieved the high standing for which they are noted.

The soloists this year also did a fine piece of work. LeMar Talbot and Frederick W. Clark, two very capable pianists were given the opportunity to play over the radio, showing another of the advantages which the club offers to its conscientious members. Richard D. Bauer, the vocal soloist, was also very good and is to be complimented.

Dr. Clinton A. Strong and Mr. Wilburt R. Walters are to be thanked and congratulated for putting over a fine social season.

The school takes this opportunity to thank the Choral Club, the Instrumental Club, and the A Cappella Chorus, for the way in which they have brought many compliments back to Penn Charter.

THE Science Club, since its organization in 1888 by Professor A. D. Gray, has made it its duty to acquaint those who do not have time for Physics or Chemistry in their courses with interesting phases of science, and to further the knowledge of those who take scientific subjects. The candidates for admission are required to make a speech before the club and to answer any questions on their topic that may puzzle the members. There are always several interesting trips made; this year they visited the Philadelphia Salt Works and the Midvale Steel Company.

The Club contributed to the success of the Annual Entertainment by producing among other things, several loud explosions, demonstrating the folly of searching for gas leaks with a match. The demonstration was ably carried out by demonstrators Harry Knox, Everett Brown, and Bob Torrey.

IN PENN CHARTER we are fortunate to have many Clubs and Societies. Some have elected members, while others may be joined by anyone with an interest in the activities of the club. The Camera Club is in the latter category. Originally the Camera Club was a part of the Science Club, founded by A. D. Gray, but as the interest in Photography grew among its members and different fellows of the school, they separated. The Camera Club today has its own officers, and the dues are used to purchase chemicals and materials for the dark room. This year, under the enthusiastic guidance of Mr. Wight, the Club has had several meetings at the school at night. At these meetings the members told others about the various phases of the hobby in which they were particularly interested. Some accompanied their discussions with blackboard diagrams, while others brought actual prints to show to the club.

With the co-operation of the Art Department, the Camera Club was able to hold an exhibition in the Solarium. It was interesting to note the high quality of perfection the amateurs reached. Many could easily be compared with the pictures of men years their senior.

As the year 1938 draws to a close, and the interest in Photography mounts, it is our sincere hope that the Camera Club may be of greater service to the school in years to come.

IN THE beginning of the year, a small group consisting of Dr. Knowles, Mr. MacCormick, Mr. Bartlett and the captains of all the major teams met in Dr. Knowles' office at the request of Mr. Bartlett. He explained to us the advisability of having a Varsity Club at Penn Charter. Membership was to consist of all boys who had won their major P. C.s, and the captains of all the minor sports. The purpose of the club was to promote school spirit and to make the student body realize what it means to win a letter. With that little group of leaders as a nucleus, the club has grown more rapidly and steadily than any organization in the school. For the first year of its existence the Varsity Club has certainly made its mark. All the affairs of this organization were colorful. Prominent athletes spoke at the banquet. People from all Philadelphia came to the Varsity Club dance, which was, incidentally, considered the biggest dance of the year, and all in all, the club put on such an elaborate program that the younger fellows strove twice as hard to win their letter and belong to it. Indeed, Mr. Bartlett deserves a great deal of thanks for founding an organization that has done so much in the way of fostering school spirit and promoting all 'round fellowship.

THE ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT

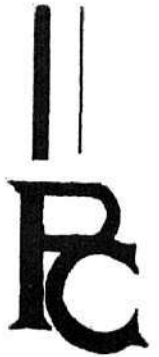

ON Friday evening February 25th, before an audience of almost a thousand people, the school presented its forty-ninth annual entertainment in the gymnasium. The program lasted approximately two and a half hours and was a shining example of the achievements of the student body in music, science, public speaking, and gymnastics. The program opened with the Instrumental Club, ably directed by Mr. Josef Chudnowsky, presenting three numbers: "Gavotte" from Mignon by Thomas, "Polka Pizzicato" by Strauss, and lastly the "Coronation March" by Meyerbeer. Continuing the program, the Senior Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Maclary, gave three selections which included De Leone's "The Drums," a 17th century German melody, "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones," and "When I Go Out of Doors," from Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta Patience. Mr. David I. Fulton, Jr., was accompanist.

