The Class of 1997 ...

... a Work in Progress

DEDICATION

Don Jacques

If teachers were paid by the hour, Mr. Don Jacques could have retired long ago. He arrives every day before dawn to prepare for his Greek classes, and is often one of the last to leave. The late hours are often due to coaching a team or working with the Student-Faculty or Honor Councils; few people know that those subtle but ubiquitous signs all over the walls at the dances telling us when we may leave and where we may not sit are the results of Mr. Jacques' prudent attention to detail. Like so many teachers, he brings to these extracurricular responsibilities the same commitment to the students as he does to his classes.

If he is tired of the jokes about Latin's demise, he does not let on. In fact, he may be one of the best kept secrets in the Language Department. Students who have had the opportunity to take one of his courses are some of the luckiest among us. Mr. Jacques knows how to spice up the classes with everything from "Latin Baseball" to videotaped soliloquies. Students who have had Mr. Jacques for Latin have an advantage over the rest thanks to the insight gained into etymology and their exposure to Classic literature.

Although relatively few students have enjoyed a class with Mr. Jacques, he is widely known to the student body through his extensive service to the school. Council members know him for his patient, prudent guidance through the consensus process. Anyone who has worked with him can attest to his dry wit and ability to make an arduous task lighter with humor and a smile. He has organized food drives for needy families at Thanksgiving (whatever happened to the Turkey Trot?) and is behind the scenes of every Council project. He is a regular supporter of all school plays, concerts and sporting events; he rarely misses an opportunity to congratulate and thank a student or colleague for a job well done.

Don Jacques is a caring professional, one whom we all would do well to emulate. As we look for ways to build a sense of community, people like Don Jacques stand out as examples of civility, decorum, dedication to both the school and the people in the school, and selflessness. The Class of 1997 is pleased to recognize this superlative teacher, leader, and friend with a long-overdue Class Record dedication. Salve!

His bark is much worse than his bite.

To the Class of 1997:

It is a pleasure to write this statement to you as graduation approaches. I have particular affection for this class since I taught a group of you as ninth graders. It has been a special pleasure for me to watch the growth in the class over the past four years. This has been a class with strong leadership and a spirited sense of its identity. Many class members have contributed to the classroom, to extracurricular activities, and to the vocal ministry in meeting for worship. You move forward with our blessings and our continuing affection.

It seems appropriate that you have an historical theme for your yearbook since the lessons of history are important ones as we look to the future. We are all, in essence, pattern seekers. We look for meaning in what we do and for some sense of continuity. We apply those patterns as we look to new situations. The study of history is of tremendous relevance in defining those patterns. The events and themes of history are vital to your understanding of our own society. One of our problems as a nation stems from a lack of understanding of our heritage. The academic study of history provides a necessary perspective on that heritage. A more limited historical view of your time at Penn Charter can supply a helpful awareness of the role of change in our lives.

There have been significant changes in the school during your years in the upper school. I remember well a discussion with members of the class four years ago in which there was general concern about the role of the arts at Penn Charter. Now, four years later the arts are a more vital part of the life of the school. The instrumental program involves a significant number of middle and upper school students, the choral program has had an infusion of energy and quality, the music electives are heavily subscribed, and the dramatics program is engaging more and more students in quality productions. The visual art program has been enhanced by new facilities. In addition, the dining hall and expanded computer space have been welcomed improvements. The field house has been a tremendous addition to the athletic and physical education programs. If you look back over these changes, a number of themes emerge that are worthy of consideration as you graduate.

First is the role of hard work in each of these changes. In almost every area, some group of people has decided that the goals are important and that they are willing to work diligently to achieve them. That applies to teaching music as well as raising money for the field house. Second, all of these accomplishments are the result of someone's vision. Without that vision, it would be easy to get off track. Third, in each case, thoughtful, intellectual analysis was the basis for action. We hope that the analytical skills you have learned at Penn Charter will serve you well as you define your own vision.

Finally, I hope that each of you finds the spiritual component in your life and uses moments of reflection to enhance that sense of spirituality. That core will help to sustain you as you seek patterns in your own history as well as look to the changes that will inevitably be part of your future. We trust that the Quaker beliefs of the school and the shared experience of meeting for worship will be of value to class members throughout your lives.

To the Reader:

I wish I could tell you exactly what our theme represents, but it's really a question of interpretation. Personally, I see it as a comparison of society's advancements throughout history to the advancements that we seniors have had to make throughout our high school careers. Both have been slow and strenuous, but very much worth it. However you may interpret our theme, I hope you enjoy the book because your $30 is absolutely nonrefundable.

Special Thanks To:

Davor Photography, Mr. Frank Wilson, Mrs. Ball, Mrs. Harper, Crosby Brown, Jeff Bender, Chris Rodgers, Kathleen Cunningham, and of course J.B., without whom there would be no yearbook. Actually, there would be, but the editors would have less stress, lots of perks, and no abundance of freshly baked goods.

A Personal Thanks To: Mr. Singer, Jill Bean, Sharif, Janine, Kiea, and Christine, for all of their great advice.

With the arrival of new coach Mark Franek, the players on the boys '96-'97 soccer team had many questions about their season. However, the new coach was impressive and the players were strong and ready to work. The team grew accustomed to the coach's training sessions, running 5-7 miles at least once a week, during the preseason. With a good physical base the team started to work on the game of soccer. Meetings and tough practices brought the team closer together.

Through the trying moments during the season the seniors led the team: Gerry Greenleaf as a top scorer, Claude Reifsnnyder in the middle, with Brad Wilson leading the team in assists. Junior Dan Ryan was the top scorer.

The Quakers started to train harder and to focus on perfecting the basic skills. Following the lead of the seniors and captains Ben Cake and Greenleaf, the younger players on the team stepped up their game.

The Quakers started playing with a lot of class, a concept that Coach Franek instilled as the most important part of winning. The team went through a great season with pride and hard work. They had early, key victories in the Inter-Ac, including Malvern, G.A and CHA. The second round of Inter-Ac games didn't have the breaks as they came up with three loses.

However, through it all they stayed together. People talk about what it means to be on a team and to come together under pressure. The guys on this team came out of the season with something more than what they started with; this team is a true example of a unit that stayed together through the tough times and the pressure situations. This group of individuals, of all ages, worked together during the whole season, right down to the double overtime game on November 9, 1996.

In its third year, the girls soccer team certainly did not weaken its schedule. Coaches Missy Coyne, Marjorie Kelly and Crosby Brown wouldn't have it. Beginning with several non-league scrimmages, the girls found themselves in complete chaos, due to a long year (or in some cases a lifetime) without any soccer. After some hardships on and off the field, the team began to work together.

Working as a team their record began to improve. Senior Lisa Culnan and sophomore Jen Albright both had impressive and successful seasons up front: shooting a couple of "field goals," but overall managing to support the team in scoring. An eighth grader, Steph Miller, showed undeniable talent in goal. She will have a bright future. Jamie Ruth's character and skill were the rock of the defense. Sophomore Emily Manning's determination, with Melissa Schuck's and Lisa Christy's hustle, intensified the games.

This year's three graduating seniors, Lisa Culnan, Kate Houston and Jill Bean, all played on the freshman boys soccer team in their first year of upper school. They worked to get the girls team together and couldn't be more satisfied with the results (except, maybe the lack of "good balls" [passes]).

To the team: We've had some awesome time with you characters. When things got rough we really pulled together. We plan to return for a couple of games to see how well you hold up without us (not to mention a couple of things we have to say to some of the opposing benches). When we say we'll miss you all, we mean all of you, believe it or not.

To the coaches: We really bonded towards the end. We only wish we'd had more than one season with your enthusiastic and influential guidance.

This season was a strange one for the Quakers. It started out with promise, but the tide turned as the season grew older. The team was led by the two captains, Angelo Vicoli and Brendan Moore. Seniors Angelo Vicoli and Hap Gotteher held the offensive line together and allowed quarterback Moore to be the top passer in the city. A deserved player of the week, Brendan Moore also was the leading pass interceptor with six returns for touchdowns.

A team cannot survive solely on passing; that is when the team turned to tailback Pat Larkin. Larkin, the Dawg, led the team in rushing and was a force to be reckoned with in the Inter-Ac. By Pat Larkin's side stood John Daly, a junior, who hopes to step into the role Larkin played this year. Another promising young player is kick returner James Berry, who had a great season this year.

The team boasted a surplus of experience including Chris Rodgers, Justin Carey, Donnie Guglielmucci, Peter Hayes, and Terrence Griswold. Earning All League were Larkin, Vicoli, Gottehrer, and Moore. Earning All League Honorable Mention were seniors Jon Hayne, Colin McDonough and Bob Montague. Underclassmen who earned All League honors were Pat Sasse and John Daly. Next year's team looks promising but to defend the Inter-Ac Championship they will have to replace the experience of this year's squad.

Coach Brian McCloskey had an impressive season leading his 13 seniors to a share of the league title. McCloskey was also inducted into the Ursinus College Hall of Fame, where as a quarterback he set career records with the skills he learned at Penn Charter where he played quarterback.

In its third year with Coach Alexander, the team definitely showed improvement. This year's team was quite young, holding only five seniors and two juniors. Despite its youth the team worked hard through a packed schedule. They benefited from this ambitious schedule, in that the younger players grew accustomed to the game that Coach Alexander taught and the upperclassmen had a chance to work on their skills. The early games on astroturf not only brought the team together to work as a unit, but it also allowed the team to work on their skills on a smoother surface.

