Editor's Message

Graduation from high school is much more than official recognition of the completion of certain academic requirements. Rather, it is the progression from an old way of life into a new one. Each member of the Class of '67 is stepping forward toward college with eager anticipation, but at this momentous threshold, each one looks back upon his high school experience with nostalgic fondness. At this moment, each classmate and every faculty member is a friend; each building and every hallway is a revered sacristy. All are left in the past. At graduation, the diploma is more than a certificate of achievement; it is a symbol of all the assets a student has received at Penn Charter.

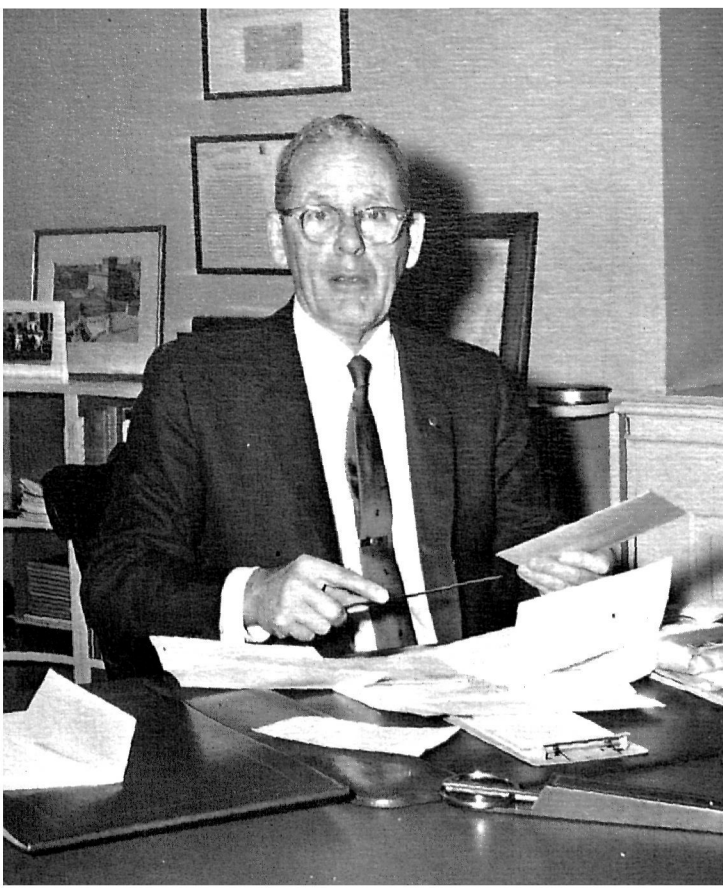

With these thoughts in mind, a small group sought to capture the spirit of the Class of '67 in a maze of pictures, copy, and artwork. In doing so, we have made some changes, such as the use of color and the addition of a serious class history. We hope that the resulting book will create a realization of the value of P.C. in the life of each graduating senior, and that it will encourage each underclassman to accept the opportunities offered him.

Gary Pankenheimer

We Dedicate This Book To M. Albert Linton, Jr.

In his many years at Penn Charter, Mr. Linton has shown an unfailing desire to aid and educate others. Despite his heavy schedule of classes and his duties as head of the Math Department, he always has time to help a student in need. Mr. Linton also plays a vital role in the athletic program as soccer statistician and coach of the golf team. The Class of '67 will always remember him for his altruistic spirit.

John F. Gummere

Headmaster

The Class of 1967 was marked as a particularly good one long before reaching the Senior Year; it has lived up to its promise and has given the School leadership and achievement of every sort. Penn Charter is proud of that record and grateful to the members of the Class for adding to the good name of the School. We are right to expect great things in the future and we shall look forward to them. May I urge you all to keep your old Penn Charter friendship alive, as my class has done. Annual reunions can be managed, even while you are in college. In all your endeavors, our warmest good wishes go with you. Carpe diem!

Class History

1955 was a good year for Penn Charter. The Football Team won its first championship since 1932, the Basketball Team was on its way to its thirteenth league crown, and the Class of 1967 had entered First Grade. Ten members of the present class—Griff Affel, Ronnie Brenner, Bob Buckley, Harry Cherken, Butch Heine, Ken Klinger, Joe Picardo, Bruce Richman, Gary Rosenau, and Pat Waltz—came in kindergarten in '54, and five more—Chris Allen, Mike Markovitz, Gary Partenheimer, Eli Saleeby, and Ray Wysoczanski—were added in '55.

The Gym Team began its second season in 1956, and Dave Scanlon came to Penn Charter. A year later Scott Kulicke, Don Leopold, Jack Muldoon, Charles Stretch, and John White joined the class.

The founding of the Art Society in 1958 attracted Jean Myers to P.C. the following year, along with Bruce Berlinger, Terry Cushmore, Rich Green, and Mike Ross. Dave Pasterchik jumped into our class in the middle of the year. With the Class of '67 in Fifth Grade, Gary Partenheimer was President of the Junior School Council, assisted by Secretary Jack Muldoon and Representative Bob Buckley. This year the Penn Charter Honor System was formulated in Mr. Lane's senior English class.

1960-61 brought championships in basketball and tennis to P.C. and five new members of the Class of '67: Carl Haeussler, Alan Hedges, Reynolds Long, Bill Safrin, and Chris Scott.

Fourteen new students—Jim Armour, Mike Cherry, Greg Conrad, Bruce Dunn, Chick Goodman, Walt Graff, Mark Hankin, Bob Hendricks, Bill Lightfoot, Sandy McAdoo, Ed Merves, Dennis Petrillo, Fred Schofield, and Julian Wessell—entered the class in Seventh Grade, the largest group of any year.

In 1962-63, the schedule was changed to eight periods per day, with each class shortened from 50 minutes to 40 or 45. Short recess gained a minute, and Blocks 7 and 8 were born. Sandy McAdoo played his first year of varsity squash, but the team's dual defeat of Episcopal was overshadowed by championships in football and baseball. Dave Fitch, Gary Friel, Scott Miller, Mark Mumford, and Bruce Nicholson joined the class.