The entertainment then shifted to a different vein, and the A. D. Gray Science Club presented a series of experiments explained by Harry Knox and demonstrated by Bob Torrey and Everett Brown. Among the experiments which attracted special attention were those dealing with "cold fire," the process of dyeing cloth, the reaction between hydrogen and acetylene, and invisible ink. The demonstration was concluded by spraying a board with "magic" paint which spelt out a message.

Next heard was the Junior Hundred Chorus, a body of the younger students, led by Mr. Maclary. Two numbers were heard: "Whither" by Schubert, and "The Sun Worshippers," an old Indian melody.

The stage was then cleared for the annual prize debate. The subject was, Resolved: that industrial labor unions are preferable to craft labor unions. The affirmative consisted of David Matlack, '40, John F. Clark, '38, and Charles H. Long, '40, while the negative was upheld by George Prince, '39, Dwight Hickerson, '38, and John Furner, '39. Chairman Richard Brown introduced the speakers. The judges awarded their decision to the negative side, and George Prince, Dwight Hickerson, and John Clark were selected as the three best debaters of the evening to compose the first debating team for the remainder of the year. George Prince was awarded the Frederick B. Pritchett-Emanuel R. Wilson Memorial Prize Cup for the best debate of the evening.

The Junior Hundred Chorus next gave two more selections: "The Little Dustman" by Brahms and "All Day on the Prairie," a cowboy song. This was followed by the middle school gymnasium team tumbling contest which was won by the Yellows by a score of 95.5 to 86.

PENN CHARTER started its 1937 Football Season with a light, but grim and determined group of fellows who were going to win for Old Penn Charter, as well as for their new coach Franny Murray.

The first three games, however, were lost to teams much heavier who came from Lower Merion, Hill School and Valley Forge. On Alumni Day, amid blowing flags, the team succeeded in scoring a touchdown in the third quarter to defeat Episcopal, 7 to 0. The following week, Chestnut Hill was defeated by a score of 25 to 0. In the latter game, Captain Lees and George Foster made two brilliant runs for touchdowns, the former running forty-five yards, and the latter running ninety yards, with the help of the splendid interference furnished by John Moeling.

The remainder of the season was unsuccessful, as the team lost to Friends Central, Germantown Academy, and Haverford School.

Despite the rather poor season, credit must be given to Dave Lees who did a fine job as captain, doing much to keep up the spirit of the team. Neither should the two managers be forgotten, because when they saw the poor condition the team was in as a result of injuries, they offered their services and played in the Haverford game. Franny Murray, the coach, also deserves credit for the work he did in training the fellows, which should show in future teams at Penn Charter.

THE 1937 Soccer team, after a hard season, ended by having won five of its ten games. The first game was lost to Olney High School, 1 to 2, but after that the team started on a winning streak, defeating Roxborough, 6 to 0, Episcopal, 2 to 0, and finally our rival Germantown Friends, 2 to 1. Friends' Select then surprised the team by defeating them 1 to 0, after a long and hard fought game. The following week our team defeated Friends' Central, 5 to 1, on our opponent's field.

The hopes of another winning streak were interrupted the following week by Lower Merion, when the team, playing on strange grounds, lost, 1 to 2, but at the end of the same week the team in a return match again defeated Roxborough High but this time by a score of 2 to 1. The last two games were against Hill School and Haverford. The first of these two was declared a 1 to 1 deadlock after an extra period was played, but the last game was a rather unfitting climax to the season, as Haverford was the victor by a score of 1 to 5.

THE 1937-38 Basketball Season was an excellent one for Penn Charter. From last year's team were left four excellent players, Martin, Boenning, Heisler and Bower. With this material and some new additions in the persons of Foster, Bacon, Sharp and Hendricks, the team completed its season winning seventeen games and losing only one—to Friends' Central.