The girls got their first look at each other and their games at the Old Dominion Team Camp. The camp taught the Quakers a lot about each other and the game of field hockey. The skills that were gained at the Old Dominion Team Camp were displayed throughout the season. This young team will be returning to the camp next year which will give them a good basis for strong seasons in the years to come.

The Inter-Ac was tough, but all the members of the team played up, led by their captains Virginia Brown, Brooke DiMarco and Steph Bolno. This team had a lot of long head-to-head games, usually in the rain, and somehow the odds were rarely with them. Freshman Meg Ryan showed improvement throughout the season and will be a great assets and strong base for the team next year. The team did, however, go out on a high note, beating Baldwin 1-0 with an early goal by Katie Park, the team's big scorer. PC/GA Day was a tough game to bring it together, especially missing key defender Katie Hayes. It was a tough loss for the seniors, but the rest are ready for the rivalry next year. This was a great year for the field hockey team and with Coach Alexander and the great youth on the team, they can only improve.

This year's cross country team was the largest in the school's history, having at one point over 35 runners show up. The team looked to compensate for the loss of Inter-Ac champion Johnny Wybar with a pack of talented young runners. The varsity seven were centered around the leadership of returning seniors Seth Wechsler, John Ethier, and Captain Deepak Rao, as well as returning Junior Matt Kelley. These athletes guided the many newcomers on the team, including varsity standouts Dallas Alexander and freshman Sean Taylor, who also consistently finished in the top seven.

The team started the season with two encouraging performances, first by finishing third at the Fleet Feet invitational in Virginia, then defeating a strong GFS team by one point. Plagued by injuries and illnesses throughout the season, Charter fell short in their next few dual meets, losing to both Malvern and While not the most talented of the league's Cross Country teams, the Charter team was successful in creating a strong sense of family team unity. Also, they succeeded in developing many of the young and upcoming runners who will lead the team in the next few years. Rookie runner Dallas Alexander showed a strong performance through his dedication to the team. With Matt Kelley and other veterans leading the way, next year's team promises to succeed.

The team had an encouraging start to their season with a large turnout of runners. The season continued on a high note with a core of dedicated runners and an encouraging coach. The team had a dual meet record of five and three with key wins over GA and Episcopal. In the meets that they entered they placed well, always proving to provide tough competition. In the Fleet Feet Invitational, in Reston, Virginia, the team finished third. In the Pennsylvania State Championship they finished sixth, with a strong showing by Eden Silverstein who was named second team all state. The girls tennis team had a great season this year. Captains Kate Keller and Jennie Utsinger led the team to many victories. New team addition Tracey Gemmill came to the team from Springside School and proved to be a vital addition to the team at the first singles position. Kate Ginty and Alice Affleck brought spirit to the team. Plagued with illness and misfortune, such as Maria Pagnanelli's broken ankle and Alice Affleck's pneumonia, the team was forced to become closer and, together, fought through a tough season.

The team owes much of its success to their priceless coach, Cheryl Irving. The season started off strong with wins against Shipley, Notre Dame and Springside. They lost grueling matches against Episcopal, Agnes Irwin and Germantown Academy, in real nail biters. The lady Quakers were ready to take on the Patriots and came out fighting on PC/GA Day. The win came down to Alice Affleck's match. Back from her illness, Affleck proved a fighter and pulled through to give the Quakers the only team victory at PC/GA Day.

Overall the team had a very strong and successful season with a record of 5-3-0. The team has a lot of depth and a lot of youth and thus a bright future ahead of them.

To the team from the captains:

We have never been on a team which was as close as ours was this season. Although we worked alone out on the court, we always stayed together as a team and supported each other. The compassion and spirit each of you has is something we will never forget. Our team has so much potential and the way we come together makes us unbeatable on and off the courts. We wish you the best of luck in the coming years and will never forget the times we have shared. Thanks for a great season!

The 1996-1997 basketball team got off to one of its fastest and best starts in recent memory. The team's record was posted at 5-0 heading into a game against a tough Roman Catholic team. The squad lost in a heartbreaker that was the catalyst for a four game losing streak. Led by a strong core of seniors, Chris Rodgers, Mike Soens, and Claude Reifsnyder, the Quakers kept together with constant hard work in practice and unrelenting intensity on the court. The captains for this year were Rodgers, Soens, and outstanding sophomore guard Aaron Carter. Carter was the team's momentum grabber and outstanding playmaker. More often than not, on the court, he would be seen as a blur, running through the lane and hitting an off balance shot with defenders draped all over him.

In the team's first game of league play against Episcopal the Quakers shot poorly and went on to lose a heartbreaker to the "Churchmen" for the second straight year. Unfortunately, this loss was not enough to get the team fired up and they went on to finish the season 5-5. In this span, a game that embodied the heart and effort of this team occurred: Germantown Academy at P.C. The Patriots, in the opening quarter, ran to a twenty point lead. But in the second period, the Quakers showed that they would not give up. The team held G.A. to only two points in this quarter and decreased the lead at halftime to two points. Although the Quakers showed great heart in this effort, their moral victory did not appear in the win column.

Next year's team looks to be strong. Returning are Carter, freshman point guard Brett Storm, junior and outstanding leaper Dallas Alexander, as well as the bench captain Tom "Super Sub" Pomerink. With these and other returning stars, next year's squad looks to have a promising season.

This year, despite multiple injuries, the girls basketball team had a great season. Led by captain Allison MacCullough and juniors Melissa Schuck and Colleen Lynch, the Quakers finished 14-10 overall, with a 4-3 league record.

Tournaments proved a source of great success for the team this year. They finished first in the Germantown Community tournament, where Colleen Lynch and Melissa Schuck were named to the all-tournament team. In the Cardinal Dougherty tournament Penn Charter finished second out of eighteen teams. At the Cardinal Dougherty Tournament, Straup and Schuck were named to the all tournament team once again. In the Christmas tournament the team finished third, led by captain Allison MacCullough who achieved all-tournament team status.

The highlight of the season occurred in the final week of play when the team played local powerhouse and Interac leader Germantown Academy. Great defense and strong desire made it possible for the Quakers to come within only two points of defeating the lady Patriots, who were the fourth ranked team in Southeastern Pennsylvania. The final game of the season against Shipley was another representation of the great season the girls basketball team had, ending the season on a high note.

The team would like to thank Coach Lynch for coming in on such short notice and coaching them to a great season.

This year's squash team was the most talented squad in recent memory. Arthur Whitman, the number one seed and co-captain, was ranked in the top ten in U.S. competition. Ziggy, his brother, was number two in his national age division. The third Whitman, Nano, who was also ranked high in his division, played three. At four was co-captain Pete Withstandley, the other team member to be competitive nationally. Greg Park, the fourteen year old eighth grade phenom, was the number one player in the country in his age bracket. Cecil Rogers played sixth, with Matt Stone rounding out the top seven.

There were high hopes going into the season. CHA and Episcopal also had exceptional teams, but for the first time in a long time Penn Charter looked to be able to compete for the top spot in the Interac.

The season looked promising as P.C. swept through December. At 9-0, things looked bright going into the home stretch. But fortune was not with our valiant team. Arthur suffered a pulled quad at Nationals, and then a sprained ankle at a subsequent tournament. Ziggy then developed a strained shoulder in his racket arm, and was prevented from contributing.

The season ended with disappointment. At winter's end, the season was more debacle than success, due in large part to the unlucky injuries to two of the Whitmans. This may have been the last time all three brothers will be teammates, and it was frustrating to see this season end as it did.

Still, Greg Park went undefeated at his number five spot, and looks to improve dramatically over the summer. Ziggy also is returning, along with next year's captain Nano and a slew of other determined competitors. The league thins out considerably next year, and we may reap the harvest of an Interac championship, if the winds blow the injuries away.

The girls squash ladder was filled by many levels of play. This year's ladder was virtually identical to last year's with the exception of key additions Taznim Beg and Jane Affleck. The team was led by strong veteran players: Virginia Brown, Lindsay Coleman, and Alice Affleck. These three stars held the top three positions on the ladder respectively. While the season was tough, these three players were helpful to the team both on and off the court. On the court they showed skill and competitive drive, while off the court they were forthcoming with support for their less experienced teammates. The team was coached throughout the season by Mrs. Coleman who had plenty of help from Virginia, Lindsay, and Alice as well as her youngest daughter, Virginia.

Although hopes for this season were high, the squad suffered a mid season loss of Emily Coleman, a key contributor to the team's success, to a knee injury. This loss left the team in a tight spot. They were left wondering who would fill the talented young player's shoes. Ensuing matches against Agnes Irwin, Springside, and Episcopal showed Emily's importance to the team. They won a very close match against Agnes Irwin but lost convincingly to Springside and Episcopal. Highlights for the season included a sweep of Agnes Irwin and a defeat of Shipley in the last match of the season. This team has many talented, hardworking players, who will have a strong season next year!

After losing five Easterns-caliber swimmers to graduation, while gaining only two freshmen and one junior, the Penn Charter swim team looked rather small and insubstantial. The season was plagued by injury. Before the season began Captain Scott Wasko was diagnosed with an ear condition that would keep him out of the water until late January. Soon before the team's first meet against Westtown, Andrew Evans came down with pneumonia, and Marshall Roslyn was sidelined with an injured shoulder. With three of the team's top four swimmers out, the rest of the team had to pull up the slack. Captain Ken Wallace came through for the team in the butterfly and freestyle events, while the team's sophomores, Peyton Wallace, Tom Griffin, and Mark Hecker, made their valuable contributions to the meet. Still the team suffered a difficult loss.