1963—64 marked the 275th anniversary of the William Penn Charter School, commemorated by an all-day conference with Friends Select, and celebrated by an undefeated, untied football team. P.C. also won championships in basketball, baseball, and golf. The freshman year of the Class of '67 brought thirteen new students: John Blumenthal, Kurt Dengler, Dave Duff, Fred Eckfeldt, Bill Gawthrop, Bob Haley, Paul Harrington, Tom Lane, Tom Oxtoby, Gary Palmer, John Skinner, Andy Smith, and Jake Stone. The completion of the building additions gave Mr. Lane a carpeted homeroom and provided a well-equipped biology lab for the new BSCS course. A small group of students printed the first P.C. Mirror, an 8-page dittoed newspaper. Ecki Stohlmann, from Germany, was the first exchange student sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, and the Swimming Team came into existence.

Bob Baer, Jim Coon, Paul Kingsberry, Chase Kneeland, and Dave Still entered P.C. in the sophomore year, just in time for Mr. Shakespeare's new public speaking course. A cross-country team was born in the fall of 1964, and the golf team took another championship in the spring of '65. Jack Muldoon was elected Treasurer of the Class of '67, and Mr. Ralph O. Evans was chosen as Class Adviser.

The million-dollar Activities Building was dedicated in November, 1965, shortly before a convincing grid victory over G.A. Dave Icenhower, John Knox, Tom Mc-

Glinn, Neil Smith, Charlie Lachman, Chris Swartley, and Mike Tracy entered the class as juniors in a year of Friends Meeting controversy, Final Exam Exemption, and the promise of a new library. Mark Hankin spent the year in Germany as an exchange student to Martino-Katharineum in Braunschweig.

In the spring of 1966, member of the Class of '67 began to fill the positions of school leadership for the coming year. Six students—Sandy McAdoo, Paul Harrington, Mike Cherry, Gary Partenheimer, John White, and Don Leopold—were elected to Trident. Ed Merves took over the Presidency of Community Government. Editor-in-chief Partenheimer, literary editor Coon, and business manager Blumenthal began the large task of compiling the 1967 Class Record. The Class had already achieved academic distinction with high scores on the March SAT's and eight 800's by six different boys on the May Achievement Tests. Several other 800's were added in senior Achievements. Mike Cherry and Tom Oxtoby, the two highest ranking students in the class, were elected to Cum Laude at the end of the year. Led by class officers McAdoo (President), Harrington (Vice-President), Cherry (Secretary), and Muldoon (Treasurer), the Class of 1967 accepted the Stairs at the Farewell Assembly in May 1966, and officially reached the top of the school after Commencement on June 15.

1966-67 was a year of great progress and achievement at Penn Charter, led by the Senior Class. The class was completed by Paul Grimes, Doug Thomas, and Lars Eklöf, a visitor from Sweden. The recently remodeled Henry C. Evans Lab housed the new ESCP Earth Science course, and ten seniors took the new College Biology course.

Eight Seniors were named National Merit Finalists, and 10 more received Letters of Commendation. Mike Cherry and Mike Ross later became Merit Scholars.

The Student Council had an active year examining the Honor System through open discussion, assemblies, and newspaper articles. Tom Oxtoby chaired an Honor System Evaluation Committee which interviewed faculty and students and presented a list of recommendations to the Council. Other accomplishments were the Charities Drive, rearrangement of assembly seating, formation of a Spirit Committee, and purchase of a soda machine.

In November the Trident Society elected eight new members—Jim Coon, Bob Buckley, Dave Still, Ed Merves, Tom Oxtoby, Mike Ross, Mark Hankin, and Chris Scott—bringing the total to fourteen, the largest group in many years. Cum Laude honored nine additional seniors in March.

Dave Still was elected Chairman of the Dinner-Dance Committee, and Mark Hankin, Ed Merves, and Mike Cherry organized a program of Senior Seminars to replace finals.

Captain Sandy McAdoo completed his P.C. squash career as the top schoolboy player in the country, and Dave Icenhower was a nation champion in wrestling. The Golf Team and Baseball Team won Interac championships.

As the year draws to a close, the Seniors—after surviving Advanced Placement Tests and Commencement practice—look ahead to next year. The impressive list of future colleges includes Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Yale, Amherst, Haverford, Cornell, Penn, Duke and others.

