THE CLASS

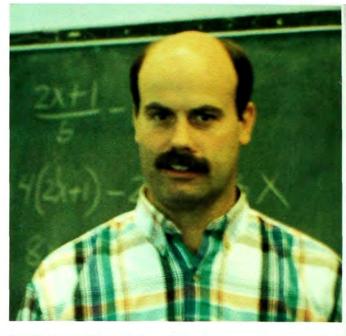

Dedication

Mr. Hitschler has been our teacher, our coach, our big brother, and our friend during the best and worst times of our years at P.C. He's helped us get through the agony of SAT preparation, among other things. It's a great feeling to know that Hitsch will always make time to help you out in math or in life. Hitsch has become a part of our lives and has helped to make the transition from an all-male school to a coed one easy, if not fun.

Mr. Hitschler exemplifies the Penn Charter student, ... uh, teacher most of the time. He's always been a great voice for the students and their needs. He has definitely helped us through some very precarious situations. He gives us advice in and out of school and often is able to give us a perspective that, otherwise, we couldn't get.

After quite a few years Hitsch has finally learned the correct color coordination. Despite his stints at other rival schools, Hitsch has become the all-American Penn Charter family man. His kids - Fuzzy, Wuzzy, and Cubby - function as a source of pure entertainment throughout the day. Thanks, Hitsch, for all you've done for us. You'll never be forgotten.

WILLIAM PENN CHARTER SCHOOL

PHILADELPHIA PENNSYLVANIA 19144

OFFICE OF THE HEADMASTER

To the Class of 1992:

Your graduation as the first coeducational class in the history of Penn Charter is a momentous event for the school. As you look back upon your years here, that special class distinction will be a major part of your recollections. The school would not have the strong coeducational foundation it now has without the contributions of the young men and women of the Class of 1992. At the same time, I am aware that the school has a belief in the importance of the growth of each student at Penn Charter. The ultimate indicator of what Penn Charter means to each of you will come from long term reflections on the impact of teachers, coaches, and advisors not from thoughts about your role in an historical movement.

Class members have accomplished many things while at Penn Charter. Yours is not a class with a single voice or with encompassing leadership, but rather is one with individual leaders in a variety of areas. This is an extremely strong class academically. Several class members have had significant achievements in mathematics and science while others have produced excellent writing in such courses as the Faulkner seminar. Seniors have provided excellent leadership to athletic teams including the girls' varsity squads. Class members have excelled musically in vocal presentations. Others have made serious commitments to service projects.

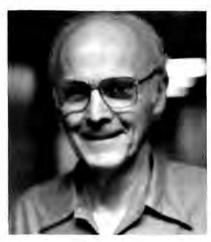

We hope that we have served each of you well. Your teachers have endeavoured to assist you in the vital process of defining yourself and your values while providing you with the academic skills and intellectual attitudes that will lead to lifelong learning. We trust, also, that the Quaker basis of the school has helped you in the process. The call for serious individual reflection and the consistent message of responsibility to others are of lasting importance.

You graduate with our affection and our continuing interest. One of the joys of being at Penn Charter is the communication with alumni. All of us look forward to sharing with you in the years to come.

Congratulationsl

In Memoriam

Bill Neely

Bill Barry

Our school family was saddened this year by the deaths of two very dedicated and beloved individuals. While one had been with us for many years, and the other for just over a year, both were vital to the school, and are deeply missed.

Bill Neely was the Chief Engineer for over twenty years; he maintained the buildings and helped make our lives inside these walls comfortable. Bill would set and re-set the clocks (he never missed Daylight Saving), fix the air conditioners, and unclog the water fountains. His work was behind the scenes and often unnoticed, but we cannot take his contributions for granted. Bill died in October, 1991, after a struggle with long-term illnesses.

In early 1991, Bill Barry was asked to be our Dietician under some distressing circumstances. Carl Boyd had died suddenly the previous November, and he had done much to make the cafeteria a place of joy, good food, and service to the school. Bill did not try to take Carl's place, but built upon the good rapport among the kitchen crew and helped them to continue to grow in their work as Carl had done. Bill added his own touches, such as long-simmering, hom e-cooked soup, which often brought him into school on wintry Saturdays to prepare. Bill poured much of himself into his work as service to all members of the school, and he did it with orderliness, candor, and good humor. Bill died suddenly in February of 1992, of injuries suffered in a car accident.

Both of these men brought a similar dedication to the school, regardless of different tenures. We mourn their passing but cherish the memories of them.

3. Our resident Cheshire cat with a winning smile is Ms. Horikawa. She seems to be the luckiest teacher, because she has probably the most cavernous room in the school along with a 100 year old sculpture of the Atlantic Ocean floor. Ms. Horikawa has the ability to make even rocks seem interesting.

 Mrs. Davis, our very own beloved Alice in Wonderland, heads the science department. Respected by all of her students (T.K. just isn't very good at displaying his admiration), Mrs. Davis teaches everything from the mole to the reactions of aromatic compounds and beyond. In between intense lessons she shares stories from her adventures in the wonderland of chemistry. Her Organic class, filled with three year Davis veterans, can tell you about all of the wonders that Alice has to offer.

4. Mrs. Portnoy brought October 23 (mole day) to life with her many creative mole jokes. Also the science club advisor, she shares her enthusiasm for science in and out of the classroom. An effective teacher, Mrs. Portnoy is able to complete her lessons even as organic students walk through on their way to Davis's headquarters. N: Organic student repellant.

2. Miss Glascott is most like the Queen of Hearts, for she doesn't put up with crap from anyone. With all of her responsibilities, teaching, coaching and assisting with the middle school, one wonders how she does it. It's probably the fact that she does not listen to whining or any ridiculous excuses. (This really bothered us when we were in middle school.) We learned a lot from her, usually having fun in the process, and that's most likely the reason why her oceanography course is so popular. Whether it be in the class or on the pool deck, you can always hear, "Off with their heads!"

NCE

3. Acting as the March Hare of the science department, Mr. Dover adds to the biology section. When he's not busy acting as Dean of Students, Mr. Dover can be found in one of two places: chasing seniors and telling them to get busy or teaching biology to the ninth grade. We wish him best of luck in everything he does, and we hope that in the future he may begin to teach more classes.

2. Constantly playing with all of his toys, we think Dr. Katman resembles the Mad Hatter. He can single-handedly lift his house, hold a bowling ball longer than any of the football players, and he can even drive to school without using his brakes. We hope that he avoids injuring himself on his bed of nails so that he will teach P.C. students for many years to come.

1. In the science department Ms. DiCesare and Mr. Woodburn are Tweedle-de and Tweedle-dum, respectively. This duo give the 1, 2 punch in the biology department. Both teach advanced biology sections, while Mr. Woodburn also takes charge of the AP program. Ms. DiCesare also teaches several popular elective courses to seniors. The biology lab is alive with the plants, fish and other animals tended to by this duo. Together they also work to ensure that Mrs. Davis does not extend the chemistry lab into their territory.

ENGL

- 5. The second half of the English tandom of toughness is department head Mr. West. A recent study showed that those seniors who do their readings love Mr. West's classes, take them over and over again and eventually become members of his cult: the Musike Society. And as for those students who insist on reading Clifford, well, ask any of them. Yesss Mr. West can always spot the golden shovel over the horizon. Nevertheless Mr. West's classes are always interesting if not entertaining. If he could just get over his obsession with Nantucket maybe next year he'll host that trip to N'awlins.
- 1. If you're lucky enough to get into one of his classes you will see he is of gold star quality. His deep insight and analysis leave students in amazement. Out of class he is found coaching Varsity Lax for his intense 15 min. nonstop practice. Mr. Perrott is inspiration to us all in and out of class.
- 4. John Schug is a Penn Charter institution. Every Upper Schooler knows that short guy in plaid who goes around yelling "Hey Old Bean". When he's not wandering around the school muttering, he can be found sitting in his room knitting the latest fashions. His room is one of the most popular hangouts in the school due to its copious supply of games.
- 2. Ms. Purcell is from the Groton School! (Learn to spell, Mirror editors.) In addition to teaching English, she is a middle school field hockey coach. From what the Varsity Field Hockey teams saw, she doesn't diddle around with these young sticksters. The upper school female athletes certainly hope that she doesn't give Mrs. White any new ideas.
- 3. We will refrain from commenting on Mr. Watters' "caring, sharing, and responsibility" talks, his beard, or his stories about walks in the woods with his son. However, these are the warm and endearing qualities that make him such a special part of P.C. We wish he would share more of himself with the upper school.

ISH

1. Along with Mr. West, Mrs. Irving makes up half of the English tandem of toughness at PC. Fear was prevalent in the hearts of all when we had her in Middle School for she was and still is the "Guru of Grammar." Those of us who came out of her class alive know about nominative absolutes, Langston Hughes, and a little about ourselves. When she's not using that right arm to do a mean electric slide or to carry that LL Bean bag filled with journals, then she's using it to hit balls with the Varsity Girls Tennis team out on the courts.