Our team romped over other teams offered by Valley Forge, Taylor School, Haverford and Montgomery School; the score of the latter must be mentioned, it being 43 to 13. There were several close games, such as those games with Overbrook High School which ended with a score of 28 to 27; the University of Pennsylvania; and last but not least, the Haverford School game. This game was played at Haverford. Trailing at the half, 17 to 19, and 19 to 21 with but seconds to play, Boenning recovered the ball off of the Haverford backboard, and threw a long pass to Sharp who made the tying goal; and in the last two or three seconds Boenning sank a foul shot which won the game, 22 to 21.

Both Bill Martin and Dick Boenning deserve much credit for their excellent playing. Boenning's accuracy in foul shooting helped in several games, and because of this he was awarded the William Wood Foul Shooting Trophy, having made a total of forty-two fouls.

A summary of the year in Basketball would not be complete if a word or two was not put in about "Duke" Taylor's excellent coaching, but it is needless to say that everybody appreciates the splendid job he is doing. We wish him the best of success with all future basketball teams.

THE Baseball team had a rather successful season, finishing in a second place tie with Haverford School. Taking the whole season into consideration, the team won five, lost two, and tied one, the latter being with Girard College, and the score 3 to 3. This is the third consecutive year that our team has tied Girard College.

The second game of the year was supposed to be played with Hill School, but a cold rainy day changed the plan. The following week, however, the Interacademic Baseball season opened, and our first game was played with Episcopal at their field. In the early innings we made a great lead for ourselves, although in the last inning Episcopal tried to snatch the victory from our hands by an increased number of runs. The final score, however, was 11 to 9. The following week, on our own field, Friends' Central defeated the team in a lifeless ball game by a score of 1 to 6.

After the unfortunate game with Friends' Central, the team started on a winning streak which lasted until the closing game with Germantown Academy. Valley Forge was defeated, 8 to 1, at School Lane; Montgomery was decisively beaten, 18 to 1, at Wynnewood; Chestnut Hill met the same fate, going down to a 4 to 3 defeat at the hands of Penn Charter; and our bitter rival, Haverford School, was defeated in the most exciting ball game of the season, 7 to 3. The last game was with the Germantown Academy team on our field. Although we kept a two-run lead in the first five innings, they were able to score six runs in the last two to defeat us finally, 7 to 3.

It is only proper that a word should be inserted concerning the "silent partner" of the baseball team, Mr. Gibson. He has done an excellent job in coaching the pitchers, and giving them some helpful bits of advice. We all hope he will continue to do so.

ONCE again, through the efforts of our canny coach, Dr. Strong, the tennis teams defeated their opponents in both the Interacademic and Interscholastic Leagues. In the former, our captain, Ed Heisler was undefeated at second singles. Victor Seixas, at first singles, Bill Turner at third singles and Charles Heisler at fourth singles, also were undefeated. The doubles men were Bob Tyson, Phil Ward, Jack Davis, Bob Rankin, Bill Riter, Fred Clark, Ted Rhoads and John Miller, who all played in at least one league match. In a final play-off, Rankin and Davis were chosen as official second doubles, while Ward and Tyson filled the number one post. It is worthy of mention that for the twelfth straight year Penn Charter has annexed the Interacademic Title with a score of 22 to 2.

The Interscholastic League was by far the more difficult of the two, for both West Philly and Simon Gratz were considered to have better teams than Penn Charter. In spite of the opposition, however, the latter were victorious with a score of forty-one games won to four lost. Seixas at first singles and Tyson and Schaefer, doubles, were undefeated. C. Heisler, number two man, lost two matches. Bill Lundelius, number three man, and Scott, number four man came through losing only one match apiece. Captain-Elect George Scott's well-time victory in the West Philly match deserves special mention for it was through his efforts that Penn Charter won three to two.