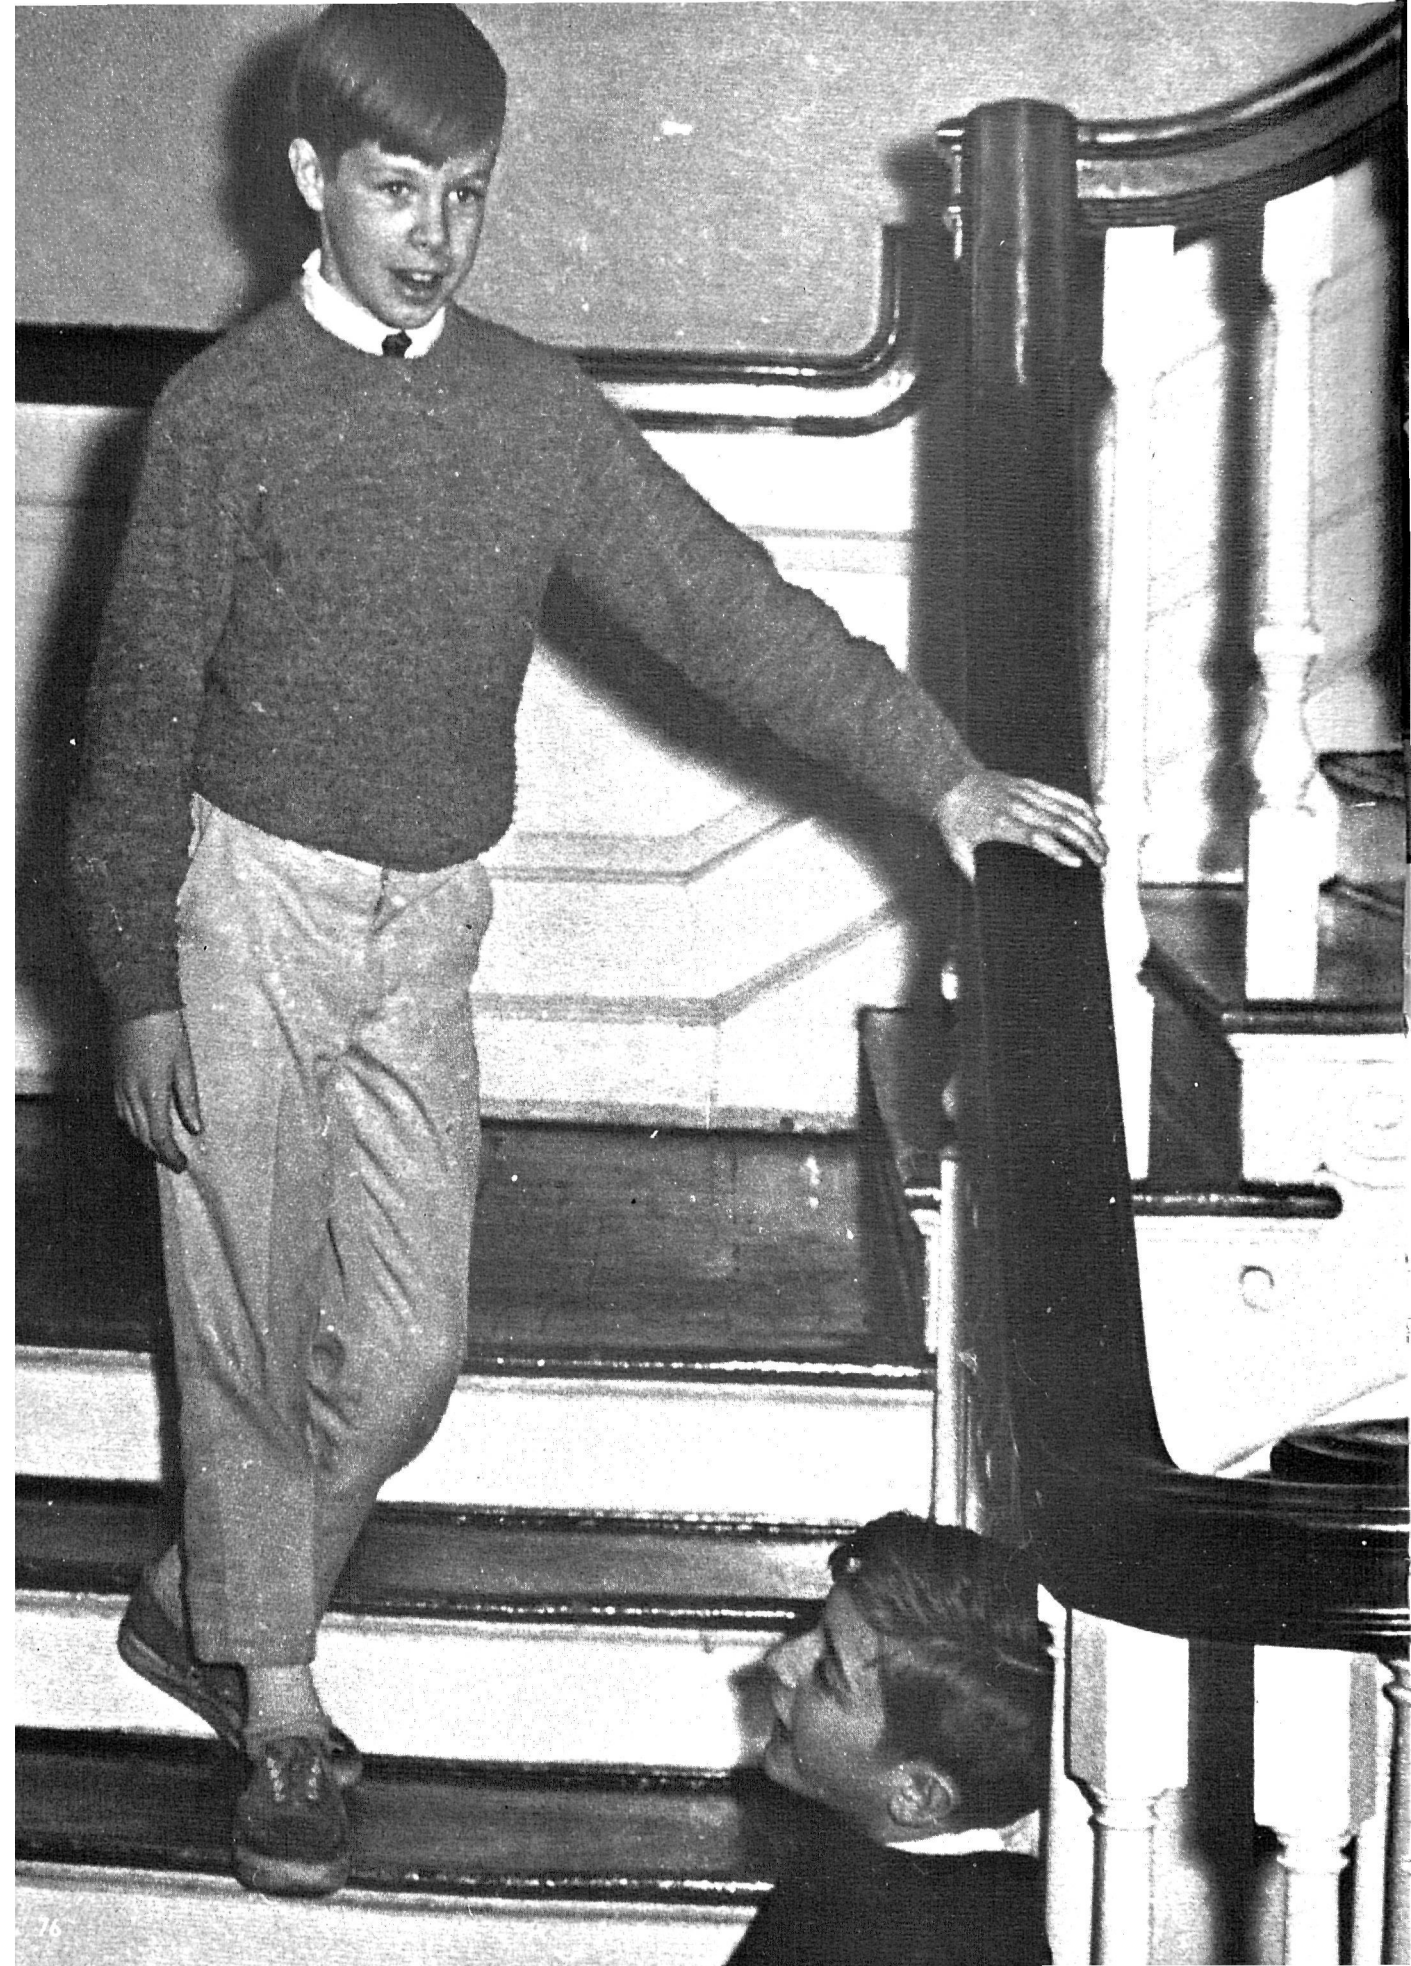

The graduation of the Class of 1967 marks the end of an era at Penn Charter, but it is hoped that each member of the class will gratefully remember his years at P.C., and that every remaining student will acknowledge the significant contributions of our class to the school.