The team's spirit was revived when Wasko was allowed back in the water after a successful ear operation. But with Wasko's arrival the team suffered another loss. Evans missed the last few weeks of practices because of pneumonia.

The final meet was IAAA champs. This meet was one of the clear high points of the year. Countless best times were set here as the team swam its best meet. Second place finishes were recorded by Mark Hecker in the 500 yard freestyle, Ken Wallace in the 50 free, and Scott Wasko in the 100 backstroke. Freshman Brian Cash swam an excellent 200 free, while Marshall Roslyn shaved seconds off his best time in the 100 breaststroke. The team sent three relays and four individuals to Easterns, one of the fastest high school swim meets in the country.

Next year the boys swim team, led by Evans and Roslyn, looks to have a successful season as the underclassmen become formidable swimmers.

The girls varsity swim team for 1996-97, as expected, had a strong season this year. The team placed third in the Interac behind national powerhouses Germantown Academy and Episcopal. The team was at a disadvantage in that they lost two of their fastest swimmers to graduation. Although this seemed to be a setback at the start of the season, the team persevered and maintained its reputation as one of the stronger teams in the east.

At the start of the season the team faced Mount Saint Joseph's Academy. This was the same team that was overlooked by last year's squad. Then, the Mount surprised the Quakers and the team had to struggle to tie a very deep opponent. This year there would be no surprises. Charter was ready this time but still came out of the meet with a less than comfortable margin of victory. The win lifted a weight off of the Quaker's shoulders and was a testament to the

This year's team found continued success in an end of the year meet: Easterns Swimming Championships. Led by Junior Giana Natali, and sophomore Megan Walters, the girls 200 yard freestyle relay finished fourth as did their 400 yard freestyle relay. Also swimming in those relays were sophomore Katie Park and sixth grader Rachel Ahrenhold. Giana and Megan finished high in individual events in addition to their success in the relays. Due to their strong finishes, the team ended their season on a high note with a fifth place overall finish at Easterns, one of their best ever. Captain Kathleen Cunningham, the sole senior female swimmer this year, leaves the team behind in good hands. It would appear that the girls varsity swim team will continue its winning ways in the future.

We're not there yet, even though the 1996-97 team earned five team wins, one forfeit win, and one tournament win. For the first time in a number of years, the team has succeeded in filling out all thirteen varsity spots. Last year's team fielded only ten kids. This year's held twenty-five. We've attained our first heavyweight since Ed Kiefski, our first win against Valley Forge this decade, and our very first Friends Tournament title.

With only eight kids returning from last year's team, much of our practice time was spent in teaching the basics. The Wednesday before the Friends Tourney, Penn Charter wrestling held its first Red Flag Day in a number of years. A Red Flag Day is ninety minutes of constant motion on a wrestling mat. No breaks, no TO's, and certainly no backing out, we completed our Red Flag Day with flying colors. That Friday we defeated CHA 48-14, woke up at six-o'clock the next morning and traveled back to Westtown. By the end of the day we were kissing trophies and cutting ribbons. Winning was not our accomplishment: we had finished 35.5 points ahead of the 2nd Place Westtown team. Team members were now suggesting that we hold one Red Flag Day per week.

With a farewell to our two-year captain and two-year MVP, Peter Hayes, we will miss the one wrestler in our lineup (aside from Sean Taylor) on whom we could always count for a pin. Next year's team will continue to improve, though as our coaches have reminded us all season: "We're not there yet."

The Insanity of Mary Girard

The fall play this year, performed on December 7 and 8, was a drama in one act by Lanie Robertson, The Insanity of Mary Girard. It told the story of Mary Girard, the wife of Philadelphia's own Steven Girard. Steven Girard is well known as one of this city's greatest philanthropists in the late eighteenth century, but the play tells a different story. The curtain opens on the Pennsylvania Hospital, an insane asylum, with Mary seated center stage in a restraining chair. She has been committed to the asylum by her husband for treatment of her "insanity", but over the course of the play it becomes apparent that any pathology is Steven's, and Mary's imprisonment is an enormous and incomprehensible result of Steven's cruelty.

The setting is one night in 1790, where Mary confronts the people and events that placed her in the basement of Pennsylvania Hospital. Mary visits her past in dreamlike sequences in which she meets the people she desires to question about her imprisonment by demanding they be brought to the cell by the Furies. These clairvoyant characters swirl within her mind (and about the stage) as she explores the nature of the crime against her. The Furies are Mary's alter egos that act as her guides through her explorations of the past, present & future. The Furies are composites of one character, each one speaking partial sentences, the thought of one continued by another Fury. Once in the cell, the people of Mary's past are not conscious of having been brought to the cell, but exist in a non-real world of their own, only there to answer Mary's inquiries.

Mary was played superlatively by senior Rachel Elfenbein, who embraced the role with intense emotion. She was complemented by a quintet of excellent actresses as the Furies: freshman Clarie Mason, sophomores Jennifer Abt, Mariana Tretiak, Jesika Khadivi, and senior Jennie Utsinger. Other supporting roles were played by seniors Aaron Cohen (Mr. Phillips) and Miki Rehavi (Mrs. Hatcher), junior Mark Kormes (The Warder), and sophomore Anne Hassler (Polly Kenton). Senior Arthur Whitman played the role of Steven Girard.

The play received respectable audiences for both shows, leaving all who came to watch in a state of disbelief at the atrocity being analyzed on stage and shock at Mary's condition. Mrs. Eva Kay Noone, the director, presented a unique and tension-filled interpretation of the script. On Saturday night there was a question and answer period after the play, in which the audience members were invited to discuss issues that arose on stage with cast members. "It was a unique opportunity to see firsthand how your performance can affect the audience. It is interesting to hear how the audience views your interpretation of the role," said Arthur Whitman after the question and answer session.

"The Insanity of Mary Girard" was as successful a production as Penn Charter has staged over the last few years, and the drama department can only improve as new actors continue to swell the cast lists and are motivated to find the stage.

The Warder (Kormes) explains to Mary (Elfenbein) about her new home at the asylum

Mary cries out to God that she will fight her fate

Steven Girard (Whitman) tells Mr. Phillips (Cohen) that Mary will be kept at the asylum

WINTER HOLIDAY CONCERT

On December 17, the annual Upper School Winter Concert welcomed in the holiday season. Charter Singers, Quakers Dozen, the Symphonic Band and the String Ensemble played to a packed Assembly Room filled with alumni, friends, and family.

Leading with a beautiful version of Pachelbel's Kanon followed by Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring and Merle Isaac's Brandenburg Concerto, No. 5 was the String Ensemble, in its first year under the direction of Donna Cooper. The Charter Singers followed under the direction of the Philadelphia Boys Choir Associate Director Joseph Fitzmartin, with festive songs such as Gloria and All is Well. Quakers Dozen, a group of thirteen singers who are selected from the Charter Singers group, added other holiday numbers with a rich, a capella sound. The Symphonic Band, under the direction of Steve Stouffer, completed an impressive concert with four compositions. The highlight of the evening occurred in the final song in which both Charter Singers and the Symphonic Band combined their talents for the "Hallelujah Chorus."

This was an important step in the development of the Penn Charter Performing Arts department. In recent years, several key additions have been made to this department in order to allow for the arts at Penn Charter to evolve. Stouffer came to P.C. only three years ago, to help a strengthening group continue to develop as a band. It was quite obvious from this concert that he is ahead of schedule. Likewise, Fitzmartin has proven to be a worthy investment in Charter's future, for if this concert is a proving ground for the new director, he has shown that he has truly "come to play." Though the Penn Charter auditorium is a far cry away from Carnegie Hall, where one of Fitzmartin's own compositions was performed, "Fitz" has found a new home among the musicians of Penn Charter.

The talent of P.C. students, which has been realized because of important additions to the performing arts faculty, produced a marvelous 1996 Holiday Concert. A standing ovation at the completion of the performance truly acknowledged the new direction that the choral groups and the bands are taking.

110TH ANNUAL PENN CHARTER / G.A. DAY

A SHADOW ON OUR FACES

It was a shadow on our faces. A shadow of Lady Luck with her back to us. She stood the whole day, favoring the tennis team, while the rest of the Penn Charter athletes drained themselves of all they had. Charter fought through long battles and tough games that mesmerized the spectators and defined the game for which every coach prepared his or her team.

The soccer team, fenced in by spectators, battled Lady Luck just as they had all season. It was a long and tedious battle on which even Cecil Roger's mohawk could not shine a ray of light. The cheers of the opposing sides grew louder as each team put another goal on the scoreboard. With the score at 2-2 spectators stopped chatting with old friends and catching up on gossip to watch as a tie game went into two overtimes; the fans' every breath hung on the movements of the twenty-two athletes. The sound of "two" seemed a recurring theme throughout the game: twenty-two players, two overtimes, too little, too late.

At field hockey and by the tennis courts as well, the cheers and sighs of the Penn Charter fans and athletes could be heard. Having lay in the shadow of Lady Luck all season, the field hockey team tried to achieve the same result as their first meeting with

G.A., a victory over the Patriots. Unfortunately, the team could not click on the rainy, muddy, Saturday morning.