2. Everybody at Penn Charter knows Steven A. Bonnie . . . He's the man who let us into the place. Besides working as Director of Admissions and Varsity Track Coach he occasionally consents to teach a Middle School English course where he spends the bulk of the time quizzing hapless students on the handbook. FE: "Oooh Bay-bee!" KF: conviction that PC exists for the track team MMM: getting Shawn Morgan into PC

3. Yes, the trip to England seems to have transformed Mr. Huntingdon into the most liberal member of the English Department (look, he came back with a ponytail and wants us to call him Fred). Students, especially seniors, love the lax attitude in his classes. It's the kind of attitude which inspires even the most illiterate senior to write his/her best college essay. Oh yeah, when he's not climbing the bell tower he's found in the bowels of Penn Charter advising that other publication.

4. Running swiftly across campus, no it's not Shawn Morgan, it's Mrs. Sawyer. Maybe we'll set up a race between Mrs. Sawyer and the new cross country assistant coach, Mr. Ballengee. Before taking a trophy in that race though, she should receive a purple heart for her daring play in the polar bear soccer club. Mrs. Sawyer is much more than an athlete. Inside the school, she advises the Amnesty International Club, teaches the women in literature course (along with several other English & French courses), and is a thoughtful contributor in Meeting for Worship.

MA

- 1. What else can one say about Mrs. Ball, the best-connected teacher at PC, except that she is one of the most caring teachers in the school. Her reputation for kindness and her belief that everyone can "do" math help make learning easier and more enjoyable. We wish her success in the coming years.
- 2. Mr. Goulding, a.k.a. the Grinch of snowdays, is the only teacher who gives double homework when there is a chance of a snowday. (His aversion to snow must be from those bus driving days.) But really, Mr. Goulding is a teacher that we all hope to get. He thoroughly explains every concept ensuring that everyone understands. No one escapes from his class without learning a lot of math. He's not as tough as he seems he'll cook you breakfast if you're one of his advisees and he'll even give your class a pizza party when you get to 100 assignments.
- 3. What do you call a man who lives in the Land of Exactitude, has more than twenty personalities and voluntarily teaches sophomores? If you said "insane", you're close, but the answer is Mr. Mac. Secretly, though, Mr. MacCullough's antics liven up the sometimes dull subject of math, and he always manages to keep his classes interesting and educational at the same time.

- 4. Aside from excelling at teaching mathematics, Mr. McCloskey somehow finds time to practice his pickle ball and maintain his number one rating as the champion of pickleball in the P.E. department (sorry Mr. Mellor). You can also find him coaching on the football field and the baseball diamond. We wish him luck in fending off Mrs. White and Mr. Mellor on the pickleball court.
- 5. Mr. Gordon is intimidating at first with his complex and rigid homework and grading systems; however, his mellow disposition and perpetual smile win students over quickly. Meticulously prepared for his classes, Mr. Gordon probably holds a record for his over-head projector use (just ask him to demonstrate the fancy overhead calculator that he's so proud of.).
- 6. Mr. Hitschler breaks the norm of the math department by including discussions about most anything in his class. You can always see a little Hitsch wandering around the school, and you know that Mr. Hitschler is never far behind. (Shortly, the school will be overrun.) Anyone who has had Hitsch, is glad that they did, and anyone who hasn't wishes they had. UF: Can not be found by anyone; the wrestling room during the winter sports season.

TH

1. Spending most of his time shuffling down the halls with a cup of coffee in hand, or teaching his little "kiddies" about "ick and foo," Mr. Smith continues to be one of the most entertaining teachers at P.C. His frequent outbursts, during which he nearly always blows his top, drown out even Mr. Wilkins' voice next door and will probably cause everyone to go deaf one of these days. But behind that thunderous voice and short temper, is a man who shows affection to his "darlings" by scribbling all over their workbooks in green and red marker and giving out free doughnuts.

2. There are three institutions at P.C.: Friends' Meeting, the Senior Stairs, and Mr. Linton. With several decades of teaching experience, Mr. Linton brings an immense amount of knowledge to his AP Calculus classes and the math team. Let's not overlook his athletic side - he has led the Golf Team to numerous Interactitles.

3. Between teaching math, coaching girls' basketball, cross country and varsity track, it's anybody's guess how Ms. Flemming finds time to stop in the halls (between xeroxing her thousand-page long tests) to talk and joke with students. Our best guess is that she is just one of those caring teachers that do their best to help us out. Keep it up, Flembo.

5. Ms. Klein is the pinnacle of computer intellect. The knowledge seems to flow from the water bottle that she is constantly nursing. Whatever the case may be, Miss Klein takes her job very seriously and her hard work and care are appreciated.

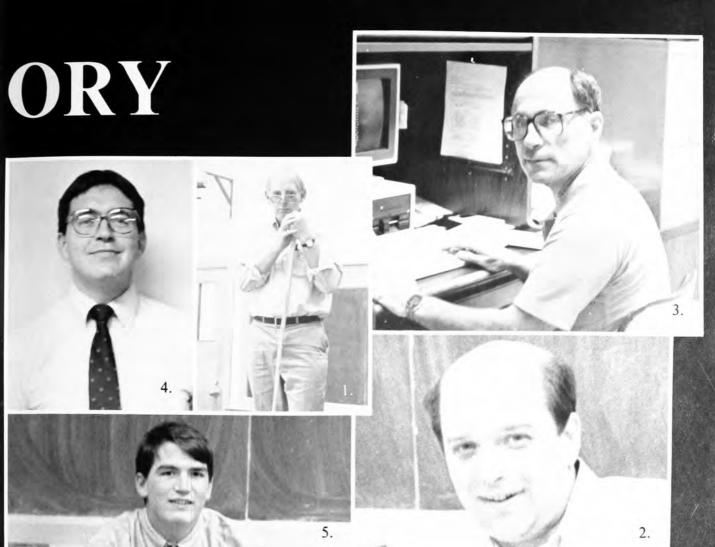

4. Mrs. Donaghy must have enjoyed her most relaxing year at P.C. in some time, as Dan is now away at school. Few students see much of her since she spends much of her time at the Timmons House. (No, she isn't in the Faculty room for most of the day as some may think.) It would be nice to see more of her on this side of the campus.

HIST

- 1. Only Mr. Marks could take a pie in the face from Todd Goulding and not retaliate. We wish him luck in the history department meetings, meetings which are overrun by administrators. P.P.: soccer players who kick for the football team.
- 2. James Ballengee has had a fairly successful year as the new kid on the block here at P.C. After coaching the cross country team to its State Championship, he tackled a more difficult task teaching AP Economics to disturbed seniors. He moonlights as the college counselor and resident Californian, and he specializes in inviting confused seniors into the "college suite." On a serious note, we are extremely indebted to him for getting to know us so quickly and helping us in the college frenzy.
- 3. Mrs. Kelley finally realized what school she should work for. She brings a new perspective to many parts of P.C.: the administration, the history department, and college counseling. She helped a lucky few into college, and hopefully her college advising list will grow in the future.
- 4. Miss O'Neill changed more than her name it's Mrs. Deitrich now, she drives a new red car, and she took over Mr. Burkhart's office incorporating it into the "college suite." Mr. Burkhart and his diligent yearbook staff do appreciate her generously sharing the refrigerator with us. As Mrs. Deitrich helps the seniors into their top choice colleges, we feel that the office is now being put to better use.
- 5. The Minnesota-California connection of Ms. Allson-Hatch brings a different perspective to P.C. With ventures in both the History and English departments, Ms. Allison-Hatch proves herself as a versatile teacher. (She professes that her heart is in History.) She also keeps herself busy as Head of the Upper School, but we all know that her attentions are focused on the senior class and ensuring that we have a memorable year.

1. Dr. Coleman has the second fewest troublemakers in the history department, for a good reason. His booming voice, devastating wit, and finess with the big stick he keeps by the blackboard are enough to handle the worst of delinquents. After a full day of teaching American and Russian History he can be found either honoing the clocutory skills of the debate team or filling the halls with bagpipe sound, er, music. FE: This isn't a democracy; it's a benevolent despotism! . . . (crash)

2. Mr. Bovee is the shining light of the middle school history department. Or maybe that's just a reflection. He puts up with the most teasing of any teacher in the school and still manages to admirably prepare students for the rigors of the dreaded upper school history teachers. When not teaching, Mr. Bovee can be found either presiding over Model United Nations' meetings or jetting off to some foreign place with a delegation for a party, um, conference. N: To be free of bald jokes.

3. Somehow, Mr. Brown orchestrates the entire schedule so that most of the time we are actually able to take the courses we sign up for. When the new trimester arrives, he is the most popular faculty member as the longest line forms outside his office (it's a good thing that there's a water fountain there). Mr. Brown even finds time to teach several European History sections.

4. Steer clear of Mr. Burkhart during a yearbook deadline, for during a yearbook deadline, Mr. Burkhart is much like a woman during PMS. Otherwise, on other days, Burky is the nicest guy in the PC neighborhood. He announces the basketball games, advises the senior class and even tests his cullinary skills by cooking hot dogs, hamburgers and chocolate chip cookies. His life is this school, and we appreciate his dedication to it.