ALTHOUGH we had a strong team this year at Penn Charter, we were unable to conquer the powerful Haverford team, and consequently finished in second place in the Philadelphia and Suburban Junior Squash Racquets League. Our team was composed of Lundelius, the captain, Lord, Heisler, Sargent, Turner, and Fred Clark. The only letter man from last year was Ted Heisler, whom we congratulate, for while he won all but three of his matches, he was busy with basketball most of the time. Lord was our most steady player, losing only twice by very slight margins in the fifth games to Brinton of Princeton, and Parker of Haverford.

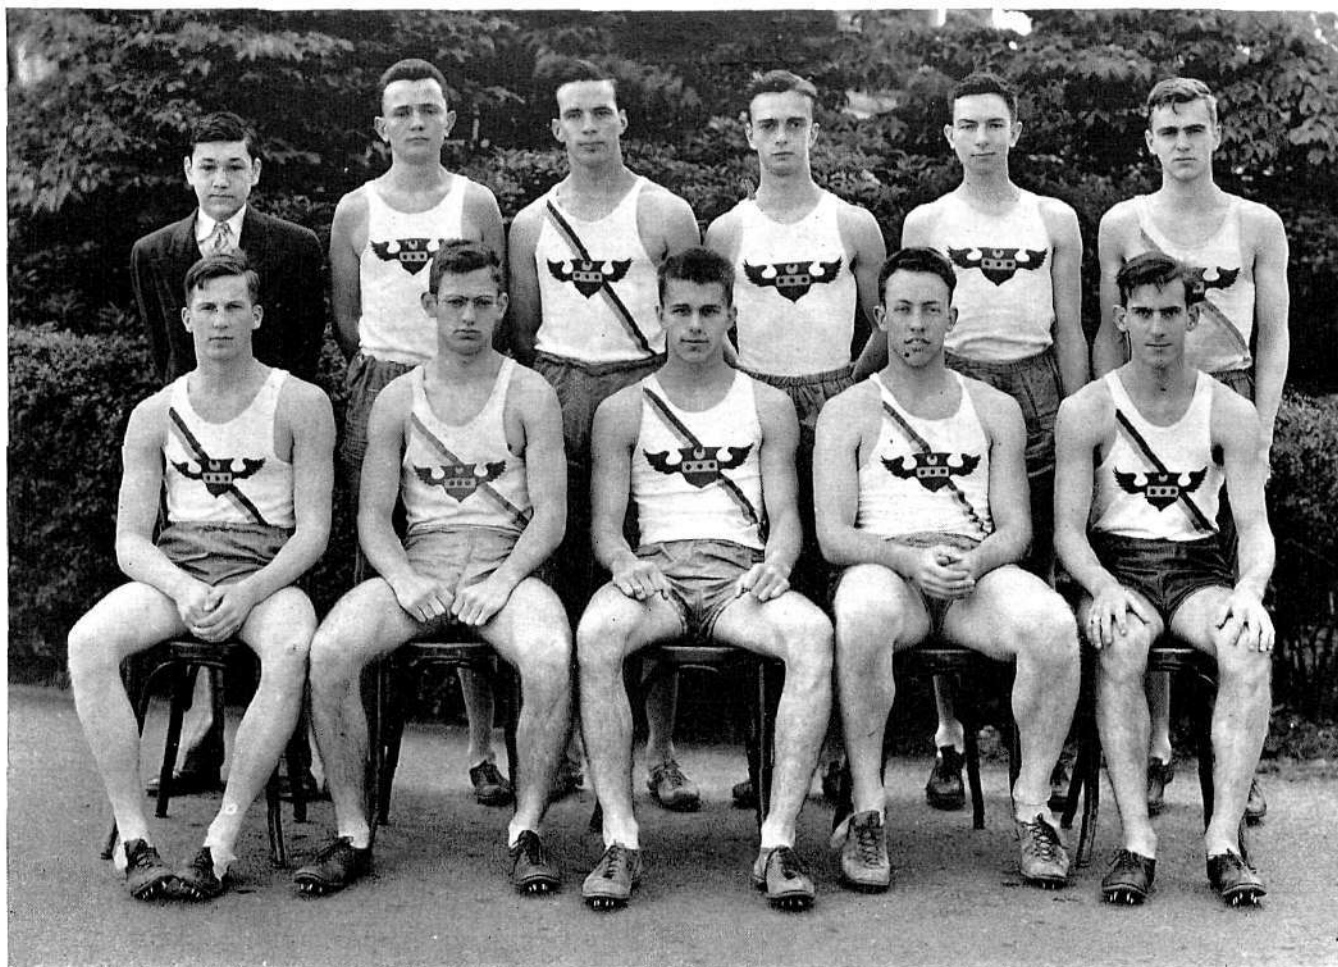

Our record this year shows forty-six wins to fourteen defeats in the league matches, with seven more defeats to Princeton.

The winner of our annual Intra-mural Squash tournament was Bill Lundelius who defeated Charlie Lord in the Finals.

MR. L. N. WIGHT

THE 1938 Track Season opened under the leadership of Captain Jack Staman and the able coaching of Mr. Wight, with a big gap left by last year's winners, Donaldson, Hershey, Scott, and West. In the early part of the season we had one fault—being part of the reason why we did not get more points—that there were not enough entries in the different events, to represent Penn Charter.