'67 Class Record Is Better Than Ever

Preparation of the 1967 Class Record was a mass of confusion, incompetence, subversion, and hysteria brought together in a nebulous group of seniors, most of whom decided they were on the staff when the picture was being taken, or when they wanted to find out who the dedicatee was.

Editor-in-Chief Parteneheimer's reign was characterized by ineffectiveness in giving orders, which resulted in his single-handed preparation of copy sheets, cropping of pictures, and writing of articles. He was often seen trying to convince a giggling Oxtoby that Copy Editor is an important job, running into the library calling for Mr. Owrid's assistance, or watching a second team squash match. Business Manager Blumenthal's crazy schemes for raising money (such as selling pens inscribed with "Perrott ") were periodically interrupted by physical conflicts with Wessell, who claimed he was Photography Editor. It was difficult to convince artist Myers that the publishing company couldn't wait for him to have an "artistic mood" during which to draw his hairy characters, and Duff must have had a broken hand the whole year. Coon was the bright note of the literary department, although he continually insisted that we turn the entire project into a satire on yearbooks in order to make his meaningless Greek Society write-up great art.

Some of the staff members distinguished themselves, however. Chris Scott decided to turn over a new leaf in the middle of the year, only to discover that both sides were equally soiled. Don Leopold's brilliant tennis article contained his name only eleven times. Mike Cherry used his shy smile to make up for unfinished material. Harry Oherken, who wears an "L" on his sweatshirt (for "Liaison"), wandered in limbo between Oxtoby's Purgatory and Wessell's Hell. When asked about the sale of yearbooks, Bruce Richman replied "Burn the Stairs."

Most of the work was done by the threesome of Parteneheimer, Blumenthal, and Coon, who occasionally locked themselves into Room #6 and argued that nothing they had written was funny. The task was usually sidetracked by Blumenthal's dissertations on sex, Parteneheimer's attempt to include at least one Roberts on the cover, and Coon's continual need to rush to the lavatory.

In conclusion, we would like to thank Osgood Zlotnie for saying, "Never go out with sailors," because we never would have found a quotation for Nicholson otherwise; John Blumenthal would like to tell Stretch to "stow" it; Jim Coon would like to sneer, force a laugh, and say, "Let's make this a satire on yearbooks"; and Gary Parteneheimer would like to add that Robby Roberts is his hero. Amen.

Community Government Reviews Honor System

The most important business of the year could have been the gambling problem, but as usual, the Chief came out ahead in the year's flipping contest with the Council President. In between the weekly flips (featuring a special Kennedy half-dollar), other affairs were included, among them discussions on the charities drive, school spirit, and above all, the Honor System.

The Seniors, of course, set the tone for the year, led by vociferous Ed Merves, who established a record for organizing more subcommittees than any previous President. Secretary Sandy McAdoo, Mark Hankin, and Mike Cherry made a habit of sitting together and ganging up in opposition to Ed, while Gary Partenheimer set up a firm liaison—via the Roberts brothers—with the Middle and Lower Schools. Hard guys Jim Coon and Paul Harrington invariably remained aloof from the discussion, while Chris Scott found the library a pleasing alternative to the cafeteria.

Debates on the Honor System were extensive, as problems arose at the very start of the year. Discussions on a school and classroom level, meetings of the presidents and secretaries of the societies, and articles in The Mirror led to an attempt to modify, define, and clarify certain aspects of the code. The problem was a large one, however, and it was hoped that the revision process would continue after the Class of '67 had left P.C. The Honor System, it was universally felt, provides the students with privileges and a responsibility that are an integral part of Penn Charter.

Well-Fed Trident Continues Tradition

The purpose of the Trident Honor Society is to bring together the senior athletic and academic leaders in the school. This year's followers of Neptune went through the usual gamut of meals at members' houses. From steaks at President McAdoo's, the menu progressed through roast beef, spaghetti, and a double helping of turkey (Harrington's to Cherry's to Partenheimer's to Leopold's). To polish preparation for P.C.'s biggest social affair (no corsages, please), the Society met at Rabbi Ed Merves's and worked their way through a kosher fare beginning with liver knishes and topped off by noodle pudding. The following meeting—featuring steak and potatoes—at Dave Still's brought the group back to the States.

During the year subjects such as the Dance, awards, plaques and ties, and the Trident-faculty game (Mr. Brown a go-go) were discussed. Under the excellent leadership of Mr. Ray Evans, this year's society—one of the largest in recent years—continued the venerated Trident tradition of general all around goodness.

Cum Laude Honors Ten Scholars

Selection for membership in Cum Laude—a national honor society—is the highest academic honor a student can achieve at Penn Charter. Each year's chapter is composed of the top fifteen percent of the Senior Class. Michael Cherry and Thomas Oxtoby, the two highest ranking grade-grubbers of the Class of '67, were selected at the end of the Junior year, and the Society struggled along with these two until April, when eight classmates joined them. The year ends at a banquet at the Alden Park Manor on June 9 at which former members meet with current members. Taylor Grant will be the guest speaker.

Lit Society Sponsors Dance, Discusses Books

Ostensibly, the Penn Charter Literary Society is an elected group of Upper School students dedicated to the reading and discussion of a variety of literary works. In reality, the Lit Society is a selected group dedicated—in the fall to the providing of the most interesting dance of the year. The rest of the time, the Lit holds semi-formalized bull-sessions (night meetings) in the library. The Society's faculty adviser, Mr. Reinke, dauntlessly endeavors to keep the discussions centered on the books which the members hopefully have read, such as Cat's Cradle, by Kurt Vonnegut, Under Milkwood, by Dylan Thomas, and The Wasteland and Other Poems, by T.S. Eliot. President Tom McGlinn—whose father conveniently owns a book store—led this year's discussions to new depths.