5. Mr. Wilkins is located adjacent to Mr. Goulding in the baritone section of the Middle School. This is where future Upper School men learn how to master the lower octaves. We are also aware that Mr. Wilkins rides a mean bumper ear, so beware, 8th graders. A creative and fun teacher, Mr. Wilkins adds a great deal to the warm atmosphere of the Middle School.

average score is somewhere around a 37. But lucky for his students, Coop does not give final grades based solely on his numerical calculations. UF: In the language lab hanging out with his buddy, Ms. Sherif.

- 2. This year the new, improved Mr. Curry came back with a fuzzy mustache. Still teaching recaally iinterrreessting classes, the main focus for his students is trying to figure out whether his mustache is real or not. Even if the mustache isn't real, we're incredibly lucky that he didn't return to our favorite - Germantown Academy.
- 3. Ms. Taraborelli is back for her second year at P.C. An active member of the studentfaculty council, she is already demonstrating her commitment to the student body. Her lack of control over her eyebrows makes her a unique member of the faculty, and maybe next year Ms. Taraborelli will actually be able to get mad at someone.
- 4. When you hear the voice of Mr. Arts, you wonder in which language this polyglot is thinking. Sing along, some work, and some fun and subliminal messages are all a part of the "Arts" experience. When he accompanies the Charter Singers at the piano, Mr. Arts truly interprets the universal language.
- 5. Bahira Sherif is one of the nicest most even-tempered teachers in the school, she has to be - she co-teaches a class with Doc Coleman. Other than that masochistic quirk she's about the nicest teacher you could ask for. Just one question: exactly what kind of accent is that? FE: "Do you think I was born yesterday?"
- 7. Mr. Gallagher has been re-located yet again. We wonder why he is now hidden behind Mrs. White's headquarters; he must enjoy his privacy or lounging on Mrs. White's couch. In his spare time (between football practices) Mr. Gal tackles a few Spanish classes. No matter what he is doing he almost always has a smile on his face.

6. Latin isn't a dead language; in Mr. Jacques' classroom it's immortal. Mr. Jacques' abilities extend far beyond conjugating verbs and dia gramming iambic pentameter; he has also honed his charades skills - just ask any student who has stumbled over a vocabulary word. Being the entire Greek department as well, Mr. Jacques is up and running before most students are even out of bed, and unlike most Greek stu dents, he is never late.

THE ARTS

1. Known as "Grange" to all who have had the pleasure of studying under him, Mr. Granger always has time to answer each and every one of his students' questions. Who else could explain the use of his various "gizmachees" or why you "frazooled" your film, once he cuts through all the bull, that is. N: A free period.

2. Mrs. Cooper has brought new life to the middle school music program. She has instituted many new and popular programs. Coming from a long line of band directors, she has begun a middle school band. She has also has managed to recruit 42 sixth graders to sign up for private music lessons. A band will definitely be a welcome addition to PC, and we promise to come back for a concert or two.

3. Returning for his second year, the "other Mr. Brown" has made his mark on the school. Bringing not only another interesting mustache and a familiar last name into the P.C. art department, Mr. Brown brings sunshine to those he touches and into the otherwise dreary, dusty, dirty and depressing basement workshop which he occupies.

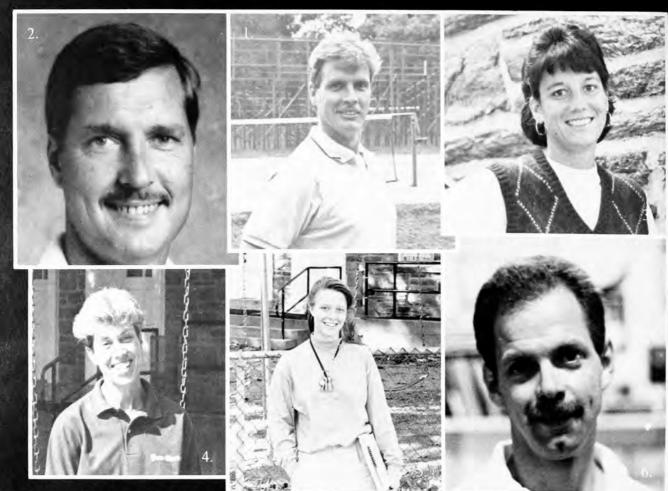

4. Mr. Singer's back braves the flying elay in his room "downstairs" as the third member of the all-powerful Penn Charter Art department. He lends his incredible talents in pottery, ceramics, paper mache and even closed-eye hand drawing to teaching students of all ages. Occasionally he even finds time to come upstairs to join civilization.

5. Mrs. Spadaro, the Phantom head of the art department, can be seen wandering the halls of the upper school from time to time. Only a slightly insane person would even consider teaching the lower school while simultaneously running the upper school art department. We wish her luck with all of her plans and hopefully she will begin to teach some courses in the upper school.

6. Miss Winn is Penn Charter's foremost authority on punishment. After all, she not only has music history classes to teach, but she also has to put up with the Middle School chorus, Quakers Dozen, and Charter Singers. Even through it all you can hear her cackling laughter echoing through the walls of her supposedly sound-proof room.

7. It's not that Ms. Cinoman just comes & goes as she pleases (she doesn't), but we have a hard time finding her because she puts in such late hours staging plays, musicals, and anything theatric (except for Smitty's outbursts). Thanks to her, the PC stage has never been more expansive.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

1. Although we all know that Mr. Gallagher is known for his blatant honesty when playing Pickleball, Mr. Mellor knows differently. In fact, Mr. Mellor has joined forces with Mrs. White to conspire against Mr. Gal on the pickleball courts. Mellor takes no prisoners. Even though he and Mrs. White are now pickleball partners, there is still some friction between the two because Mrs. White won the pickleball title. During DC's maternity leave, Mr. Mellor hopes to regain the title-we wish him the best of luck.

2. Does Mr. Erdmanis really drink all of the coffee that he carries around with him? He certainly doesn't seem even slightly jumpy. Maybe the peanuts have a calming effect. Lower schoolers under the military-style instruction of other nameless gym teachers must look foreward to more relaxing classes with Mr. Erdmantis.

3. Unlike her colleague Mr. Mellor, Mrs White does enforce the rules in gym class Excluding her rainbow-bright wardrobe, Mrs. White's pregnancy hasn't changed her one bit. She insists on playing flag football with her classes, and she even exposes herself to the corrupt pickleball player, Mr. Gallagher. In the spring she can be found coaching the girls' Varsity Lacrosse team with strong vocal chords through wind, sleet and fog.

4. Mrs. Griffin is the person we always see racing through the halls with a huge grin on her face. She is extremely loyal to P.C., considering that her kids go to Episcopal. (We'll have to work on this.) Mrs. Griffin also spends much of her time coaching the successful girls' tennis teams. We want to warn her that pretty soon she will have as many kilts as Mrs. White, thereby confusing the students.

5. Juggling life with Wilks with teaching and coaching swimming to people who hate getting into the pool keeps Ms. Jones busy. She had yet another "interesting" year with the water polo team (composed of lacrosse players, wrestlers and even a few swimmers). We wish her luck with all of the teams she coaches in the future. PP: the red Cross.

6. In the gym, training room or classroom, everyone needs Mr. Butler's words of wisdom. He readily gives out tape, sound advice, and for any miscellaneous occation, "Put some ice on it." (We know that the new turbo 4000 ice machine made his year.) When we don't heed Butler advice, we always find our way back to the training room where he must think. "I told you so."

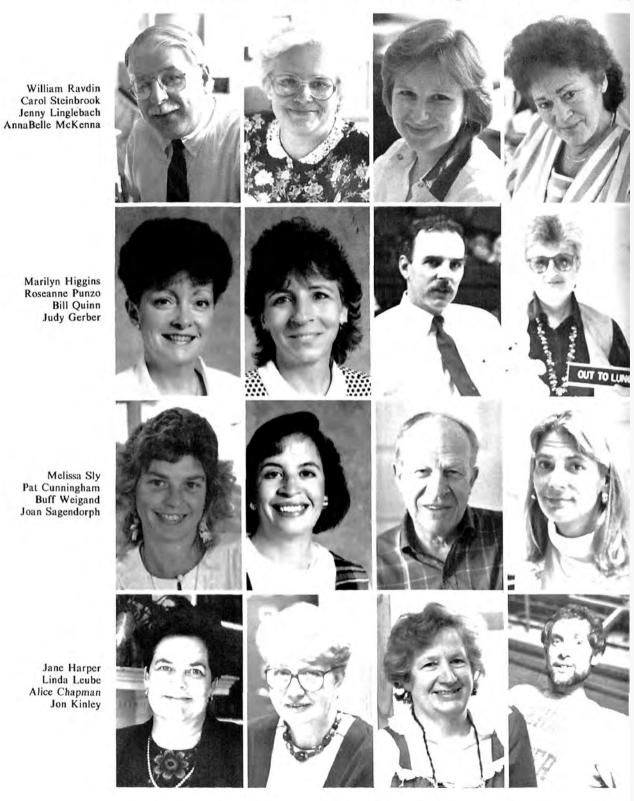

LIBRARY, SIXTH GRADE, & RELIGION

- 1. We wonder what Mr. Tompkins is really looking for with his middle school students on their archeological digs around campus. An energetic teacher, he certainly inspires his students. They don't seem to give him enough of a workout in class however. Not only does Mr. Tompkins coach at P.C., but he also has enough energy to play rugby on his time off.
- 2. We always wondered how Mr. Wenigmann kept his pleasant disposition, considering his "partners" in the sixth grade faculty: Charlie Brown & Mr. T. It's tough enough having to teach English & Latin to kids just finding out what it means to be middle schoolers. Maybe Mr. W. will get some Phillies tickets from the mayor to keep him smiling.
- 5. Mr. LaMotte's basement hide-away room is filled with more than just the aroma of today's lunch special. In addition to students grappling with their life philosophies, the room also hosts a crazy looking group of students known as the Travelling Minstrels. Mr. LaMotte is a dedicated member of the faculty who shares his thoughtful and generous nature with the entire community.