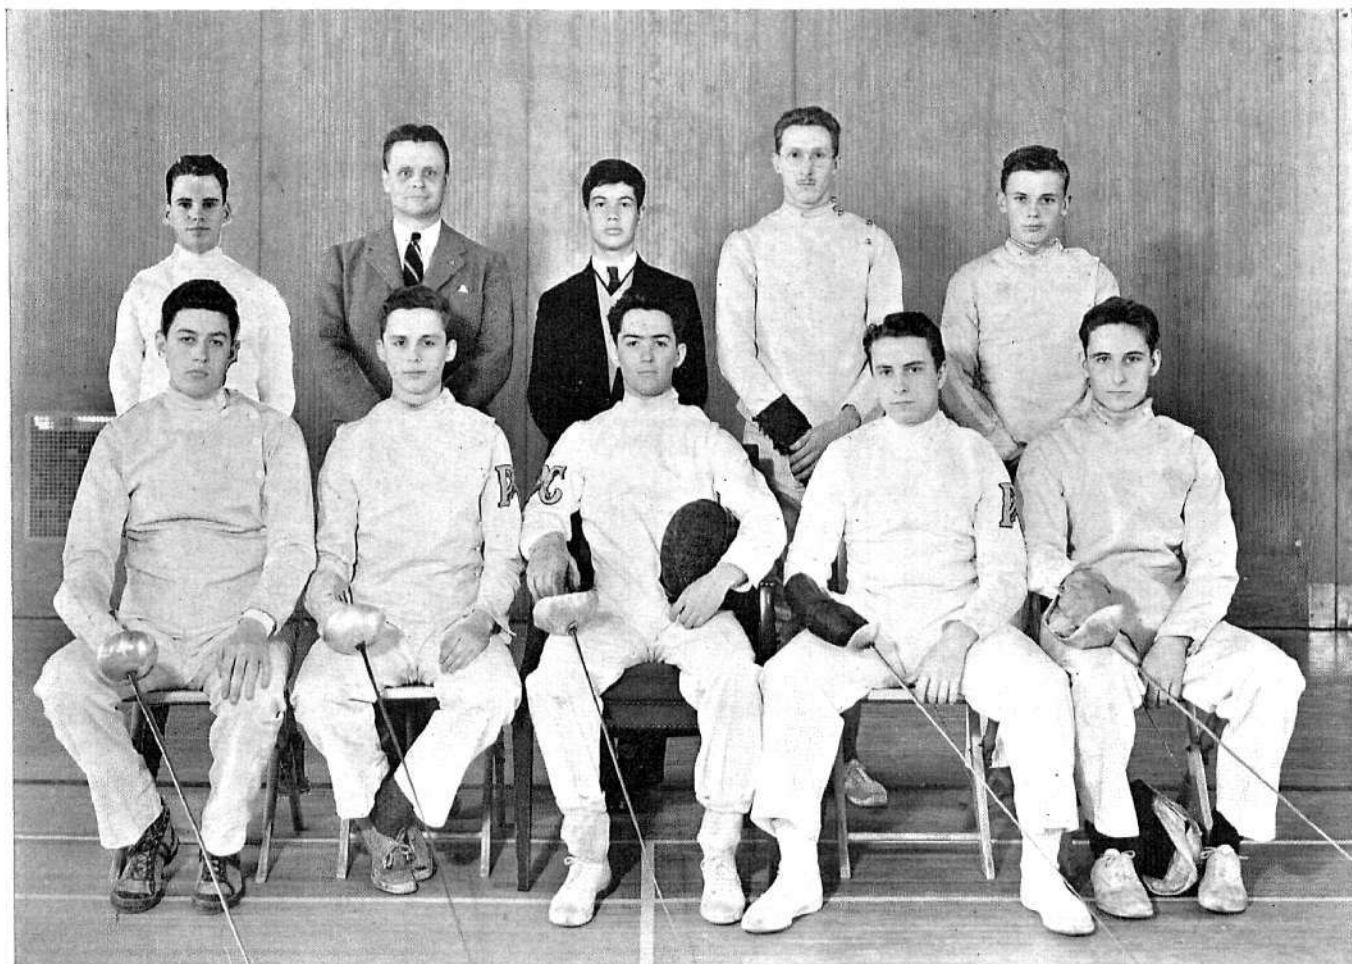

The first meet was a practice meet with Germantown High School, which we lost. In later meets we were also defeated by West Catholic High School and Lansdale High School. Then, after a plea by Mr. Wight, we had more entries in our events, and won our first meet, against Haverford College Fresh, 65 $\frac{1}{3}$ to 50 $\frac{2}{3}$. The following week we defeated Girard College, but were defeated by Haverford School and Episcopal Academy in the Interacademic Track Meets.

At the Interacs, our only winner was Jack Staman, who consistently took first place in the pole vault all season, and who made a total of seventy-two points for the entire season. As a whole, the team took third place, Haverford School winning by a score of 56 $\frac{1}{2}$ to Episcopal's 46 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Penn Charter's 30.

The outstanding men of the year were Staman, Slonaker, McCown, Scott, Bob Thompson, and Manager Bob Brey, who made a number of points in the pole vault. Slonaker was a good man in the shot put, McCown in the 100-yard dash, Scott in the high jump, Thompson in the hurdles.

Brandt, McClenachan, McAdoo, and Hartzell made up the Penn Relay Team, while Thomspen, Staman, Slonaker and Brandt were the members of the I. A. A. Hurdle Team, which did not fare so well.

THIS year's Fencing Team had a most successful season, winning all of their scholastic meets. The season opened with a practice meet with Haverford College Second Team, who were defeated by a score of 14 to 13. The following Tuesday the Foil Team journeyed over to Lower Merion Junior High, and defeated them by a score of 6 to 3. The first real meet was held at Penn Charter against Radnor High School. The P. C. team defeated them, but it was a little too close for comfort. The next meet was held with the Haverford College Junior Varsity, and this meet our team also won. They likewise defeated Valley Forge.

The winning streak was interrupted, however, when the team went down to Annapolis, where they met defeat 13 to 14, after a very hard, exciting, and most interesting meet. It was in this meet that Pastorius, the third Epee man, did the outstanding fencing of the year, by winning his three bouts 3 to 0. The team then lost to the University of Pennsylvania and Princeton, but the college teams were very much more experienced. The team then started on another winning streak and continued so throughout the rest of the fencing season, defeating Radnor High and Valley Forge in the return Meets, and climaxing the season by a very decisive victory over Lehigh University, 16 to 1.