Magazine Returns To Traditional Four Issues

The P.C. Magazine returned to its traditional four issues per year this year under its cheerless leader Don Leopold, who tried to assert his despotism by firing half the staff at the beginning of the year and arbitrarily choosing a new one. However, his efforts were tempered by associate editor John White whose lack of power was made up for in talent (ask Mr. Reinke).

As usual, the Magazine's pages were graced largely by the editors' creative fancies, such as the weird poetry of Steve Cavalier, and the powerful art of Jean Myers, plus an occasional piece of Leopold filler. However, the studentry responded to Don's contortions in assembly with a small assortment of worthwhile writing, and Mr. Arms and Mr. Reinke continued to encourage their advanced English classes to submit their papers. Thus the writing, art, and format of the oldest schoolboy publication in the country has maintained a high level this year.

Affiliation Sponsors Three Foreign Visitors

Despite the continual wrangling of Mr. Jones (who attended meetings quietly, inserting suggestions where necessary) and Emperor Partenheimer II (V.P. Rosenau when Partenheimer had something to do for the year-book), the Affiliation managed to execute its usual task of international friendship through reciprocation of materials, bulletin boards, and exchange students. Friendly Fritz Kempner is spending a year at our sister school in Germany—Martino-Katharineum—while Mr. Hillebrecht and Lothar Pollähne are their gifts to us. Lars Eklof, from Sweden, is spending the year here under sponsorship of the Rotary Exchange. Much to the dismay of coach Harrison, the Committee selected Bill Shelley as P.C.'s representative at a yearlong workcamp in Braunschweig next year.

Dramatics Club Produces The Trial

The P.C. Dramatics Club—under the patient direction of Mr. Shakespeare—is responsible for the production and organization of the various creations which transform the bleak Penn Charter stage into a work of art. Through a series of traumatic lunch meetings, the members perform their duties building sets, finding props, and in general, acting—each in his own way—all of which go into the presentation of the year's plays.

This year, most of the traumas and hard work went into the strangely ironic production of the Gide Barrault adaptation of Kafka's The Trial. John White, the humblest President in recent history, performed the exhausting role of Joseph K under the imaginative direction of Mr. Shakespeare, while Mr. Allen and Secretary Jean Myers supervised the construction of the complex set. Don Leopold, Business Manager, took on the exasperating job of selling tickets. It is always a satisfying surprise that a successful creation arises from such massive confusion.

Art Society Uses Its Talents Around School

Members of the Art Society are among the many unsung heroes of the school; when a teacher or student needs a poster, a drawing, or anything artistically demanding, he appears at the door of K202. Among the Society's many accomplishments in the past are the interesting wall murals in the halls and frequent contribution of the members' individual works in the P.C. Magazine. This year's talented President, Jean Myers, (who sketches yearbook characters in his spare time) supervised the immense task of constructing stage sets for The Trial and led his Society's production of advertising posters for various organizations.

Assembly Committee Plans Assemblies

Monday morning at 9:30 has become an exciting moment for 400 bright-eyed P.C. students who file eagerly into the auditorium, there to find a spectacular film, a guest speaker, a debate, or a concert. The playful antics of chairmen Fred Schofield and Greg Conrad tend to disguise the serious effort which their committee has put forth in arranging our varied and stimulating program of assemblies.

Some of the year's best assemblies were a film on the eruption of a volcano, Mr. Schug's Christmas carolling (featuring the Brass Choir), a speech by Dr. Henry Nichols, a cartoon film on man's need to draw lines, and Mr. Schug's Middle School play.

The Assembly Committee also worked with the Council to reseal younger students up front, while tactfully ignoring firmly implanted Seniors.

Greek Society Continues Study Of Ancient Greece

"That's Greek to me," said President John Blumenthal, the other senators nodding in humorous assent, and the Greek Society opened another successful year. The Society's erudition includes Aeschylus' roast infant dinner, Aristophanes' dung-beetle, and Plutarch's advice on making friends. Secretary Terry Cushmore provides the intellectual entertainment, while adviser Reds McMillan periodically injects interesting off-the-subject sidelights further to illuminate the members' studies of the language and culture of ancient Greece. The Greek Society intends to continue its perpetration of the Hellenic tradition for years to come, despite invasion from other barbarian groups.

History Club Revises Its Power Structure

The word is that the History Club was infiltrated by left-wing members of the Library Society, so last year's officers were purged in favor of members of the Class of '67. Birchir John Blumenthal bought the Presidency, carrying right-hand man Reynolds Long as V.P. The Library Society waged a bitter campaign which gave two of its top men—Bruce Berlinger and Mike Cherry—the other two positions.

The Club sponsored several vital night meetings during the year, covering topics from North Vietnam to South Vietnam, but the big project was an attempt to simulate internal affairs and international relations between sovereign nations.

Jazz Club Comes On Strong

Contrary to popular belief, the P.C. Jazz Club is not really a front for Greg Conrad's Midnight Auto Supply, Inc. Actually, the Club is a dedicated group of students united by an interest in various jazz forms and artists, with the purpose of learning more about them. The members attend at least one concert per year; last year they sponsored a well-received assembly featuring the Club's own Jazz Apostles. During the year, the Jazz Club holds informal but enlightening evening seminars to listen to and discuss jazz while consuming a vast quantity of (that's right) coke. With the active interest of many younger members, the Jazz Club should swing for years to come.

Library Society Assists Mr. Owrid

The function of the Library Society is to help the librarian in the library. Shelving, working at the desk, filing magazines, reading shelves, and keeping the library open before school and in the absence of a librarian are all tasks of the Society.

Another function is to attend the meetings and listen to the President's impassioned plea for work and Mr. Owrid's equally impassioned thanks to "the most helpful group of students in the school." As in past years, this innocent praise has shamed the membership into performing its function. This year, there have been fewer meetings, more harangues, more praise, and even some work. With the efforts of our two devoted librarians, Mr. Owrid and Mrs. Beck, the Library Society has maintained its usual appearance of efficiency.

The Mirror Continues Technical Improvement

In the course of one year, under the leadership of Editor-in-chief J. Michael Ross, The Mirror has risen from a barely readable mimeograph sheet to the fourth most powerful publication in the school. Due to the introduction of a new technical process and super-fine photography, the newspaper has inspired comment from students and administration. The Mirror, besides reporting interesting last-minute news, raises some timely questions with its provocative editorials.