- 3. Dr. Barber does do a lot more than merely monitor the noise level in the library and kick out unruly students. Anyone who has struggled with a difficult term paper has appreciated Dr. Barber's expertise and willingness to help. He definitely knows where all of the books are.
- 4. If you see a TV/VCR cabinet moving down the hallway please get out of the way and hold the doors open. Mr. Uhlmann capably handles all of the school's electronic equipment-pushing televisions around is definitely not his specialty (although he manages fairly well). N: More members for the TV club.
- 6. Mr. Brown is perhaps PC's wildest teacher. The guitar playing, singing, tapdancing, swim coaching, math instructor has invested his energies into many areas of PC life. One day he may be singing with students for an assembly in the morning and then yelling send off times to swimmers that afternoon. But don't worry, Dude, he always has time to talk.

On October 28, 1980, the Overseers of the William Penn Charter School reached consensus to move the school toward coeducation. While Penn Charter's transition to an institution for both boys and girls was a departure from one long-standing tradition, it was simultaneously a continuation of another, even stronger tradition in the school's history.

During the sixties and early seventies, most single-sexed colleges and secondary schools were reevaluating their assumptions about their philosophies and curricula in this changing world. In particular, becoming coeducational seemed a change necessary to improve the quality of their schools.

Penn Charter was not immune to this movement and "on December 8, 1969, Overseer Richard Brown met with Wilbert Braxton (headmaster), Allan B. Brown, Oscar Jansson, Joseph Perrott, and Edward O. Shakespeare, to establish a procedure by which a definite and carefully considered recommendation for or against coeducation at Penn Charter could be made." The procedure agreed on was to create a committee of three persons different from the above who were charged with finding whether a single-sexed or coeducational student environment was more effective for the "intellectual, social, physical and spiritual education of students at Penn Charter." This committee surveyed the Penn Charter Community with an extensive questionnaire, interviewed students, teachers, administrators, parents, and alumni, visited several schools which were considering coeducation or had recently become coeducational, and reviewed the literature on coeducation.

Based on its findings, on February 16, 1971, the special committee on coeducation recommended to the Overseers that the William Penn Charter School become coeducational..

Our reasoning is based not only on our investigations-from which we find clear direction in the students' responses and especially in the staff's responses, and from which we find the opinions of parents and alumni too mixed to give clear direction (though change is more likely to generate resistance than is a decision to remain the same) - but also upon the experience of other institutions that have arrived at the same conclusion, and especially upon philosophical considerations consistent with the principle of the Society of Friends.

In 1981 Grace Wheeler, the Clerk of Overseers, wrote the following words in a letter to members of the Penn Charter Community announcing the school's decision to become coeducational:

We are determined to perpetuate the traditional strengths of the school and to make those elements an important part of the education of girls as well as boys. The sense of descipline within the school, the academic rigor, the concern for the individual, the belief in a strong program for the body as well as the mind...all of these elements are of high priority.

On May 27, 1980, after two years of study, [a second] committee recommended that for academic, social, and philosophical reasons, the Overseers should plan to gradually convert the school from a single-sexed to a coed school over a period of approximately ten years, provided that this could be done within the physical limitations of the present campus and the school's financial capabilities.

The Overseers, understanding the complexity of the challenge before them, relied on the wisdom of consensus, the Friends' decision-making process. In the fall of 1980 three large meetings were held. In addition, three smaller meetings were arranged to discuss specific issues of concern to a few individuals. On October 28, 1980, an historic consensus was reached for the William Penn Charter School to become a coeducational institution.

The Overseers acknowledged that Penn Charter was sending its graduates out into a different world in 1980 than the one confronted by the graduates of 1875. The interaction of boys and girls, men and women in the cloister and in the forum, was a parent of our modern society, a society increasingly based on experiences shared by men and women offering opportunities based on ability, not on gender. Aware of the Quaker principal that education was life, not a preparation for life, Penn Charter needed to provide an environment for boys and girls.

The issues of coeducation are, of course, larger than specific gender questions. What it means to be human; what it means to be an educated person; what it takes to find the teacher within; how to look for that of God in every person; how to be an individual as well as a member of a community- these are the key questions.

By asking these questions, Penn Charter members will always be seekers of truth, of knowledge, of good instruction, of moral and spiritual wisdom, of kinship, and of the fruits of artistic and athletic endeavors. These pursuits, which take place in a challenging and nurturing environment, instill in Penn Charter students and staff a sense of self worth and confidence.

"Deep in my heart that aches with repression,
And Strives with plentitude of bitter pain,
There lives a thought that clamors for expression,
And spends its undelivered force in vain.
What boots it that some other may have thought it?
The right of thoughts' expression is divine;
The price of pain I pay for it has bought it,
I care not who lays claim to it- it is mine!
And yet not mine until it be delivered;
The manner of its birth shall prove the test.

Eventually every team has a year of rebuilding. This season it was the soccer team's year to rebuild. The team, under the leadership of captains Charles Balsamo, Scott White, and Jason Berkowitz had a slow start. During a hard-fought tie against Chestnut Hill Academy, the team came together and from then on the team was playing a whole new game. Although the scoreboard did not show it, the team played an intense game on P.C.-G.A. Day, winning 2-1. On the other hand, the team was beseiged by injury. The loss of Scott White, John Wright, Chris Doerr, Steve Shin, and D.J. Hanzelik on and off, and then Todd Goulding, Brent Adams, and Dave Poppa who suffered serious injuries, gave the team a strong blow. The defense was especially hurt. This year's team was lead by Charles Balsamo (League MVP) and Steve Shin (Second Team All League) on offense. The inspiration of Scott White and Jason Berkowitz in the middle, and the real talent was in the defense. Jon Bach and D.J. Hanzelik played the outside while the tenacious road block of Todd Goulding and Anthony Balsamo covered the back. Good luck to next year's team, and to the seniors, thanks for making the team come together.

"Welcome back . . . Field Hockey is great!" The 1991 Field Hockey squad gained spirit and drive since last season. With a strong start, the expectations were high by mid-season. Two impressive wins came early, over Baldwin & Notre Dame, both Interac league games, which resulted in confidence heading into the rest of the league. However, scoring (or lack of it) proved to be the downfall, and four league losses frustrated the hopes of a strong finish. The back-breaker was the loss to Episcopal; a tie seemed assured until Episcopal pushed in a goal with 20 seconds left.

A strong defense kept PC in many games; sophomore Carly Lynch, who already has a strong reputation in the area, was again a tower of strength in goal. The defense was solidified by "The Steinbrook Bullet", "Bulldozer Bovee" and ferocious Megan Culp, along with substitute goalie Susan Bunch. On the front line, Catherine McGuckin charged the goal, while Cydney Irving and Megan Gallagher were substantial threats on the break. Anna Davis and Sue Burke played support with skill and determination.

The field hockey team faces a promising future with much strong young talent. For the first time, there are departing seniors, but the talented juniors are sure to provide the needed leadership.

The high expectations of the Cross Country team were finally fulfilled this year. Many believe the 1991 team was the most talented team in the school's history. Finishing off the season with a 9-1 record in dual meets, they easily captured the league title. Most importantly the team won the Pennsylvania Independent School State Championship for the first time. A number of factors contributed to this year's success, including Shawn Morgan's third consecutive Inter-Ac and State Individual Title. A powerful addition was the four time All-State runner Dan Kelley. Senior captain Jeff McCann rounded out the "trio" which finished first, second, and third in all but two dual meets. Following right behind were the freshmen "twin towers" Dan Hernandez and Mike James. Senior Jim Wiant had his most successful season. After the injury of Mike James it was John Zajkowski and Josh Stein who added great strength to the team. Grant Nichols, Ben Weinberg, and Brad Magarity brought up the rear with their undying devotion to the team.