Another Quaker team was hard at work to find victory in their tennis match against the Patriots. In a tie at three matches apiece, the deciding match fell to junior Alice Affleck. She clinched the victory for the Quakers with a superb final set. However, the tennis team was the only squad to hold the attention of The Lady and to shine through for the Quakers on that gray day.

Encouraged by the excited fans and their intense cheers, the young girls soccer team pushed themselves and each other against top ranked G.A. The girls did not earn a win for the books, but they won within themselves and as a team, by "playing up" through much of the game.

Through the fields weaved the cross country teams. Deepak Rao, Matt Kelley and Eden Silverstein caught the eye of Lady Luck as they ran past the tennis team. Rao and Silverstein won their individual races for the Quakers while Kelley finished a strong fifth.

the fine races by these runners were not enough as the Quakers lost another pair of contests and Her shadow grew longer.

With the day's record at 4-1-1 in Germantown Academy's favor, the Quaker and Patriot gladiators took the field as the final battle began. The fans moved into the bleachers surrounding the GA football field with the Quakers' cheers from years gone by still echoing, counting seventeen straight victories in the nation's oldest continuous scholastic rivalry. The final battle that would be remembered from this day, by Quakers and Patriots alike, saw Lady Luck move to GA's side in the second half. The loss of key player Pat Larkin, a called back touchdown and a missed attempt at a game-winning field goal sealed the football victory for the Germantown Academy Patriots and a share of the Inter-Ac title for the Quakers.

Any competitor needs more than Lady Luck. On each of those fields and in each Quaker athlete there was determination and a great deal of heart. No one gave up; luck or no luck it simply was not Penn Charter's day. Throughout the day, the Penn Charter students and alumni stuck by their athletes. With wonderful cheers and spirited fans, the Penn Charter community showed their support through the tough battles that the Quaker athletes faced throughout the day.

On this day the spectators were a ray of light piercing the shadow of Lady Luck that kept the P. C. athletes digging deeper. Although G.A. won this day, 110 years of Penn Charter victories will not be forgotten. No matter how loud or rowdy they cheer, or how joyful their celebrations, Germantown Academy will never have the depth and spirit that Penn Charter creates for its athletes and students.

WINTER MUSICAL

The upper school musical, Little Shop of Horrors, held on February 21 and 22, proved to be a complete success as the cast performed to full houses on both nights. Little Shop is set in Mushnik's Skid Row Florist Shop. The musical opens in a very depressing setting as The Skid Row Florist is not making any money and sales-girl Audrey is being abused by her sadistic dentist boyfriend, Orin. However, luck changes as sales clerk Seymour reveals a strange and interesting plant which he has recently purchased. With "Audrey Two" in the window, business suddenly starts to soar. The unknown species of plant brings fame and fortune to the Skid Row Florist as it continues to grow, but Audrey Two's growth will only continue if it is fed human blood. Proceeding to kill every main character in the play, the diabolical plant begins a sinister path toward world conquest.

Under the auspices of director Eva Kay Noone and first year music director Joe Fitzmartin, the cast of the musical did a tremendous job. The nerdy orphan florist Seymour was played by junior Michael Canino, with fellow junior Jason Min acting as the bitter and selfish Mushnik. Also a junior, Kim Zerpa starred as the sensitive yet abused Audrey, helping to keep the audience, filled with many young children watching, constantly laughing and captivated. Senior Arthur Whitman provided a comically scary, bellowing voice for the plant while his brother, junior Nano Whitman, portrayed the vulgar, sadistic dentist Orin.

GRACE CORNELIUS SPEAKS ABOUT WOMEN IN SPORTS

With our guest were senior captains: (front) Brooke DiMarco, Kate Houstoun, Kathleen Cunningham; (back) Lisa Culnan, Virginia Brown, Ms. Cornelius, Sam Wascow, Allison MacCullough, and Kate Keller

This year we bade a fond farewell to Penn Charter's resident kick boxing, kung-fu fighting, ninja, samurai warrior, soldier, security guard. Moving on to greener pastures, or rather sending people to greener pastures, Barry Walton gave up tracking down the mischievous kids who kept breaking into our cars to send people to Bermuda and get a lot more days off. So many days off, in fact, that many people don't even realize that he left P.C. in the middle of November. So we say goodbye to a friend and martial arts expert who was always good for a smile and a head lock.

English

In days of old, the nights were cold
And books were rare indeed;
Now all we hear from the English peers:
A call to “read, read, read.”

The English Department

Ann Gaillard

Erin Purcell

Joseph Perrott

Ralph West

Department Chair Ann Gaillard's there
To make sure all goes well;
So Sophocles and Euripides
We study with Ms. Purcell.

Though moving slow he's still Big Joe
Perrott can “psych” us out;
For Falkner fans Ralph West's the man
His “aaahh yeessss” leaves no doubt.

English

Raphael, "The School of Athens"

The Bard's the word, his sonnets heard
When Huntington's not rappelling;
The middle school was more than cool
When we had Cheryl Irving.

Liz Crockett

Mark Franek

Singing her way through hectic school days
Liz Crockett will not panic;
Rookie of the Year? Let's have a cheer
For new soccer coach Mark Franek.

Fred Huntington

Cheryl Irving

Earl J. Ball III

Stephen A. Bonnie

It's most effective to take the elective
Taught by the boss, Dr. Ball;
Runners fear the worst every March First
When Mr. Bonnie puts out the call.

History

The History Department

I think that I shall never see
A course as rough as History;
These teachers all "been there, done that,"
We can not call their classes flat.

Chairman Marks, not Karl, but Ed.
Believes the past is far from dead;
With Bill Kashatus that's a fact,
Penn & Fox are part of his act.

Ed Marks

Bill Kashatus

Jim Ballengee

Nancy Kelley

A distance runner has virtual knowledge
Mr. Ballengee will find that perfect college;
If Current Events are in your belly
You can always chat with Dr. Kelley.

History

Da Vinci, L., "The Last Supper"

Cassandra Aldridge rocks in 8 and 7;
Is middle school a teacher's heaven?
Charlie Erwin digs veggies and jazz
He brings his peers much needed pizzaz.

Cassandra Aldridge

Charlie Erwin

Allan Brown

John Burkhardt

Allan Brown changes courses patiently:
Schedules are made by such as he;
Softball and yearbook are quite a vocation,
But curmudgeon Burkhardt should take a vacation.

In a department filled with characters and brains
Doc Coleman might be the one who reigns;
Poems are writ by fools, you see,
But these folks are living History.

Jack Coleman

Language

The Language Department

Palabras, mots, and Wörten command our attention,
Now foreign language deserves a mention:
La Professora Zamora keeps a watchful eye,
Making sure Charter's languages will never die.

Marta Zamora

Amy Tarallo

Bill Gallagher

Rookie de las linguas, Amy Tarallo,
Teaches Spanish to all who can ride a caballo;
Bill Gallagher and his infamous pate,
Makes el baloncesto pull its weight.

John Arts

Jean Taraborelli

In Latin and French we have Arts,
He is the monsieur who can play all parts;
If ever a word in Spanish is questioned,
Jean Taraborelli's name is sure to be mentioned.

Language

Caravaggio, M., "The Calling of St. Matthew"

Don Jacques

Bahira Sherif

Latin and Greek: while not commonly used,
Jacques makes sure they are never abused;
Madame Sherif commands two languages of love,
Her Français and Deutsch float, like a dove.

"Children!" Richard Smith cries into the air,
"Conjugate those verbs or I'll lose my hair!"
Laura Williams demands videos mejores,
Cultivating students like beautiful flores.

Richard Smith

Laura Williams

Mathematics

Numbers, numbers everywhere,
and fractals do abound;
Without our graphing calculators,
This department could not go 'round.

The Math Department

Bob Gordon

Devra Eskin

Bob Gordon, ever calculating,
Rhymes the greatest rap;
When whirling Devra Eskin rules,
Who would dare to nap?

"Hieeeeey!" The ninja doth appear,
Bruce MacCullough clears the path;
"Ganas" is Bill Goulding's cry,
To bring kids back to math.

Bruce MacCullough

Bill Goulding

Mathematics

Counting downs and yards to go
Keep Brian McCloskey phat;
While Chuck Hitschler guides his students,
In the class and on the mat.

Brian McCloskey

Chuck Hitschler

Elizabeth Flemming

Nancy Donaghy

Hurdling towards the finish line,
Liz Flemming guides the way;
From Timmons House to Geometry,
Nancy Donaghy is here to stay.

Masaccio, T., "Tribute Money"

Pressure, pressure everywhere,
The seniors feel the pain;
Were it not for saint Pam Ball,
Great '97 would go insane.

Pam Ball

Science

The Science Department

There are no smoke and mirror tricks
To give these teachers ersatz kicks;
Alice Davis: the deity of science,
Demands a copious amount of compliance.

Alice Davis

Beth Glascott

Jeffrey Morse

If you commit the mortal sin,
Beth Glascott says, "tuck it in!"
Jeff Morse tolerates no one's whine,
We are asked to emulate Einstein.

She has control of all reactions,
Sandy Portnoy abhors inaction;
Dean of Bio, John D. Dover,
Often doubles as hallway rover.

Sandra Portnoy

John D. Dover

Science

Botticelli S., "Allegoria della Primavera"

Tom Katman

Parveen Roberts

Lie on nails? Tom Katman do,
He rocks the AP Physics crew;
Parveen Roberts, standing tall,
Knows the secret of Doc's bowling ball.