Major accomplishments of the year included procuring enough funds for publication for the next two years and installing a lock on room eight. In accordance with tradition, the Mirror changed staffs at midyears to give the Juniors a chance to run the publication under senior advisorship. We wish next year's editor Tom Muldoon continued progress with "the rag".

Science Club Hears Lectures, Visits Accelerator

The Science Club began this year with President Pasterchik's urgent pleas for Science Fair projects, answered—as usual—by sincere promises from the intensely interested membership. With the traditional formalities completed, the meetings were occupied by various science films and several lectures by Mr. Cross on geology and earth science, Mr. Edgerton on chemistry, and "Desk-side Dave" on the computer. This year's major trip was to the Princeton-Penn Accelerator, where students heard Professor Aaron Lemonick explain the project.

With the end of the Science Fair and the completion of yearbook credits, the membership declined sharply, but the remaining stalwarts continued to pursue their scientific interests every other week and began work on next year's projects.

Varsity Club Builds Men

Penn Charter's hard-working athletes and natural talent make up the society known as the Varsity Club. During the football season, they sell spirit tags, and this year they sponsored three cheerleaders from Roxborough High (that's right fellas, GIRLS) for the Haverford game. The club also meets visiting teams before athletic contests.

Near the end of May, the students all hang loose for the Varsity Club Dance. Last year's attire for this lively affair included shorts, madras slacks, desert boots and Converse All-Stars; this year is expected to be a little more tame with the introduction of new dress regulations.

Also, to give waning school spirit a boost, the club worked in conjunction with the Community Government's Spirit Committee, organizing spirit campaigns in order to "psyche up" the studentry.

The Penn Charter Wheel Club consists of a group of boys dedicated to helping those who find themselves with a malfunctioning vehicle and "no man around." Wilson Society Dabbles In Current Affairs

"... to engender an interest in world affairs ..." Beginning in September and culminating in the Philadelphia Model United Nations, the Woodrow Wilson Society tried to present an educational program to those interested in current world affairs. The voice of Dizzy Gillespie, courtesy of the society, livened up the United Nations Day Assembly.

Night meetings with interesting speakers provided members with a chance to avoid doing homework, and in May a program on the United Nations is being planned to be run jointly with the Abington and George Washington High Schools to take place on three school days at the schools involved.

Webster Society Debates Various Topics

Under the dynamic leadership of President Ed Merves—who speaks well with or without a topic—the Webster Debating Society had a successful year pursuing its forensic propensities in a variety of ways. The year began with a Chicago debate in assembly on the topic, “Resolved, that compulsory military service in the U.S. should be determined by a lottery.” The affirmative team—Merves and McGlinn—defeated Partenheimer and V.P. Markovitz, although Partenheimer was named Outstanding Speaker. Other accomplishments were a co-ed debate with Springside, the Valley Forge Tournament, intra-club debates on foreign aid, and the acceptance of many enthusiastic younger members.

Mr. Conard Retires After 19 Years As Coach

With only three lettermen returning, coaches Conard and Harrison formed a spirited team of seasoned Second Team veterans and young J.V. stars. P.C. won the opening game against West Catholic, 2-0, then lost to Kimberton in a thunderstorm, 3-2, and to Friends Select, 0-2, before winning their first league game over Malvern, 4-0.

Here the season-long string of injuries began. Dengler and Captain Skinner succumbed to sickness; Ward and Lightfoot had muscle problems; Merves broke his nose with a face trap; and Schmidt broke his leg for the second year in a row.

A squad of only 11 men lost at Valley Forge, 3-0, but the team retaliated with a 4-0 win over Philmont. P.C. then lost to GFS, 1-2, on a disputed goal and dropped a game to Moorestown, 0-6.

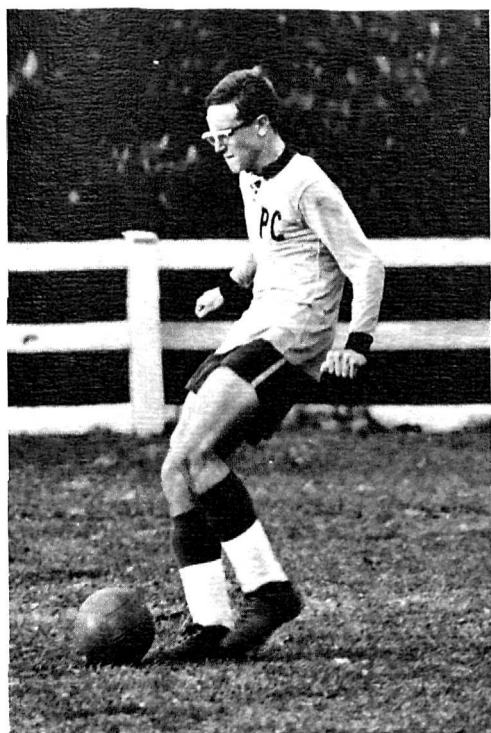

Two second-half goals gave the team a 2-2 tie with powerful G.A. in a game which coach Conard noted as the best of the season. After another 2-2 tie with Chestnut Hill, P.C. lost to Haverford, 4-1. A last minute goal gave Swarthmore's J.V. a 1-0 victory despite outstanding play by goalie Bev Stanley and the P.C. defense.

The team then lost to superior Episcopal, 0-4, and to larger Westtown, 1-5, before thumping Friends Central, 4-1, to close out a 4-9-2 season. In a post-season hockey game, P.C. beat Abington Friends, 2-1, on goals by Partenheimer and Shelley.

P.C. finished sixth in the Interac with a 2-4-2 log. Kurt Dengler and Chris Scott were named to the Second Team. Skinner, Lane, and Fiechter received Honorable Mention.

At the banquet, Scott received the MVP award; Dengler was Most Improved Veteran and Fiechter Most Improved Rookie. Statistics showed Partenheimer was high point man with four goals and three assists, while Scott and Lightfoot also had four goals apiece.

Mr. Conard received a standing ovation (and a pipe) when he announced his retirement as head coach after 19 years of service. Mr. Harrison will be the new head coach, assisted by Ward and Schmidt, next year's co-captains.

P.C. Takes Second In Interac With 4-1 Record

Football and spirit came alive at Penn Charter this year. After losing to Valley Forge, 28-14, P.C. edged Hill, 14-6, then devoured P.S.D., 44-18, scoring on our own opening kick-off.