The first meet of the season was against Germantown Friends where Penn Charter put six runners ahead of Germantown Friend's number one runner. A string of victories followed which included defeats of Academy of the New Church, Kiski, Valley Forge, Chestnut Hill, and Malvern. The team lost their only meet at Hill with a not so fresh Shawn Morgan and an injured Mike James. After victories over Episcopal and Haverford, the team was ready for the championship. Even in the freezing cold weather they remained indestructable, taking first with four runners receiving All League Honors. At Mercersburg, the team ran an inspired race to take the State Title, beating Hill School in the process. All-State Honors went to Shawn Morgan, Dan Kelley, and Jeff McCann. Despite the loss of Dan Kelly and Jeff McCann the future of the team looks promising. The return of Shawn Morgan, Mike James, and Danny Hernandez will ensure a strong 1992 season. Dale McMillian, Sanjeev Swami, and Chris Welton are greatly improving and will also enhance the team next season.

At the start of this year the Girls' Varsity Tennis Team was anticipating the return of several seniors and the arrival of some strong Middle School players. Unfortunately, no seniors returned, but two talented freshmen, Laurie Sykes and Megan Evans, were there to fill the void. The team was optimistic about moving out of its trial period in its first "real" year of league play and the team expected a much more competitive record than the 1-7 of the year before. Practice was changed this year to an all-inclusive J.V./Varsity practice in order to create a "family unit". It was this type of supportive atmosphere which was so instrumental in helping the team to achieve its goals. Tennis hoped to stay close in all of its matches and to win at least one more than last year. It faced some very tough opponents this season. It was the youngest team in the league consisting of only juniors and freshmen and many of the girls were competing against seniors and ranked players. Despite these odds, the tennis team finished with a much improved winning record of 6-5, and 4-3 in the Inter-Ac. The highlight of the season was defeating Episcopal to whom the team had lost 1-4 the previous year but every match played was exciting in some way. Erica Blumfield and Alissa Imperatore played a great match against Springside. Although they lost, they came back from an 0-6 first set to lose the second set in a close tiebreaker. This type of tenacity was characteristic of the team. Laurie Sykes and Andrea Koplove both lost their first sets to Springside but they came back to win in exciting 3-set matches. Against Shipley Adina Segal was down 1-4 in the first set but came back to win the match 6-4, 6-2. Alison and Megan Evans won the Friends Central match for the team in a nail-biting third set tie-breaker. This was the first of a series of three set matches for them. There is much potential for the tennis team next year with all of its players returning. It is sure to be a formidable opponent in the league next year.

The football Team had a fair season in 1991, finishing with a 4 - 4 overall record and a 2 - 2 Interac record. It was a strange season because the team experienced periods of encouraging success as well as disappointing failures.

Pre-season began with two scrimmages against William Penn from Delaware and Frankford. The scrimmages were beneficial for Charter, who improved steadily throughout the two weeks. The regular season started out well with two decisive wins against out-of-town teams, Kiski Prep from Pittsburgh and The Peddie School.

Then it was off to Valley Forge. An Early VF drive followed by a touchdown were the only points scored in the game. The Charter team, although defeated, was pleased with the defensive effort made in the game. P. C. endured two devastating injuries against Valley Forge: Bill Brightcliffe and Courtney Batts.

Despite the good start of the season Charter lost in the first Interac game against Haverford. The worst loss of the season was in the Hill game. After three losses the team came back with a strong victory at Episcopal making the Interac record 1 - 1. The following week the team suffered a crushing loss at Malvern. A strong victory over GA brought us to 2 - 2. The team was then tied for second place in the Interac giving P.C. a good start for the Heyward Cup.

The 1991 Water Polo team was a team that experienced a variety of successes and failures. The success was the pure ability to form a team and the failure was the result of the games. The team started the season off with a bad start, a 16-8 loss against Episcopal. The team rebounded in the second game to win its only game of the season against the Hill Junior Varsity team. The majority of the players were rookies, just looking to have fun. However, due to the great coaching ability of Shelley Jones the team was actually able to compete in their games.

The 1991 - 1992 swim team, led by coach Charlie Brown, was arguably the best team in Penn Charter history. The team finished the year with a record of eight wins and only one loss. Season highlights included wins against Hill and Salesianum as well as an exciting meet against GA. The PC swimmers won nine out of eleven events against GA, however their depth was too strong as they won the meet by the smallest margin in 21 years. At Easterns (Eastern Interscholastic Swimming Championship) the team swam strongly and overpowered GA to take fifth place. This was PC's best finish ever. The loss of six seniors to graduation will hurt next year; however, rising seniors Jason Webb and Ed Yeager as well as rising sophomores Atiba Wade, Danny Hernandez, and Brian Walters will provide a solid foundation for next year's team.

Girls Varsity Swimming had an unexpected triumph this year. Losing only to the great Germantown Academy team, P. C. finished second in the Interac. Defeating Interac teams Baldwin, Agnes Irwin (by at least 60 points) the team was filled with confidence. The hardest meet of the season, against Episcopal, created great anxiety for the team. Every swimmer was important and best times were required for this meet. Records were broken and best times were achieved and surprisingly P.C. surpassed Episcopal by 33 points. The next close meet was against the Mount but the team stayed focused and pulled off a 110 to 73 victory. Despite our lose to G.A. the team had a successful undefeated season. Eight girls of this year's swimmers and two divers qualified for the Eastern Interscholastics meet. Senior Meg VanSciver placed sixteenth and freshman Anna Goodwin placed ninth in the diving competition. The three relays placed tenth overall. Medley relay: Alison Evans, Cinda Merrill, Jeanine Wiley, and Alison Goodner; Sprint relay: Catherine McGuckin, Caroline Carr, Jeannine Wiley, and Cinda Merrill;

Free relay: Catherine McGuckin, Steph Wilson, Jen Baran, and Alison Goodner. Alison Goodner also placed eighth in the 200 free and eleventh in the 500 free. As a whole P.C. placed eighth at Easterns. This result was impressive compared to last year's finish. The team bids farewell to the six seniors: Kim Noonan, Anna Davis, Pippa Liebert, Cara Caputo, Catherine McGuckin, Meg VanSciver. and, of course, the incredible manager, Steph Berg. They will be greatly missed. The whole team wishes to thank Ms. Glasscott and good luck to next year's team.

"You better believe we come to play," so reads the Penn Charter Basketball Motto. This motto was a description of this year's season. After losing senior captain Devron Owens to a knee injury which cut his all-star career short, the team picked up the slack. Coach Brian McMahon helped the team to push onward and to look forward to a successful season. Tim Krug was also a main part of the team, scoring his 1000th point of his high school career and being elected coMVP. Supporting Tim in his adventure was a young team full of potential. The two starting sophomores, Brian and Mark, added to the machine with their excellent ball handling and shooting skills. These two look forward to a very successful future. Another sophomore Steve Goodrich, contributed with his above average height and his multitude of rebounds and layups. Junior starter Courtney Batts used his lightening quickness to have many steals and unexpected fast breaks on opponents. This team of five was supported by an even more diverse cast of characters. Seniors Mike McDonald and

Dan Kelley used their age and aura to demonstrate leadership in practice and hustle in play. Junior Bill Brightcliffe was able to remove all opponents from his lane with his size and killer instinct. Back-up guard Brian Corbett used his calm composure on the court to help control the team when the other Brian needed a break. The JV team consisted of all the non-starters and four other sophomores. Although not receiving varsity recognition, they all deserve credit for their hard work and dedication to help improve themselves and the team.

The Girls Basketball Team had a great season this year their first year in the Inter-Ac. The final overall record was 11-7. The team finished fourth in the Inter-Ac with a record of 5-3. The team is looking forward to an even better season next year with only four seniors leaving. The seniors are Rachel Steinbrook, Stephanie Bovee, Sarah LaVan and Jessica Bender. Next year the team's roster will include a number of returning players. Those returning include juniors Megan Gallagher and Gwo Lee.

Sophomore returning players include Megan Miller, Sue Burke, Carly Lynch, and Bridgitte Greenle. Megan Evans will be the only freshman to return. Some strong players from the junior varsity team will add to the talent, such as Robyn Gardner, Jen Gallagher, and Meg Drumm. The Junior Varsity team also had an overall successful season with a 7-1 Inter-Ac record. The Junior Varsity team placed a strong second place in the Inter-Ac. Led by captains Rachel Steinbrook and Megan Gallagher, the Varsity had many good showings against some tough teams. Megan Miller was elected to the All-Tournament team at the Germantown Community Tournament early in the season. Megan was also one of the team's high scorers throughout the season. Megan Evans and Megan Gallagher were also great contributors to the team's victories. The team did suffer some disappointing losses but also celebrated some great wins and a great season.

The 1991-1992 Wrestling year was a rebuilding year for the team. With the loss of seven starters to graduation (and other means) the squad attempted to rebound. Things did not look good in the beginning but after the first Inter-Ac meet against Germantown Academy the team gelled into a special kind of bond. Led by senior captains Matt Donnelly and Joe Malizia the team seemed to find the to finish a respectable fourth in the Inter-Ac league. Seniors Jim Wiant and Peter Bomberger along with the two senior captains, served as a strong foundation for the team. The senior wrestlers would like to wish next year's team, Howie, Ray, Tory, and especially Hitch and Erd, the best of luck.