THE Golf Team played an interesting, though abbreviated schedule, winning one match and losing four. Conflicts with other sports caused considerable difficulty, yet the team gave a good account of itself in each match. We were defeated by Swarthmore Fresh, Penn Fresh, Haverford School, and Hill School, and defeated Roxborough High. In the annual Interscholastics, the team's average medal score was about eighty-seven, in spite of the fact that two regulars were unable to compete.

Our thanks are again due to the authorities of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club, who very generously permitted us to use their course for our home matches.

MR. THOMAS CLARK

THIS year was the second season for a crew at Penn Charter. With the loss of only three men of last years' Championship Crew, the prospects for this year were of the best. The actual results of the races, however, did not come up to our expectations, as we had many races with colleges and senior crews, which had a decided advantage over our own. In no race was the crew defeated badly.

The first race of the year was held at Middletown, Delaware, with Saint Andrews, and Germantown Academy. Our crew came in second, a length behind Saint Andrews. The crew lost to Penn Fresh second heavy-weight crew by three feet on the second of May. On the twelfth our crew raced the Penn Fresh one-hundred-fifty pound crew, and lost by a length, and on the following Tuesday, again lost, this time by a length and a half.

Saturday, the twenty-first of May, the Interacademic Crew race was held. Haverford won the race by defeating the P. C. Crew by a length and a half. On the same day, the second Crew won the Schoolboy Crew Race of Philadelphia by two lengths, defeating Haverford School Second Crew, and the Roman Catholic High School. The Undine Crew defeated the Blue and Gold Crew on the twenty-fifth of May by a length. At the Schoolboy races at Princeton on the twenty-eighth, the finish was so close that it was some time before the correct order was known. Finally it was announced that Haverford School had won the race, and that the West Catholic School had come in second, McDonough School third, and the Penn Charter Crew last.

MR. HENRY BARTLETT

WRESTLING, a new sport at Penn Charter, has made a great name for itself. The team was an outgrowth of an afternoon body-building class organized by Mr. Bartlett. Wrestling was a part of this class. Finally, there was a wrestling tournament held for boys of all weights. A round-robin was held, until only two were left in each class. These boys then wrestled for the championship in the first public exhibition, in the large gymnasium. At that time Ashman ('40) was declared 100-pound champion; Tucker Myers ('40) 125-pound champion; Malley ('41) 135-pound champion; and Don Clark, heavy-weight champion.

Episcopal also inaugurated wrestling as a school sport this year, so the two schools wrestled with each other twice, one meet on each floor. Penn Charter won the first of these matches by a score of 32 to 27. It was a close meet, but the second was much more decisive, being 32 to 13 in favor of Penn Charter.

Mr. Bartlett has done an excellent bit of work, having the interest and co-operation of every one of the thirty-five boys who tried out for the team, and it was this interest that so greatly helped in the year's success.

THE GYM TEAMS

THE GYMNASIUM EXHIBITION

THE Senior Gym Team made its public appearance Friday night, March fourth, on the same night that the Varsity played the Alumni Basketball Team. The first event in the exhibition was the bar shoot, in which there were fourteen competitors. The former school record of eight feet, one and one-quarter inches was tied by three of the contestants, Bob Brey, Russell Bement and Ted Denniston. Jack Staman, Captain of the Bar Shoot Team, not only tied this former school record but set a new school record of eight feet, two inches. Incidentally this is the second record that Jack holds, he having won the Rope Climb last year, by climbing the rope in four and six-tenths seconds.

The second part of the exhibition was the parallel bars. This was a very interesting and graceful spectacle, and by the judge's decision, John Price of Secunda was awarded the cup, with Ted Denniston, Captain of the Parallel Bar team, a very close second.

The Middle School Gym Team then showed its prowess in the art of tumbling. The entire group was very good, but John McCurdy of the Yellows was awarded the cup for the best form. Williams of Sexta won the Junior tumbling award.

THE CHEERLEADERS

Rhoads, E. Heisler, Bauer, J. Clark, R. Brown, Craig.