After disposing of Malvern, 35-0, in the league opener, the team outhit and outplayed Haverford for the Red Shirt and a 27-14 victory. Against Episcopal, P.C. backs Harrington, Buckley, Walsh, and Mellor faked and ran until the score reached 27-6 and time ran out.

A 28-12 win over Chestnut Hill featured an 85-yard power drive and great defense by ends Scott Miller and Pete Johnson. A crowd of 4000—including a massive Charter rooting section—saw G.A.'s defense halt P.C. for a 13-6 win, giving them the Interac championship. The loss snapped a six-game Quaker winning streak and left the season's log at 6-2 (4-1 in the league, for second place).

P.C. placed four players on the All-Interac First Team: Bob Buckley, Sandy McAdoo, Butch Heine, and Pete Johnson. Paul Harrington and Rick Mellor made Second Team, while Ed Marshall and Tank Walsh received Honorable Mention.

At the banquet, the following awards were made: Most Valuable Player, Bob Buckley; Most Improved Player, Chris Allen; Most Sportsmanlike Player, Sandy McAdoo; Best Defensive Player, Butch Heine. Next year's captains will be Bob Fass and Peter Johnson.

Cross Country Team Wins First Meet In Three Years

The Cross Country Team's unimpressive 1-11 record is hardly indicative of the spirit and dedication to the sport which the members showed throughout the year in practices and in meets. Clad in the flimsy gold and white uniforms designed to display their magnificent torsos, the runners braved wind and weather week after week, trotting through knee-deep mud and shoulder-high cornfields, several miles a day, to build their speed, stamina, and form.

The team's only victory—the first in three years of cross country at Penn Charter—came over Solebury, 23-32, as Mike Cherry won the race (also a cross country first at P.C.). Cherry and captain Chick Goodman turned in strong performances in close losses to Devon Prep (30-27) and to G.A. (32-25). Neil Smith, a converted Interac sprinting champion, also ran many fine races.

With several experienced and skilled runners like Tom Muldoon, Rich Balderston, Roy Cameron, and Tom Sadtler returning next year, P.C.'s cross country outlook should continue to improve as it did this year.

McAdoo Closes Squash Career With Tournament Win

Despite injuries and cramped court space, the Squash Team finished third in the Interac with a 4-4 league record and a 4-9 overall slate. Veterans Sandy McAdoo (captain and number one man), Mike Markovitz, Steve Marshall, Mike Cherry, Rod Atkins, and Bob Hendricks formed the nucleus of the team; Joe Hoeffel, Harry Cherken, and Roy Cameron moved up from the second team.

The first match was a close 4-3 win over Chestnut Hill as McAdoo, Cherry, Hendricks, and Brad Ward scored victories. McAdoo was the only winner twice in 6-1 losses to Episcopal and Princeton. A 6-1 league victory over Germantown Friends (McAdoo, Marshall, Cherry, Hendricks, Ward, Cherken) preceded a 6-1 loss to Hill.

After midyears, the team was shocked by the Alumni, 6-1, as McAdoo—top schoolboy player in the country—lost in five games to veteran Vic Seixas, the top senior; Mike Cherry scored the only win. A second 4-3 win over CHA followed a loss to Haverford.

P.C. lost to a fine Penn freshman team before squashing GFS, 7-0, with McAdoo, Marshall, Atkins, Cherry, Cherken, Hoeffel, and Robby Roberts winning. The final week brought losses to Episcopal, Haverford, and Hill.

In a post-season four-man team tournament, P.C. tied for second as McAdoo finished first, capping a brilliant five-year squash career at Penn Charter.

Basketball Team Bounces Back For 11-10 Record

After a rather poor building season last year, the Basketball Team—coached by fiery Joe Perrott and Jim Lampe (OPC '64)—came back with an 11-10 overall record and fourth place in the Interac with an 8-6 log.

Senior co-captain Bob Buckley was joined by four spectacular underclassmen: rebounder Pete Johnson, long shooter Jim Manning, defensive ace Roger Gordon, and ball handler Rick Mellor. Other notables were co-captain Dave Still (when he got in the game), tall Ed Marshall, Ted Safrin, and sharp-shooter Paul Harrington.

Despite a weak showing in the Oreland Lions Tournament at the beginning of the season, the team played well in the league, beating Germantown Friends, Friends Central, Episcopal, and the hated Hillers twice, many times by large margins. Mr. Perrott noted that our losses to G.A., Haverford, and Malvern were all close games. On our home court, Malvern saw its sizable half-time lead dwindle to five before time ran out, and we out-scored G.A. from the field, though losing on free throws.

The vast improvement in the team both over last year and during the year seemed to renew student interest in basketball, and it is hoped that the four returning starters will form the hub of a spirited championship team next year.

Captain Affel Heads List of Fine Swimmers

The '66-'67 Swimming Team, in its second year in P.C.'s own natatorium, compiled a 6-6 overall record in dual meets (1-2 in the league for fourth place) and swam well in the Interac Meet. A major victory was the 60-point swamping of G.A. in our pool, one of the only wins over our rivals in any sport this year.

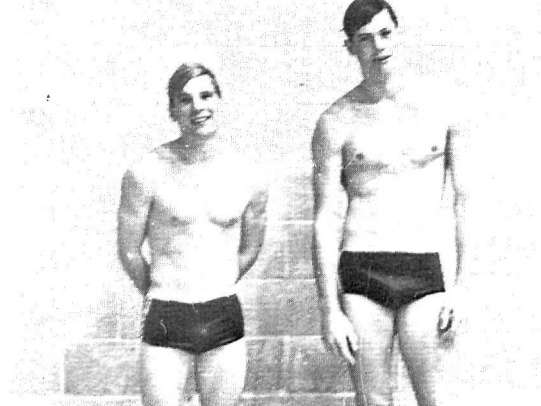

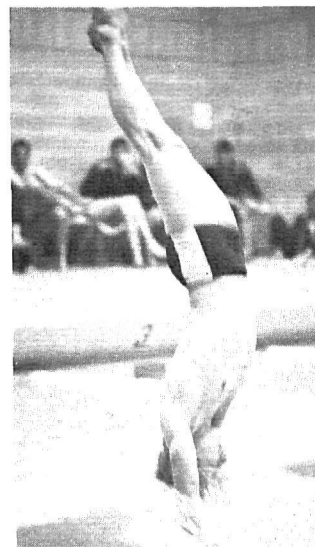

Co-captain Griff Affel completed his four-year swimming career at P.C. with a pool record in the 50-yard freestyle and a victory and meet record in the Interac Meet. Griff took second for the Interac in the 50-yard freestyle at the Meet of Champions, and anchored the champion relay team. Graceful diver Mark Kravitz took second place in the Interac.