Central-go home... Kießki pinning Dadonna to beat G.A. by one... Everett's first varsity letter-not... your hair is fine, Fish... There's more to this sport than just headlocks... Colin and Rob-you look beautiful today... Central-Go home... Howie-A.K.A. Clutch-Levy (but you still smell)... To Debbie and Meg-KWEIF... Dara vs. Malvern and Valley Forge... Ric Flair? What a fix... Central-Go home... I hope I get to wrestle Miles... If you can't beat 'em bite 'em ... Matt's collection of boogers throughout the room... the weigh in room doesn't smell like Wintergreen-just Mint... Meg and Jay sparking up flamers at Nationals... Best of luck to Tory Ray and the rest of the team in 1992-1993... P.S.-always make sure there is at least one Catholic captain to keep the Hail Mary alive at P.C.

This year has been a difficult year for the Penn Charter varsity Squash Team. The competition was extremely tough yet the team did manage to win a number of their matches. Two of these wins came against The Princeton Day School and another two against Germantown Friends School. This year's team was led by no seniors which means the team has great potential for the future. The team was led by captain Mike Levy who was also first seed for the team. Freshmen Laurie Sykes and Stephanie Teaford switched on and off between second and third seeds throughout the season. Outside of the Penn Charter team, Laurie Sykes and Stephanie Teaford won a number of victories in junior tournaments. The team would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. West for a great season.

Thank you to friends of the Penn Charter Squash Team . . . As we went to press, the PC Players were preparing to perform Bye, Bye Birdie, the rock 'n' roll musical which is a tribute to some obscure crooner. Here we see Aliza Goren & Eric Beitchman rehearsing a scene. Based on the sounds drifting down the hall from the rehearsals, we have no doubt that this performance will be up to the standards of recent shows. It also marks the stage finale for long-time dramatic stalwarts Susan Bunch, Will Wright, Eric Beitchman, Meg Kaplan, John Trager & Josh Stein. May they enjoy many 'curtain calls' for years to come.

PERFORMANCES

To The Class of 1992:

The trip has been long and even difficult at times, but now we've reached our destination.

Our arrival serves as an historic moment in time. Our graduation marks the end of a three hundred and two year tradition and the beginning of a new one. Our class is said to be one of the strongest classes to have passed through Penn Charter. We are artists. musicians, intellectuals and athletes; we represent the new Penn Charter type. Although we didn't realize this until now, it is an honor to be part of this institution and community. We hope that the following classes will continue to maintain the standard of excellence for which this school is known.

We hope this project captures the memories of our days at PC. Best of Luck to the Class of 1992! We will meet again further down the road.

"There is a direct route to our happiness.
There is a road we can travel that leads to fulfillment and joy, to the very best that life offers. We know the way."
-Anonymous

The graduation of our class signifies the completion of a thirteen-year project for the William Penn Charter School. We have been the pioneers of the construction of a new road, not built over the old roadbed but picking up where it left off. The 1992 Class Record has sought to use the theme of "new construction" to illustrate the new path for the school. It has not been smooth, nor did we expect it to be, but we have done our part to make the new tradition of coeducation at P.C. as strong, vibrant and enduring as all of our school's previous traditions. We want our legacy at Penn Charter to be recognized as a landmark in the school's history. We thank Overseers and OPC's for getting the project started, the administration for its leadership, and the faculty for their support. This new road will lead P.C. to a bright future, and we gladly accept the honor of wearing the hard hats as the inaugural "construction crew."

The end of Desert Storm marked the beginning of new problems for millions of people. The Kurds fled north when rebels failed to oust Sadam Hussein. Thousands died despite aid from more than twenty countries. Oil fires also devastated the area. Hundreds of unprepared firefighters were met by flames shooting some thirty yards in the air. Due to the help of other nations, the fires were extinguished at a rate of four per day.

The Middle East and the Soviet Union were not the only countries that were subjected to change. South Africa was home to some very "radical" changes. President F. W. de Klerk, African National Congress president Nelson Mandella, and Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi signed a pact that paved the way for peace in their country.

As the world around us was drasticly changing, so was the world within our borders. The 1991 World Series proved to one of the most exciting in the history of the sport. Two teams came from last place to win their respective divisions, but the Braves and the Twins saved the best game for last. The Twins pulled through, but there really was no loser.

No one will ever forget those who died this year, especially the man responsible for stories about cats and hats and other magical creatures - Dr. Seuss.

This year marked the end of an era and the begining of a new one on the Supreme Court. Liberal views departed with Thurgood Marshall replaced by the conservative views of Clarence Thomas, but this was not without scandal. Anita Hill, a law professor, brought up sexual harassment charges against Thomas. After, "much debate over who was right and who was wrong - Clarence Thomas, Anita Hill, the system itself," the U.S. Senate, in its closest confirmation vote ever, put Thomas on the Court.

The opening of Ronald Regan's library marked the first time in history that the five living presidents met in one spot. Presidents Carter, Nixon, Ford, Regan, and Bush met at the opening of the library. Regan said, "The judgment of history is left to you, the people."

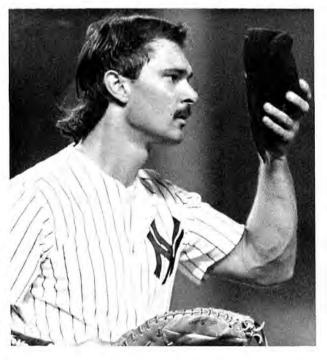

Political events were not the only events of the past year. On July 11, 1991, the moon passed in front of the sun turning light into darkness for thousands of viewers. A 160 mile wide strip, from the Baja Peninsula to Hawaii, of darkness covered the earth. This was the first time that astronomers were able to view an eclipse in full.

The one event of the last year that none of us will ever forget occured on November 7, 1991. Magic Johnson, the NBA player who entertained us all for over a decade, retired from basketball. "Because of the HIV virus I have attained, I will announce my retirement from the Lakers today...I'm going to go on, I'm going to beat it and I'm going to have fun." He captivated us once again in the 1991-1992 NBA All Star game, scoring the game-winning three-pointer for the West.

The past year was filled with events that changed our lives and our world. Let the pictures speak for themselves.

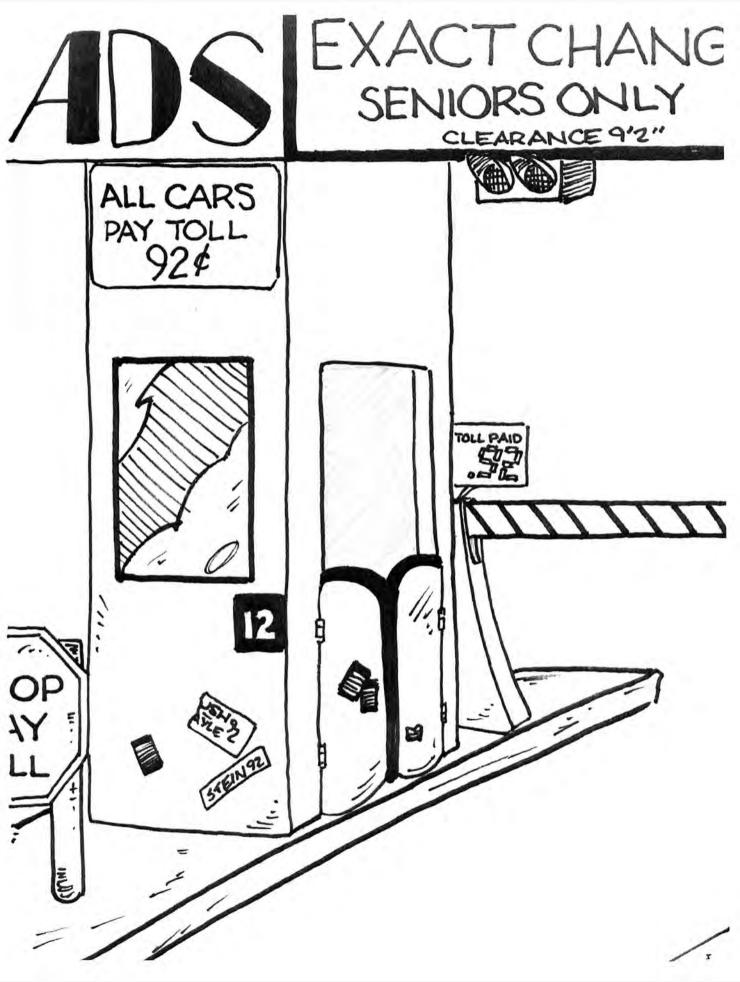

"The only guide to a man is his conscience; the only shield to his memory is the rectitude and sincerity of his actions. It is very imprudent to walk through life without this shield... but with (it), however the Fates may play, we march always in the ranks of honour."

— Winston S. Churchill

"All the World's A Stage,
And all the men and women merely players;
They have their exits and their entrances;
And one man in his time plays many parts"
Shakespeare As You Like It

Eric, you played your role at Penn Charter to perfection: Your attention to detail legendary. You rehearsed your lines with Spartan determination. Your delivery was effortless. The "Reviews" were "Rave"!

As the curtain falls on your Penn Charter grand finale; bask in the limelight, heed the applause, take your bows. Seize the moment!