COLOR DAY

WEDNESDAY, May 11th, the forty-fifth annual Color Contest was held on the varsity field. Again, although they had to fight hard for it, the Yellows were victorious for the third consecutive year, and won for the twenty-eighth time since the beginning of these contests.

The two teams entered the field with the Yellows leading the contest, as a result of the Gymnasium contests, 64 to 60. The first event, a "get-and-get-there," was won easily by the Yellows, but the next five events were easily won by the Blues and included the Orange Rush, Basketball Relay, Fruit Gathering, Shuttle Relay, and Football Relay. This put the Blues ahead, by a score of 69 to 65. The Yellows of Quarta and Prima won their events, however, Dodge Ball and Pass Back, respectively, and tied the score.

After the Intermission, the Blues again started what was hoped would be a good comeback and win the contest. But, after the Blues had won the Rope Rush and Wand Jumping Relay, the Yellows made a spurt, which gained the contest for them, and won the Upper Prima Event of Carrying the Colors, and the Quarta and Quinta Sack Race. At this point, the score was tied at 73 to 73, the entire contest depending on the Final Pull. This was one long and determined pull on the part of the Blues, but after almost a record time for working hard and getting nowhere, the Yellows were victorious, winning by 73 to 75.

THE CLASS CENSUS

OUR pet W. P. A. (worker?) has just come in with the returns for the Census he has been taking of the Class of '38. He says Jim Thompson is voted "Class Father," thanks to his fond paternal look. Bishop and Papa Schoenning, take second and third with becoming dignity. Of course, Fweddy Burk walks away with the vote for "Class Child." Apparently, Ball, Webb, and Reifsnyder have learned a little more about the big, bad world than he.

The honor of being "Class Clown" is awarded to "Jumping-jack" Heymann. To those who have seen him in English we need say no more. The antics of Buckman and Webb gain them a place in the "Hall of Stooges."

There is little doubt as to who has "Done The Most For The School." Staman has taken the uncertainty from the question of "Who shall be president?" Harrington and Knox also have their rooters.

On the other hand, in the matter of who has "Done The School For The Most," Dick Brown beats out Lees at the finish. His ambition (to get back his tuition money in trophies) has not gone unsuspected, it seems.

The "Class Playboy" is undoubtedly "Lightfoot" Boenning, who never drinks water, lest it rust his iron constitution. Torrey and Buckman are left to stagger in as best they can.

When "Ladies' Man" is the cry, Staman and Pastorius are neck and neck, while Hickerson gets what's left.

Apparently there is little difference today between best and worst, for oddly enough "Mike-the-tailor" Sinn wins the vote for "Best-Dressed," Crosby and Dale, those dashing men-about-town, following close behind. And yet for "Worst-Dressed" Dale takes first money, with Sinn and Crosby second. Not a bad idea, eh?

The mantle of "Handsome" falls on the shoulders of "Tyrone" Denniston (the widows' delight) who edged out Badenhause and Goodwin, the dark horses, by a profile. The latter have been awarded a week at the "Palace," in Mauch Chunk, where they are expected to dethrone the current matinee idol, Hezekiah Foo.

Now for a vital question: who is "Most Likely To Succeed?" Though Staman and Boenning have their backers, Knox has "gotten along" so far, and thus comes through, the winner.

Last, and by all means least, who is "Least Likely To Succeed?" Savage can answer this, no doubt, but Lees, Martin, and Heymann are not far behind on the path to oblivion.

Lucille Stoddart Saturday Night Assembly, Merion Tribute House, 1938

YOU CAN GO THRU LIFE WITHOUT LEARNING TO DANCE!

...but who wants to? The keen young generation realizes what a social asset and source of enjoyment knowing how to dance really well can be. It is the basis of poise, charm and graciousness of manner.

Lucille Stoddart, internationally-recognized instructor of dance teachers, features ballroom deportment as well as the most fashionable dance steps—a combination essential to anyone who wishes to be well trained in this social art.