Coaching middle school girls sports,
On the fields, not the courts;
Susan Goerlich and Judy Michel,
Give those novice sticksters heck.

Susan Goerlich

Judy Michel

Visual Arts

The Visual Arts Department

Underground was a teacher named Singer
Who did mold and shape clay with his fingers;
He was moved upstairs
To a visual arts lair:
Where once there were lockers he lingers.

There is a teacher who'll never live down
His rep as the builder in town;
His everyday suspenders
A habit never surrendered:
But that's just good ole Crosby Brown.

Though some might have thought he was strange
And others perceived him deranged
His students he'd not fight
If their pictures weren't right:
That's why we'll love always the Grange.

Performing Arts

The Performing Arts Department

Robbia, L., "Singing Angels"

Eva Kay Noone

If all the world is a stage,
 Then Eva Kay Noone is our sage;
 In good Donna Cooper
 The bands have a trooper:
 She can teach music to any age.

Joe Fitzmartin adds wind to the sails
 With a spirit no dis-chord derails;
 Steve Stouffer's jazz swings,
 Al Brennan's chorus sings:
 They are Charter's Princes of Wails.

Technology at P.C. is now up to date,
With Joe Ramsey's knack to innovate;
Perhaps the library's toughest duty,

Intellect does not a person make
One must as well know wellness;

The gyms are just the place;
Butler has the healing touch that

Whether the classroom, the stage, or the pool,
Charlie Brown is nobody's fool,
He's a sixth grade star,
He strums his guitar,
This math hound indeed rocks the school.

When not coaching the indoor lax Wings,
Or counting his championship rings,
Tony's the Boss,
Of Charter Lacrosse,
To sixth graders Resch is their king.

It is much too easy to take for granted that the bus will be on time, the buildings will be clean each morning, the fields manicured & lined, the food prepared and cheerfully served or the dishes and utensils clean. Not to mention: a safe campus, warm and well lit classrooms, and snow removal. These things, and a host of other little details, do not just happen. The people shown on this page are responsible for the work that rarely receives thanks, but makes normal life at our school possible. "Staff" seems too insufficient a category; so let's think of them as our friends and

"Look, if you want to see me, you're going to have to pay like the rest of them, honey."

"Dude, how much do I wish that I could just sit under this tree and meditate?"

"Hey, Art. I know what would be cool. Let me get on your shoulders and do the Macarena!"

"Hey, Pat, what's so funny?" "I just realized that Arthur hasn't stopped talking for four years..."