Remain steadfast in your resolve to meet the challenges of your Command Performance. Never lose sight of the qualities and concepts which transported you to this pinnacle: love your parents, be a good friend, trust your inclinations, reveal your emotions, and always believe in yourself!

The Reviews are out already, even before the curtain rises. The critics are heralding your performance as a "smash success"!.

Love Always, Mom & Dad Rob,

Life may bring a few more frowns your way. If it does, remember your family, your faith, your friends. Always believe in yourself. Work hard, have fun, never give up, but, please, learn how to use an alarm clock!

You went for the biggest & boldest book ever, wanting it to be the best, of course. I hope it has been fun (on balance), and I hope you are happy with the results. I appreciate your commitment, creativity, and patience; you could have quit or lost hope, but you didn't. I have a great deal of respect for both of you, and will always remember you with fondness. For, if nothing else, you inspired me to add this infernal machine to the Class Record! God bless you,

Burky

Good morning yesterday, You wake up and time has slipped away. And suddenly it's hard to find The memories you left behind, Remember, do you remember?

The laughter and the tears, The shadows of misty yesteryears. The good times and the bad you've seen And all the others in between, Remember, do you remember the times of your life?

Here comes the setting sun,
The seasons are passing one by one.
So gather moments while you may,
Collect the dreams you dream today,
Remember, will you remember the times of your life?

There's little to be sure of But we will last forever For now we know the pure love We feel when we're together There is some day we will part We will not say die 'long as you are in my heart We'll never say goodbye

DESIDERATA

GO PLACIDLY AMID THE NOISE & HASTE, AND REMEMBER WHAT PEACE THERE MAY BE IN SILENCE. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull & ignorant; they too have their story. * Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain & bitter. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans. Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs, for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals, and everywhere life is full of heroism. * Be yourself. Especially do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity & disenchantment it is perennial as the grass. * Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself. * You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. * Therefore, be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep pace with your soul. * With all its sham, drudgery, and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.

being blessed with St. Jude's oil by Shannon McDonough. Another was giving Cydney Irving a mask to wear so that she would intimidate the other teams to the point that they would crumble under the pressure. That one didn't work too well. The team also met with Mr. Perrott so that they would be stronger psychologically. The next day they whooped Notre Dame, but it started raining and Notre Dame started crying. So they played them again and, unfortunately, their psychological power had died and P.C. lost. Towards the end of the season, the team

Baldwin 10 8 met with a lot of injuries, the weather never seemed quite right, and Tyler was always crying on the sideline. P.C. lost four out of their last six Inter-Ac games. The team ended the season with a big win against Baldwin and a final record of 9-4. Captains Catherine McGuckin and Rachel Steinbrook now leave the team in the hands of next year's captains, Megan Gallagher, Cydney Irving and Mary Vizza. May they accept the power bestowed upon them and use it wisely very spiritual and emotional season this year. They could be found bonding and performing rituals almost every day of the season. The season began with high hopes of an Inter-Ac championship. The team came out strong with a record of 7-

Shawnee High School in New Jersey,

who after the game gave the team food

Following the graduation of nearly its entire starting line-up, the boys lacrosse team had a lot of work ahead of it. The only returning varsity players were Matt Donnelly, Pete McDonough, Lex Colley, Mark Morze and John Garvey. With the addition of Dan Kelley (who finally realized which school was the best), some strong JV players like Chris Doerr, Pete Bomberger, and Andrew Rentschler and some relative newcomers such as Chuck Balsamo, Anthony Balsamo and Joe Malizia, the 1992 team looked better than anyone had expected. Early season wins over Ridley and Conestoga helped to reinforce this idea and to build the team's confidence. Their string of victories continued until their first Inter-Ac game against Haverford, which ended in a loss. They continued to play hard, but they just couldn't manage to come together to defeat any of the Inter-Ac teams. Towards the end of the season, they experienced a second wind and played an excellent game against Germantown Academy, defeating the rival Patriots. Another close game was against the defending state champs, Episcopal Academy. P.C. was ahead until the fourth quarter when Episcopal rallied back and scored six goals for a win. This year was a rebuilding year, according to assistant coach Joe Donnelly. After losing so many starters, the team had to basically start from scratch. Donnelly predicts that in three or four years, the team will be a real powerhouse in the league.

Although many said it would never happen, Mrs. White finally agreed to a girls softball team at P.C. thanks to the efforts of Sarah LaVan and Jess Bender. Dr. Don Mittica, along with Burky, took on the task of turning a group of inexperienced girls into competent ballplayers. The toughest challenge that the team faced was to adjust to the mentality of a fast-pitch game. Under the leadership of captain Sarah LaVan, the team was able to do this and finished with a respectable record of 4 - 6. They played a ten-game schedule with wins coming against Springside, Friends Central and Abington Friends. The biggest win came against Merion Mercy, an experienced team from the competitive Catholic League. P.C. stopped a late rally by Mercy to win the game by one run in the seventh inning. Individual stats from the season were impressive. Meg Evans recorded five home runs, seventeen RBI's and eleven hits. Chris Manley led the team in batting average and on-base percentage and had eleven hits as well. Chris and Robyn Gardner led the team with seven walks. Gardner had only one strikeout in 28 at bats and had the team's only triple. Lisa Sposato and Katie Eckert each had two doubles and Eckert drove in sixteen runs. Overall, they have enjoyed a promising first season. The team's defense improved tremendously and their hitting proved to be a strong point. The whole team showed improvement and dedication that helped to make the first year a success. Next year they look forward to continued success and growth, but they'll miss Jessi & Sarah. Now if we can only get Burky to dress right...

The 1992 baseball season was once again a roller-coaster that fortunately finished on the up side. The season started off slow as five games were cancelled in the first two weeks due to the weather. The team had a .500 recordentering Inter-Ac League competition. It started with a big win at Haverford and a heartbreaking one-run loss to Malvern. The league favorite, GA, was next, and PC won that easily, 5-1. The next three games were ones which the team would like to forget. They were tough losses, and it was time to bounce back. Bouncing back was an understatement. The team won its last four league games for its best league record in four years at 6-4 and a tie for second place. The team was anchored by steller defense and pitching. Pitchers John McLaughlin and Mike Samuel carried the hurling duties throughout the season. The right side of the infield was consistantly solid due to co-captains Andy Atkins and Courtney Batts. The left side was handled by newcomers Rich DiMarco and Frank Maletta. The outfield was led by Mike Sposato and Josh Weigand, while catcher Trevor O'Driscoll was steady behind the plate. Nick Mahrt and Mike Koplove provided great bats off the bench. The future of this team looks good (Atkins is the only player graduating). Good luck next year, and try to build on what was a very good season.

front: P. Liebert, P. Schoettler, S. Goodrich, J. Kaufman back: Mr. Linton, M. Goldman, M. McDonald, G, Nichols, P. Smartt, D. Moran, D. Kim missing: S. Shin

As Mr. Linton said at the spring banquet this year, the golf team didn't have a very successful season. Finishing 4-10 overall, 3-7 in the Inter-Ac, the record was a far cry from the previous championship title in '91. Strangely enough, the team did have some fine highlights during the season. Seventh grader Mike Goldman shot a 38 in one of the early matches. Wins this year came over GA, two over CHA, and one over Archbishop Carroll. After destroying GA on their own course on a Monday, the team was beaten handily by the same team on Tuesday. This showed both the team's ability to shine with some excellence and to fall with disgust. In its best match, the golf team beat Archbishop Carroll at Huntington Valley. Carroll wound up winning the Catholic League title. Led by seniors Mike McDonald, Pete Schoettler, David Moran and Pippa Liebert, along with sophomores Justin Kaufman and Steve Goodrich, the team was able to manage fourth place in the Inter-Ac. Some of the strongest play was displayed by Justin Kaufman, so the team can look forward to good play from him in the next two years. Steve Goodrich and Mike Goldman have also shown fine ability, so they can develop into good players with some work on their games. The future doesn't look too bad for the golf team. One thing missing from the golf team next year is their long-time dedicated coach, Mr. Linton. In 46 years of coaching, he has had 21 Inter-Ac championships and great success. His true spirit for the game is what his players remember about him most, and they are all very grateful and feel privileged to have played for him.