With many strong swimmers, such as Rich Balderston, Scott Kirchner, and Dave Parrish returning, and Mr. Gibson's promotion of the sport with skin-diving and life saving courses, the Swimming Team looks forward to successful years in the future.

With the help of coaches Maroney and Struck, the Wrestling Team turned in a 12-2 season (4-2 in the Interac for third place), the best mat record in twelve years at Penn Charter. One of the losses, a close 22-26 decision, was to perennial champion Haverford, despite P.C.'s late 22-8 lead. The other loss was a hard-fought contest with Chestnut Hill.

Co-captain Dave Icenhower, wrestling at 120 lbs., went undefeated in eighteen matches during the year and was named Outstanding Wrestler in the National Tournament at Lehigh. Sophomore Richie White (112-lb. class) also went undefeated, and veteran Fred Eckfeldt, at 145 lbs., turned in eleven pins during the season.

Baseball Team Fields Talented Veterans

Despite a mediocre third place finish in the Interac last year, peppery coach Reds McMillan, assisted by Mr. Brown ("the Saigon Bomber"), fields an explosive team with extensive experience and spirit. Pitching ace Bob Buckley will handle the bulk of the mound chores, backed up by Dave Still and Bruce Dunn. Sophomore Pat Holmes is the top catcher, with competition from newcomer Phil Huntoon. Sure-handed Ralph Palaia will cover the ground again at the hot corner, with steady hitter Bill Safrin on his left at shortstop. Mike Tracy, last year's second team stalwart, completes the keystone combination at second base. Sandy McAdoo will be pulled in from the outfield to cover first base, with assistance from Chris Scott. Teddy Safrin will chase flies in the outfield whenever the opposition is lucky enough to hit Buckley's fast balls, and the other two fields are open for promising young prospects from Mr. Packard's second team.

Track Team Features Many Returning Lettermen

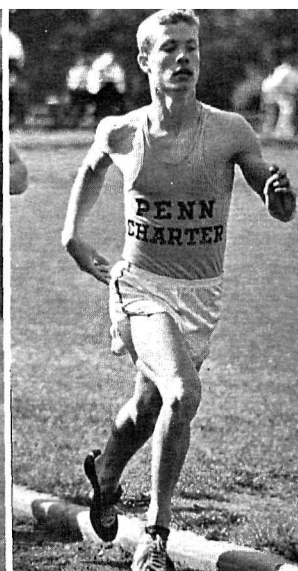

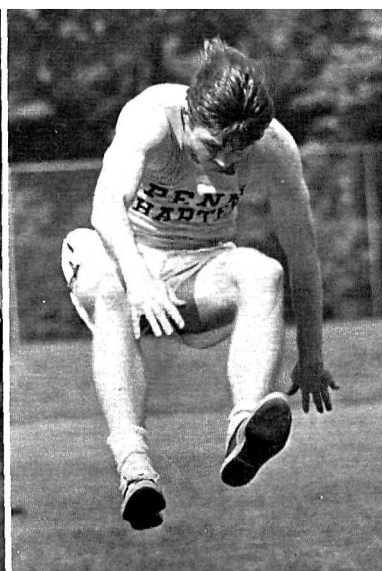

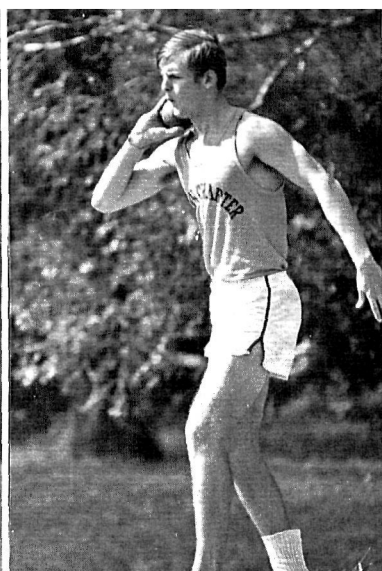

With several talented lettermen, including veteran captain Scott Miller, returning from last year's good 5-3 season, the Track Team's hopes for an Interac championship this year are good ones. In the running events, Senior Neil Smith—who spent the fall warming up with the Cross Country Team—is a sure champion in the 220 and other sprints; Experienced hurdler Carl Haeussler—who has earned several track awards—is joined by Junior Mike Ward. Speedy Vince Samuels is also a fine sprinter, and Freshman Don Lentz is our best half-miler. Another strong runner, John Skinner, leads a group of fine field performers in broad jumping. Joining him in the pit is Junior John Graham, who is also a high jumper. Mark Kravitz is P.C.'s top pole vaulter, and Tom McGlinn holds our hopes in the shot put. Under the strict direction of coaches Faber and Conard, the Track Team should be ready for any competition at the Interac meet in late May.

Cherry, Markovitz, Roberts Hold Tennis Hopes

Despite a meager 2-4 Interac record (5-8 overall) last year, the 1967 Tennis Team—built around experienced veterans, augmented by fresh, young talent, and coached by Mr. Harrison—features some of the best rackets in the league. Playing singles, Captain Mike Cherry will be joined by #1 man Mike Markovitz, small but sensational Robby Roberts, and Don Leopold (who claims he can beat Arthur Ashe but always loses to Roberts). Bayard Fiechter, Tim Rice, Tony Garvan, Jack Roberts, Max Beck, Griff Affel, and Rick Markovitz will team up in doubles matches.

Mr. Linton Fields Strong Golf Team

Led by towering Junior Ed Marshall—the number one man—and Senior captain Bob Hendricks, the Golf Team, coached by Mr. Linton, features veterans who captured P.C.'s only championship last year. Seniors Rich Green, Walt Graff and Gary Friel, Junior Tom Eiman, Sophomore Steve (miniature Ed) Marshall, and Freshman Glenn Whitman complete a team which intends to continue Penn Charter's tradition of golf supremacy.