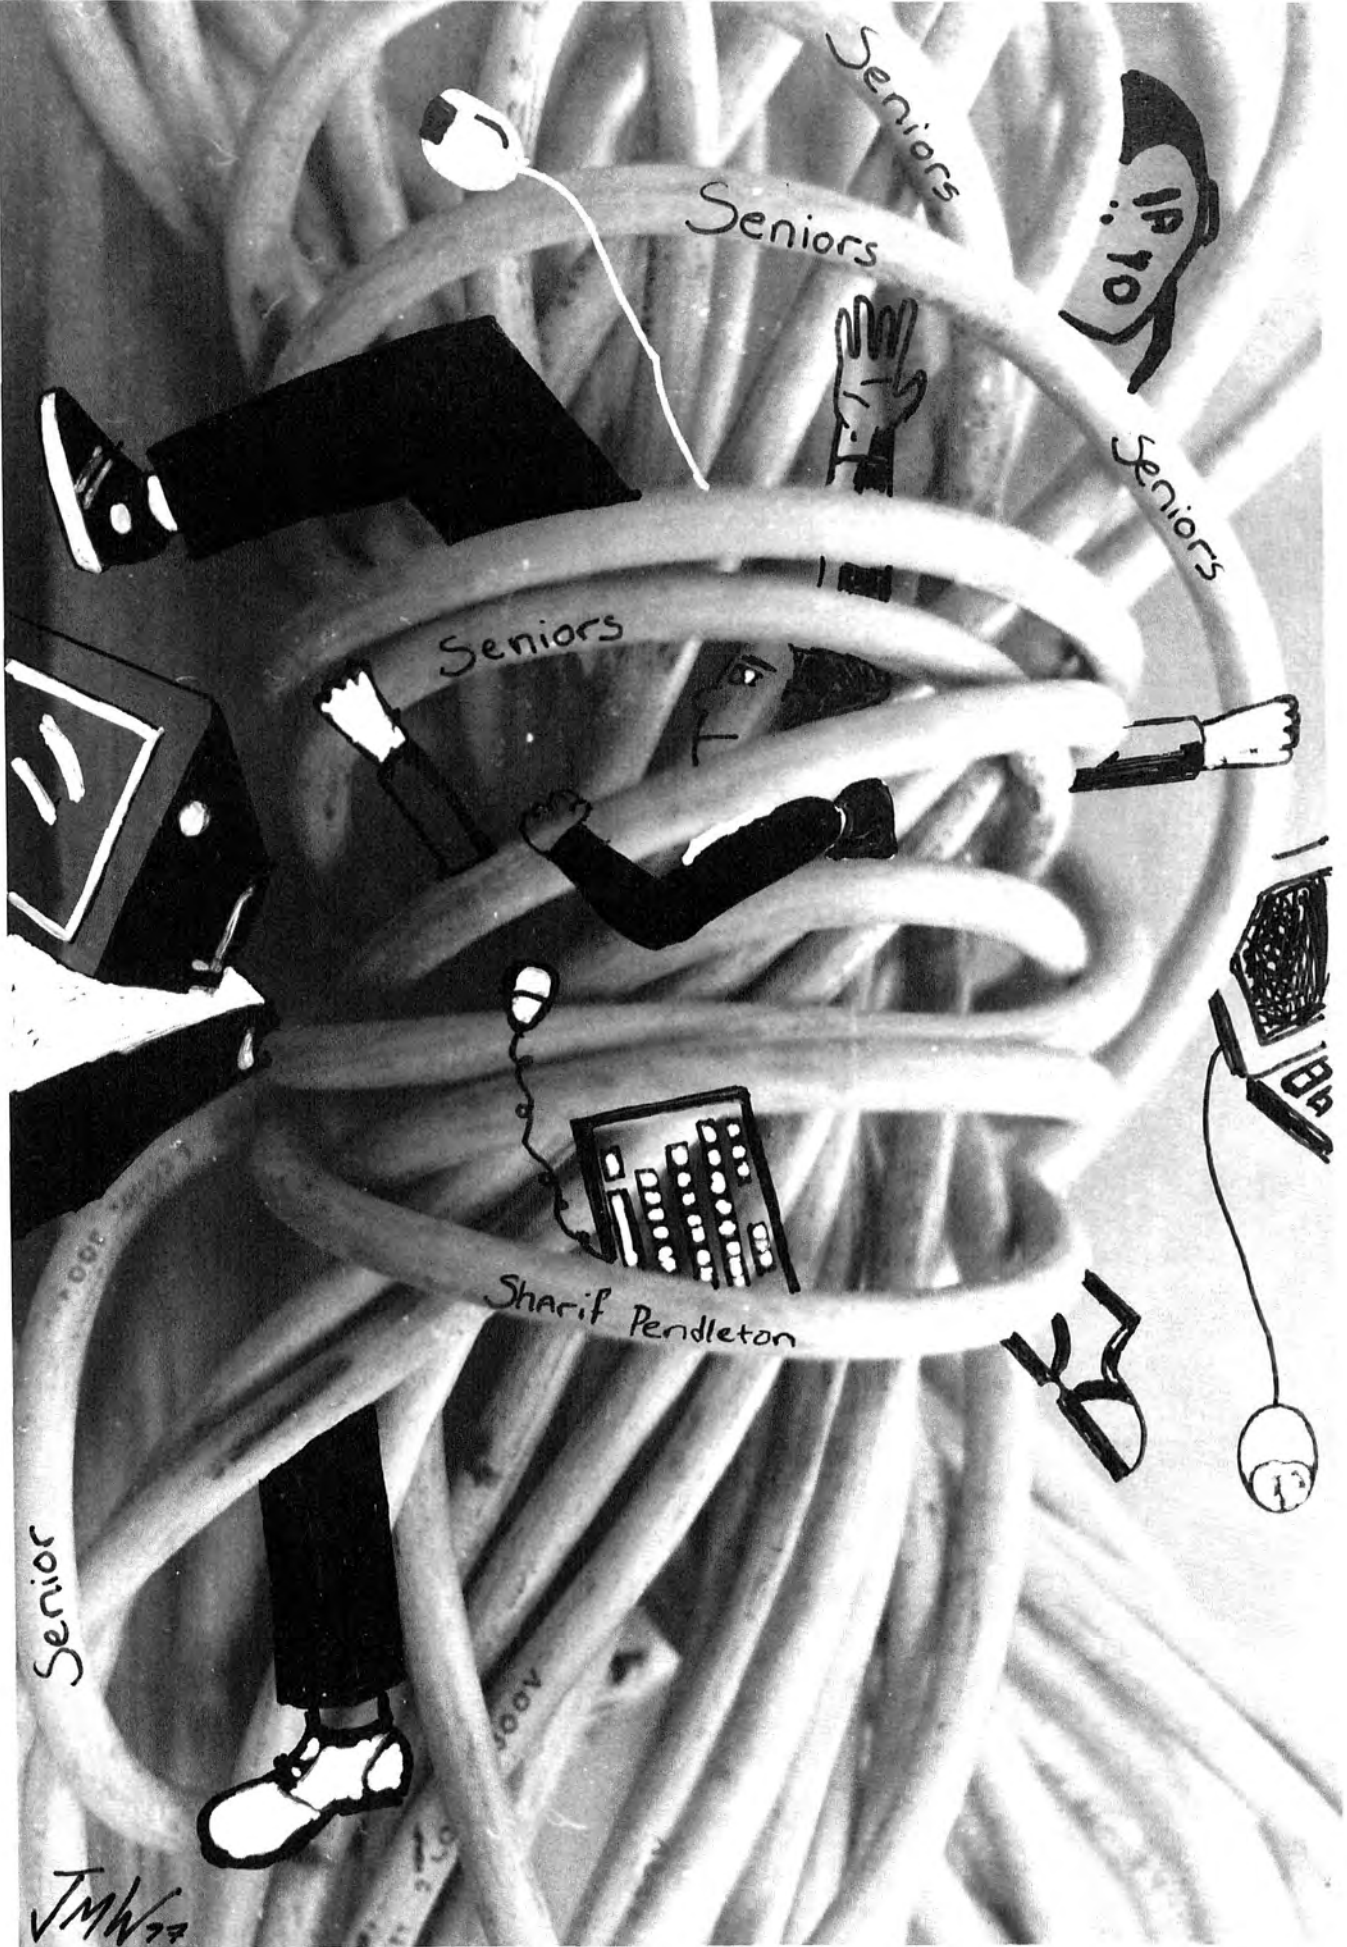

"Hey, Rodg, how many more pieces of french toast before you have the record?"

"Guys, don't move! If we stay like this long enough maybe we'll get in the Penn Charter view book."

As the old man walked the beach at dawn, he noticed a young man ahead of him picking up starfish and flinging them into the sea. Finally, catching up with the youth, he asks him why he was doing this. The answer was that the stranded starfish would die if left until morning sun. "But the beach goes on for miles and there are millions of starfish," countered the man. "How can your effort make any difference?" The young man looked at the starfish in his hand and then threw it to the safety of the waves. "It makes a difference to this one," he said. -Anonymous

So...here we are at the end. Sometime it has felt like it would never come but here you are reading this and we are all shocked and amazed well, at least I am. All will be missed, perhaps they will miss; but who knows. Allen's Lane the cool rocket sticker, fried bananas and the kid who was a grouchgateer. Lower school - in Kindergarten: the kid with the musical shoes, rest time, the massive building blocks "that's what shoes are for." never call a teacher by their first name...especially when asking to turn out the lights. Me - I can build a better spaceship then you; Pete - oh yeah, well let's see; Voltron, the Star Wars book, nine, rest time take 2. stop picking your nose! Ben Tucker and the "My Little Pony" tv show; well that's a handy way to keep a pencil handy, little tiny robots that stuck together, that was not a fair trade, ok who has the dump truck, no more rest time (but hey, we get to keep the mats) guess what's in the jar, follow the directions exactly...hold on I have a big eraser, the mile run, swimming, heck even gym, you have a green strip on your underwear....Ahhhhh!!!!!!(So kid how do you like the seating arrangement?...I don't want to sit next to her because she said I have a green strip on my underwear....So?...it's not though..So?; roller skating: why does everyone I meet think I'm Shahem, Mrs. Shultz' reading group, why are you always the first one here, nice shoes..thank you, computer games..the factory, but I don't want to be on his team I'll get an F, can I play?...maybe tomorrow, 1.2.3..you're down, glasses. I can ride a bike..So?, why are you here so early?, everything in cursive, Color Day..release the balloons, buzz cut, birthday party..you forgot your watch. (omission) Nintendo, more trades with Brad, sega?, macplus and dark castle, Mike? Spike?...I hate it here..you'll get use to it, tube sock, throwing of chairs, Tennessee, back to the future part 2....there's no cursing, Gurt, is that cologne? mad libs, the coat part 1, jelly babies, repeat the coat 3x, the classical festival, PEEK, EGOP, the lightning bolt, Mrs. Shultz for reading again, mixed seventh-eighth homerooms, sit down, why are you sitting like that sit down, who brought oregano it's a can drive, Day Camp, the Library, Stansfield, Mirror, Charter Singers, those d&^$ Morris kids. Marathon nights..sophhop...you sold out man. can you really do that? Stop or I'll shave you bald. Crash. Now let us never speak of this again...

Hemlock? I never touch the stuff!

Thanks for all your help and guidance, your little bro...

To My Parents: Its been almost eighteen years now since I entered this world and I have enjoyed every minute of it. This enjoyment comes solely from the love and compassion that you have given to me over these years. A simple Thank You can not represent all the gratitude and appreciation I have towards you. What I can say is that I love both of you with all my heart and I hope I can do you proud.

Love, Steve

I want to give thanks to my teachers, coaches, friends, and especially my family. Thanks Chalky, for always being there for me whenever I needed your help. Pam, you are more to me than just a sister, you are my best friend. I could always count on you to listen and try to understand me. Mom and Dad, I want to thank you for everything you've given me. I know I'm hard to motivate, but thanks for always being patient with me.

To Alison Mumper, Katie McDonald, and Monique Thacker, you were always there when I needed to complain. Thank you for staying by me. I don't know what I would have done without you. We were able to stay together through high school and I know it will be the same in college. To the PC girls: K.H., S.B., A.M., S.W., B.D., and K.K., thanks for making my senior year one of the best. You definitely helped make it one of the most fun. To Andrea Donahue, Lisa Sposato, and Dan McGonigle, thanks for helping me get through my first three years of school. And especially for being a bad influence. To my softball girls, I'll never forget you. Good luck in all you do. To the senior boys, thanks for keeping my high school years interesting. I will miss you all. And to my teachers and coaches, thank you for being a positive influence in and out of the classroom.

We walk a path of constant changing and with each change there is a sadness for what we have lost and a confusion for what we have become. It happens to us again and again, and each time we are caught by surprise and do not recognize at first what has happened, because always we think we have changed for the last time. But there is no last time.

13 years of ebb and flow which cannot fit on 1 page. 13 years of my life exist in this school in which, as Tori Amos says, "my scream got lost in a paper cup." When I entered this school thirteen years ago, I was just a baby, so naive and uncognizant of the world around me. And it is while I have been a student at this school that I have had my important life experiences and I have found myself. When I entered Penn Charter at the age of five, I was a determined, independent, headstrong yet independent child, which is what I still am but in so many different ways. It was while I was a student here, at the age of six, that I decided I was going to be an actress and thus I determined my future and my passion. Little did I know that I was going to find my friends and my soul through acting. And it was while I was a student here that I entered into the sport of gymnastics at the age of nine and I quit the sport at the age of fourteen, but during those five and a half years, through many bad and good times, I began to mold myself into who I am. And although I did not want to let go of gymnastics, quitting the sport allowed me to enter the theater—my calling, my future, and my home. And it was while I was a student here that I had the best of times and the worst of times with this school. There were times when I truly believed that I hated so many aspects of this school, but I was still a child with so much yet to learn then. It has been through these past three years that I have grown up because I have let go of my bitterness and allowed my experiences to open my mind so that I can constantly learn from life. And now I think of my life as a paradox, because it has been through my personal tragedies that my life has circled around and I have grown into a real person. I lost my Aunt Vi, my Poppi, and my spiritual home. And around the same time of all of those tragedies, I was blessed with beauty when my three nieces were born and I began to find the happiness in my life. And then someone in my family became a victim of gun violence. It was through this tragedy that I developed many of my present-day opinions and I found refuge and passion in writing. And at this same time I dove into theater and felt the ultimate source of joy and catharsis. Through my personal tragedies, writing, and the theater I have found my myself in such a way that I can now say I appreciate and I am beginning to cherish my total experience at Penn Charter, I have been given the gift of my spiritual home again, and I have realized that the happiness and meaning of my life has nothing to do with financial success or prestige but contentment by helping society, experiencing beauty, and finding myself through my passions. There are certain people who, without them, I could never be at this point where I am today because they have been my life teachers: Mrs. Noone, who has believed in me and blessed me with the role of Mary Girard; Mr. West, who has truly inspired me in so many aspects of my life by helping me find true beauty; Jessika, who is my first real best friend because not only can I party with her and then cry with her over the meaning of life, but because she has colored my life into a rainbow because she is my moonbeam; Randy and Michael, who have been the two best older brothers a little sister could ask for; Elizabeth, who has been not only the coolest older sister, but also my role model; my father, who has always believed in me; and my mother, of whom I am in utter awe and who has been nothing less than all of my heart and soul and so much of me forever no matter where I am... I now realize that "I think there's a heaven where screams have gone..."

*I believe there is a distance
I have wandered to touch upon the years of reaching out, reaching in, holding out, holding in.
I believe this is heaven to no one else but me
And I'll defend it as long as I can be left here to linger in silence if I choose to.*

*There are places I remember all my life
Though some have changed,
Some forever not for better,
Some have come and some remain
All these places have their moments
With lovers and friends I still can

Some are dead and some are living,
In my life, I've loved them all.*

To live is to fly low and high so shake the dust off your wings
and the sleep out of your eyes
It's good bye to all my friends.
It's time to go again.
Think of all the poetry

There's a lesson to be learned- if you're able to enjoy something, to devote your life to it or a reasonable amount of time and energy, it will work for you. It will work.