INTERAC CHAMPIONS

Once again the Penn Charter Track Team experienced a tremendously successful season clinching the league title for the seventh consecutive year. Led by senior captains Jeff "Ace" McCann, Jon Bach, and junior Shawn Morgan, the largest track team in school history went undefeated in the Inter-Ac, again. The season began with victories over GA, and Akiba (who showed up uninvited, but still lost), and progressed through the Inter-Ac. The team had a strong showing at the Father Judge Relays with the Distance Relay team of McCann, McMillian, Bach, and Morgan taking a second place medal, and junior Tory olshansky shattered his own school record with a jump of 13'6" in the pole vault to take a second place medal. McCann, McMillian, Bach and Morgan combined again to take a gold medal in the Penn Relays Inter-Ac mile relay, and qualified for the City Championship race. Three Penn Charter athletes took home not one, but two gold medals at Inter-Ac Champs, to earn All-League Honors: Jeff McCann in the 800 and 400 meter events, Shawn Morgan in the 1200 and 3200 meter events, and "Air" Dale McMillian in the 110 meter high hurdles and the 300 meter intermediate hurdles events. Other strong contributers were seniors Aaron Kesselheim, John Trager, Josh Stein and Cara Caputo, who led P.C. Track to the first women's track meet in P.C. history. Stronger underclassmen included junior Bill Brightcliffe and sophomore Brandon Shepherdson in sprints; juniors Ed Kim, Theo Caviness and sophomore Ed Morris in jumps; sophomores Jason Winig in the 400 and 800 meter, Jon Kittredge in the pole vault and Mark Eastburn in the hurdles; and freshmen Mike James, Brian Walls, and Jared Kesselheim in distance, shot put and hurdles, respectively. With all this talent, Mr. Bonnie's children ought to be happy for some time.

This year's Tennis team fared well, posting an 8-6 record (6-4 in the Inter-Ac) and a third place finish in the league. Despite two frustrating losses to Haverford School, they swept CHA, GA, and Malvern. Strong play was provided by #1 Bill Gullan, #2 Eric Pressman, and the typically strong doubles teams of Guy Abramovitz and Adam Abel, Scott White and Eric Ross, and Bjorn Miller and Rob Jaffe. Gullan and White were the co-captains, and they ably led the team through strenuous practices. After Mike Levy went down with a season-ending ankle injury, Rob Jaffe was promoted from JV and performed very well. At Inter-Ac Champs, all three doubles teams defeated the tennis team's nemesis, Episcopal Academy, in the finals. This year's Seniors wish next year's captains (Guy and Bjorn) the best of luck next season.

Arts Fest '92 was once again a rousing success at Penn Charter. Students throughout the entire school proudly displayed their wondrous works of art to fellow classmates. parents and teachers for a twelve day period starting April 13. The library was converted into a temporary art gallery for the talented students to display their creative pieces. Many guests were invited to participate in the celebration, such as pioneer storyteller Robin Moore and art lecturer Laura Lenet. This year's theme focused on Eastern Cultures and their influences on art. The theme was vividly depicted by a culminating parade in which members of the Upper and Middle Schools witness Lower School students marching around the track with replicas of Chinese dragons worn on their heads. In conjunction with the parade, an authentic steel drum band performed reggae music for the enthused crowd at hand. By the time the final song was performed, all were in a festive mood. In early May, Ms. Cinoman and her thespians put on a rendition of "Our Town". The festival once again proved that the arts program is alive and thriving at PC.

Mrs. Deitrich is taking next fall trimester off to spend time with her baby, who was born on July 10, after "the heavens opened up" (so to speak). Mrs. D. and Norm call him Jake, but we don't know why. We wish her the best of luck although we will greatly miss > her cute waddling as she walks down the hall.

Upper School English and French teacher, Mrs. Sawyer, is leaving Penn Charter after five years. As of now, she is undecided about her plans for the future. She will either be teaching English in France or pursuing her master's degree in English Literature at Villanova University. She says that she will greatly miss her students and she can After nearly half a century, Mr. Linton has become a seemingly permanent fixture in the community. But as all good things must come to an end, Mr. Linton is retiring after this year. Nevertheless, we will probably still see him around administering odd jobs like proctoring AP exams or substituting for a math class, if he can pencil us in between windsurfing and bungee jumping. His plans for next year are nebulous as of now. They may include a trip to Ireland to play golf wih his son. Mr. Linton says that what he has loved most was working with the students, but writing comments is a chore that won't be missed. We would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Linton for his untiring dedication to the school and community and we wish him the best of luck in future endeavours.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodburn, after having spent four years at Penn Charter will be heading South, "like the birds in winter," Mrs. Woodburn jokes, Mrs. Woodburn, second grade teacher, says that she will greatly miss the Lower School faculty and > children. Mr. Woodburn, biology teacher, says that he will miss the bonds he's formed with several students and the ample funds of the Science Department.

Lower School Secretary Mrs. Cranney is leaving PC tioning of the Lower School. Always there to help a teacher out, to deliver messages, to run a pretzel sale or to put a bandaid on a finger, Mrs. Cranney plans to stay active next year by working part time, doing volunteer work, or playing with her grandchildren. She will miss Ms. Costello and all of "her kids". We wish her luck in whatever she does and we will certainly miss her warm smiles.

Third grade teacher Mrs. Baum is leaving Penn Charter to get married. We wish her the best of luck with her marriage, and we thank her for all the years of devotion that she gave to her students.

Mrs. Murphy is leaving the Upper School office to take a job in the "real world". She has been great as a cushion against the harsh blows of administrators, and a good friend to many of us.

Fourth grade teacher Mrs. Phelps will be leaving Penn Charter after 17 years to become the executive director of both PAPAS and PAIS. She said that after 17 years, it is difficult to pinpoint exactly what she'll miss most about Penn Charter, but that it is most likely the "fellowship" of the community.

The elusive Mr. Burke is the man behind the scenes who makes sure that most of us get here on time. As superintendent of the grounds and transportation, sees to it that the grass is cut, the bushes are trimmed and the routes are planned perfectly. Born in the Burke house in 1921, Mr. Burke has been associated with PC since birth. He has worked at PC since 1950 and says that in that time he has made many friends whom he will miss. He plans to stay in the

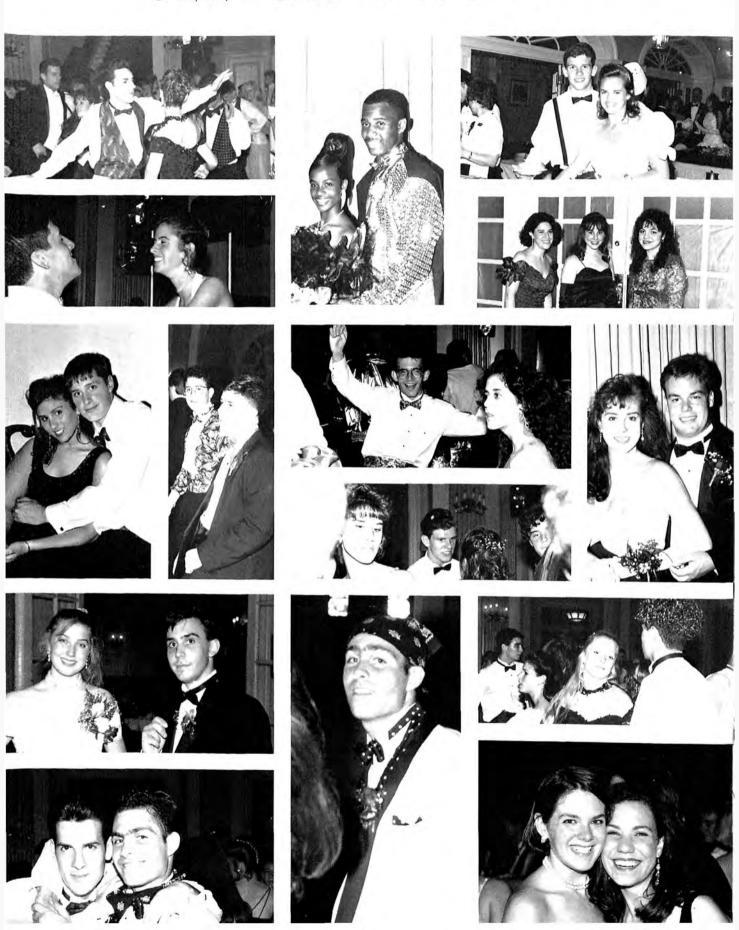

Burke house and hopes that he and his wife Helen will receive an invitation to the Balls' Christmas party.

SENIOR PROM

Commencement

"Penn Charter's motto-'Good instruction is better than riches' - has taken a definite meaning for me. Good instruction is our riches. Good instruction goes far beyond the classroom...it is life's lessons that we take from our parents and then from everyone else who comes in our path. Penn Charter's resources are our riches." Charles Balsamo

"I realize how great is was to have experienced a different environment. Penn Charter was a stepping stone for an even more diverse community in college. And if, four or five years down the road, I could encourage any youth, of any race, to attend a school like Penn Charter, I would do so."

Devron Owens

This spring the class, 93 students, participated in a consensus process to choose a fourth speaker for today. I supported and believed in it, but I did harbor anxieties as to whether it could really work. That meeting brought out all of the best in every member of the class and in the community as a whole. Successes such as that were born out of the caring and affection that people here have for those around them. Anna Davis

In this year's graduating class one can find the diversity seen throughout the school. When I speak of diversity I am not speaking of ethnic or religious attiliation. I am speaking of the paths each of us chose, be they extracurricular activities, academics, socializing or college choices."

Stephanie Berg

The celebration of Penn Charter's successful transition to coeducation was an event not even a few raindrops could dampen. For the first time, a graduating class held its own family Meeting for Worship and through consensus offered to faculty their own nominees for Commencement speaker. In more ways than one, the Class of '92 has established a new tradition & built a new road.