-Jerry Garcia

Moutains should be climbed with as little effort as possible and without desire. The reality of your own nature should determine the speed. If you become restless, speed up.

If you become winded, slow down. You climb the mountain in an equilibrium between restlessness and exhaustion. Then, when you're no longer thinking ahead, each footstep isn't just a means to an end but a unique event in itself. To live only for some future is shallow. It's the sides of the mountain which sustain life, not the top. Here's where things grow.

But of course without the top you can't have any sides. It's the top that defines the sides.

So on we go...we have along way...no hurry...just one step after the next.

Being that I have spent 13 years of my life here at Penn Charter, and 2 days at The Clifford Ball, it would be impossible for me to put all of my memories on one senior page: 4 pages would be more like it. I would also be repeating in my blurb what others would have in their blurbs because since I was the age of 5, my life has centered around Penn Charter and all of my friends and their memories are my memories and vice versa. So I am going to make it easier on you, the person reading my senior page. If you would like to see the memories that I have accumulated during my lifetime at Penn Charter, look at Eric Stiles's, Justin Carey's, Jon Hayne's, Chris Albright's, Brendan Moore's, Colin McDonough's, Michael Goldman's, Wes Schwartz's, Chris Rodgers', Pat Larkin's and Arthur Whitman's blurbs. You would do well reading everyone else's blurbs, but these people share the most memories with me over the years. Here are a couple of messages. To Everyone; every single one of you is my friend and all of you have added to my life in some way and for that I thank you. To My Classmates; You are all the best friends I could have ever hoped for and I can't imagine experiencing school without any one of you here with me. Most importantly, to Mom, Dad, Biff and Beth; through good times and bad, mostly bad, we have stayed together and survived and that will always be my Blessing. I love you very much. I will miss you all. No Goodbye's, only "until we meet again" For personal messages, see page 204.

To my mother for keeping at my heels every step of the way...To my step-Dad for keeping mom away from my neck...To my sister for taking half of my mom's wrath...To the rest of my family for being as far away as they are...To the rest of my family for not being further...To Hobbes for being himself...And to all the droogs on the other side: The infamous O'Doogles James and Greg, Snoop, Luke, Jesse Jeak the Steak Star Flood, and most of all to the long but not lost Jeff Dingle aka Tony Torse and Jeff Lopez aka Asa Zimbabwe: never forget the dookey pot. Events, places, memories: Mrs. Major and her toy collection where our mother's cash went, Spooks, Gretchen, the flying daredevils, "hey you kids, get back here!", the churchyard, the little red school yard, smear the queer, JD scoring two off his dome, JI's run in with the fuzz and most certainly Art-man's first words to me.

Happiness is like a cat. If you try to coax it...it will avoid you. It will never come. But if you pay no attention to it and go about your business, you'll find it rubbing against your leg and jumping into your lap. So forget pursuing happiness. Pin your hopes on work, on family, on learning, on knowing, on loving. Forget pursuing happiness; pursue these other things and with any luck happiness will come.

Things I've learned along the way...In a fight, hit first and hit hard...Keep watch five minutes fast...Loosen up. Relax. Except for rare life and death matters, nothing is as important as it first seems...Never give on what you really want to do. The person with the big dreams is more powerful than one with all the facts...Beware of the person who has nothing to lose...Seek opportunity, not security...A boat in the harbor is safe, but in time its bottom will rot...Give people second chances, but not a third...Park in the back of a shopping lot, the walk is good exercise...Never go grocery shopping when you're hungry...Let people pull in front of you when you're stopped in traffic...If you have a quarter, feed the meter for the next person...Make the bed when you're an overnight guest...Make a list of 25 things you want to do and carry it in your wallet...Sign Valentine's cards with someone who thinks you're pretty terrific...Don't burn your bridges, you'll be surprised by how many times you have to cross the same river...Go to a club at least once...you never know!...When hugging be the last one to let go...Put a lot of marshmallows in your hot chocolate...To explain romantic break-up simply say it was all my fault...Wear audacious underwear under the most solemn clothes...Make new friends but cherish the old ones...Watch the movie "A Wonderful Life" every Christmas...Keep extra car keys somewhere on you in case you lock your good pair inside...Never eat the last cookie...Don't undertip the waiters because the food was bad, they didn't make it...Laugh a lot, a good sense of humor can cure almost all of life's ills...Call your mother...Don't let anyone ever see you tipsy...

Mom and Dad- no words could ever come close to expressing how much I love you both. You have held my hand when I needed guidance and have watched me fly on my own, only to cushion my falls with support and love. You both are the core of my life and being. As this journey comes to an end and the next begins I remember all the lessons I have learned from each of you. As I start to let go of your hands I find myself a bit scared, but I know the strong love between us will overcome any distance. The family you both have so successfully made has always filled my life with laughter and love. We have grown so close in the past years and as I get ready to leave I feel as though I am leaving two best friends. Thank you doesn't even begin to grasp the immense gratitude I have to you both. I love you! KATE B.- Thanks for always listening and understanding, and especially for your undying friendship. I love you- BFF. MOM and DAD- There is nothing in the world I could ever say or do which could even begin to express the thanks I have for all that you have given me. I am forever thankful that God has blessed me with such wonderful parents and I hope you how much I love you. ANDREA and AMANDA- I'm gonna miss wrestling when I'm at college, but we can always wrestle when I come home. I want you both to know that I love you more than anything in the world and I will always be here for you.

Thanx to my Mom and Dad for being (for the most part) open-minded. Thanx to all the people in my grade, I've met a lot of interesting people. Also, the friends I've made from other grades, you know who you are. And all my friends outside of school, PAL crew, Mayfair kids, Juniata people and from all over the city. More thanx to my Aunt Rose and Uncle Barry, for support and inspiration, thanx to all my family. A few special thanx to Ryan Smith, Jerry Limper, Claude Reifsnnyder, Michael "Huckel", Matt Quinn, my brothers Jeff and Dom, my band, and all of my friends.

Also I would like to thank the adults at school who have helped me out when I needed it, especially Doc Katman, Mr. Dover, Ms. Purcell, and all of the teachers I have had a direct relationship with.

*The old man laughed and sang a song
As they rocked in the wooden shoe,
And the wind that sped them all night long
Ruffled the waves of dew.
The little stars were the herring-fish
That lived in that beautiful sea-
"Now cast your nets wherever you wish-
But never afear'd are we";
So cried the stars to the fishermen three*

First and foremost I want to thank everyone who has supported me during my 4 years at Penn Charter. First I'd like to thank my family: Gram, Gramp, Nick, Regina, Lisa, Charlie, Gram E., and especially Dad, Mom, and Bob. Without you guys I don't know where I'd be right now. Secondly, my friends: Sean, Kevin, Dennis, Trish, and both Albs. I can't thank you enough for all that you have done. To the Northeast Row Home Boys: We've all become very close friends. You all have helped me stay sane in these last 4 yrs. We must all keep in touch. To Mr. McCloskey and all of my coaches: thanks for teaching me all I know about football.

Who will forget: The rainout at Haverford, freshman year and Hap's neck delay. Terrance's famous line: Ain't gonna be too many more o'dem Calvin jokes Nyamean!!...RPV...Justin Toner's freshman stick & Tiger balm... Tippy's sore thumb... Claude's "Jack Tripper outfits"... Ed Kiefski downing a bottle of Tabasco Sauce... Becoming Inter-Ac Champs in 1996 To all underclassmen: It's been real. To McCrossen & Gibbs: Keep the Fort.

Ah. So this is what has become my Senior Page in this, my last yearbook. While this institution has contributed to a great deal of my misfortunes over the past six years, it has also contributed to a great many pleasures. I want to leave Penn Charter on a lighter note, thus, instead of concentrating on the troubles of my life here, I have decided to express the lighter side. The following page is a collection of photographs, quotes, and other miscellaneous items collected over my years here that I think best exemplifies the bizarreness that is me. Consider it my way of saying "Thanks."

Soccer, Lacrosse, Yearbook Photography Editor, Spanish Club

For four years I've played out an important edition of my life. By no means was this my work, and I have so many people to thank for that. Danny, Ben, Kate, Brooke, and Sean, thanks for all the fun. I hope I added to your enjoyment of PC as much as you did to mine. Stephie, you have been there always, like a sister to me. To Grange, my mentor. Dona Marta, for expanding my horizons. Ollie, who deserves credit for all he has done as my best friend and brother. To my sisters Jen and Michele for adding another chapter to my ever growing life. To Tyler and Jason whom I idolize, and have always made me feel like I was one of you. And most of all to Mom and Dad for giving me all the opportunities in which to better myself. My love and gratitude go farther than this page can hold. I'll make you proud.

DON'T EVER SAY THAT WE DIDN'T WARN YOU...

The Yearbook makes its prophecies based on substantial, factual, researched, exciting, [il]legitimate information. While all of the predictions may not actually come true, we guarantee that a good majority will. We reserve the right to define "a good majority." We reserve a lot of rights. Likewise, under the advice of counsel, we accept no liability for any of our predictions.

•CHRIS ALBRIGHT•

Chris eventually transferred from UVA to kick for the University of Utah's football team. His reason for transferring to Utah was the state's lenient polygamy laws: four to one.

•MATT ARIZIN•

Spanky returned to P.C. to help chaperone the baseball team's trip to Florida. He wasn't invited back after an incident in the bathroom.

•KATE BALLENGEE•

Kate finally made her pilgrimage to the Mecca of South Central L.A. where she met and eventually married Montel Jordan. With her new found connections, Kate was able to finally unite Dr. Dre and Mr. Ballengee who, together, now have a famous duet out called "Ain't Nothin' But a Ghetto Thang."

•JOHN BARR•

No one heard from Dilly until he was about fifty. Supposedly, he saved all of his money to re-vamp the Monte Carlo. Unfortunately, the guy he had intended to race down the Boulevard had already died.

•JILL BEAN•

Delving into her family roots, Jill discovered her claim to the L.L. Bean enterprise. Now president of the company, Jill sends a turtleneck to each member of the class of '97 every Christmas.

•SHAHEEN BEG•

Shabaheba kidnapped Microsoft CEO Bill Gates, blaming him for Apple's eventual bankruptcy. When tried for the kidnapping, Beg pleaded insanity and was acquitted.

•STEPH BOLNO•

Steph married Kirwan because she decided that Steph Elliot sounded good.

•EMILY BRISKIN•

Emily finally got around to selling all of her old clothes. She managed to supply all of the thrift shops in Pennsylvania and eventually put Betsy Johnson out of business.

•VIRGINIA BROWN•

Virginia eventually stopped stating the obvious. She now hosts a game show called "What's the Hidden Message" which involves a ton of sports.

•STEPHEN BRUNO•

Stephen cut his hair and hasn't had a date since.

•BEN CAKE•

Pursuing the essence of Taoism, Ben moved into the deep forests of Maine to find his true path in life: Juggling.

•JUSTIN CAREY•

After graduation, Justin moved into Hap's house, officially taking over Hap's room, in order to start an adoption agency known as "Carey's Rent a Kid." By the turn of the century, Justin's agency was rated in the top one-hundred businesses rated by Fortune Magazine. Justin remains in Hap's room.

•AARON CHACKER•

After Aaron successfully won his divorce from his parents, he took to the streets for his one man show about college admissions. He entertains Penn students every Wednesday evening.

•AARON COHEN•

Well, Aaron's "art" photos finally became world renowned. His last masterpiece made centerfold.

•MAYA COMEROTA•

Maya was fired from "her store" after she was finally caught using her huge employee discount for non-employees of Banana Republic.

•KELLY COSTA•

Kelly has been the perennial winner of the AAA's "Safe Driving Award."

•LISA CULNAN•

Lisa's aspirations took her to the soccer fields of Maine where she coaches a high school Varsity team and loses her voice often.

•KATHLEEN CUNNINGHAM•

Kathleen can be found in Disney World, clad in a red, polka dot dress, wearing unusually large ears. Angelo is never far away, for protection.

•BROOKE DiMARCO•

Brooke tried to enter a convent but was denied when the nuns found out that she was still hanging out with Joe Larkin.

•CONOR DONNELLY•

Conor had a girlfriend in every state, meaning that there was a father that wanted him dead in all fifty states. As a result, Conor was forced to move to Europe where he became president of a major hair club where he could also be a client.

•MICHAEL EHRlich•

The Duke of Earl, the Sultan of Swat, is now a doctor. He lives in the suburbs with his wife, two kids, and one very fluffy dog that fetches slippers in an immaculately clean house where you have to take off your shoes when you enter.

•RACHEL ELFENBEIN•

Rachel would've made it in the theater business, but there are no theaters down the shore.

•JOHN ETHIER•

Johnny E. is still da man.

•SCOTT ETISH•

A couple of days after graduation, Scott invited his pal Andy Berg over to his house to celebrate. Unfortunately, Berg flipped out and Scott had to beat him down. He is now a wanted man, hiding out at Brit's house.

•JOE FERRARI•

Joey finally stopped mumbling. His new clarity allowed everyone to find out what he'd been saying for years: "I'm sorry, Mrs. Ball. Do you really control snow days?"

•DANIELLE FLOYD•

Danielle opened up a provocative fashion store named "Yo Booty!" which sells only short skirts. On weekends, Power 99 even broadcasts from the store. Emily and Hillary are regular customers.

•MIKE GOLDMAN•

After Spike's wife heard a recording of him saying, "I'm using my wife," Spike had a horrible golf injury and had to leave the tour.

•HAP GOTTEHRER•

Hap runs a successful Main Line hotel named "My Room." Being the kind hearted sould that he is, Hap splits the profits with his mom.

•GERRY GREENLEAF•

Gerry returned to Penn Charter as the Dean of Students. His first order of business was to determine which areas of the school would be off limit to students.

•TERRENCE GRISWOLD•

Gris became a spokesperson for Breathe Right after his snoring in Meeting for Worship caught the eye of an advertising executive. Terrence's commercials are targeted to non-Quakers in Friends schools.

•DONNY GUGLIELMUCCI•

The Mafia's newest "knee breaker," Donny opened up a cigar shop in Manayunk and is always watching for dark, 70s style Cads following him.

•PETER HAYES•

Ever heard of Chiquita Bannana? Pete took over the company and did his own commercials.

•JON HAYNE•

Disgruntled that he didn't receive a Rolls Royce for graduation, Jon refused to take over Urban Outfitters. Instead, he started his own line of children's story books under the name of Uncle Jonny's Story Time.

•SOREN HERPMAN•

Soren works at the Taco Bell in Flourtown. He is renowned by customers for his extra meaty, tightly wrapped tacos.

•KATE HOUSTOUN•

Kate was last heard screaming, "Where's Justin?!" as she ran from her fiance at the alter.

•JOSH IRVING•

Josh's funny face finally stuck like that.

•NICK JACQUES•

Nick continues to fight the T.V. rating system which has banned his "mild" cartoons. He has been heard many times saying, "well, at least they can be seen late-night."

•KATE KELLER•

Kate was fired from her job at a movie rental store when her boss discovered that she'd starred in a "B" Prism movie. She's still screaming, "Where's Ty?!"

•ANDREA KELLY•

She wanted to be a Senator? She wanted to be a Hockey Player? She wanted to be a photographer? She wanted to be a wrestler? She doesn't do any of these. She's unemployed.

•HILARY KLINE•

Hillary became an activist. She fought against the closing of all clothes stores. Unfortunately, her picketing was unsuccessful because she spent all of her time fixing her hair.

•BETH KRIEGER•

Beth worked for Al Gore's presidential campaign, for which she was rewarded with a top Cabinet position.

•ILANA LAM•

•PAT LARKIN•

Pat turned his dad's house into a gentleman's club and named it "the Dawghouse." After several attempts to buy a bigger place on Delaware Avenue, he hired Nick to scare the real estate agent into a deal with a water gun.

•ALLISON MacCULLOUGH•

Allison was last seen cruising down Delaware Avenue blasting the hot eight at eight. Her high beams distracted the man in front of her, causing a multi-car pile up.

•COLIN McDONOUGH•

Colin tried to make the Wings. He pretty much had the job until at an interview with the owner he was asked what his best character trait was. His response, "I'm craaaazy" was only good enough to earn him a coaching position at Mercy-Vocational school, beside Charlie Hart.

•GLENN MILLER•

Glenn built his own house on the Penn Charter stage. During Glenn's regular, Saturday night Aerosmith house parties, the police always show up explaining that a neighbor, Dr. Ball, has complained about the noise.

•BOB MONTAGUE•

Bob Montague was seen working in the Circus doing his grasshopper trick.

•BRENDAN MOORE•

After law school, Brendan began his career as a prosecutor. He later switched to defense to concentrate on righting the wrongs done to students by assistance counselors. Unfortunately, he was disbarred for making fun of judges.

•YINKA ORAFIDIYA•

Yinka went to town one day to sell her cow. Instead of selling the cow for money, Yinka got some magic beans which grew into a giant beanstalk. Yinka climbed to the top of the vine and beat the stuffing out of the giant.

•SEAN PAYTON•

Sean returned to the Phillippines to do his life's work of picking pineapples on a local plantation. He makes good money selling pictures of his sister's friends on the side. Hey, a pineapple picker can't survive off pineapples alone.

•SHARIF PENDLETON•

Sharif showed up at the reunion, but nobody knew who he was. He finally brought his yearbook artwork, though.

•STEVE PIETROPAULA•

In 2020, the Grunge focused style returned. Steve introduced his own line of chains and long underwear.

•DAVE PORTNOY•

Pig-noogey stopped asking people to call him pig-noogey after he realized that the nickname was not at all beneficial to him. In his search for a new nickname, he created LvePort@aol.com which soon caught on.

•DEEPAK RAO•

In an event similar to the Milli-Vanilli singing scandal, Deepak was forced to drop out of Harvard. During the expulsion proceedings, he was heard admitting, "My sister did all my work during high school and that's why I did so good."

•ALAN RAPPEPORT•

Alan entered the NBA and Nike soon created a basketball sneaker for him named "the Rapesneak."

•MICHAL REHAVI•

Miki joined the U.N. as a delegate from Israel. Her latest committee discussion was based on her argument that, "if you talk about my mother, I'll kick your ass. I'm a ballerina!"

•CLAUDE REIFSNYDER•

Claude bought a lazy boy, made some popcorn, and rented "It's a Wonderful Life". He hasn't moved since.

•CHRIS RODGERS•

Right after graduation, Chris drove down the shore to find the kids who had started trouple with him and Bob two summers ago. What he found, though, was "the Princeton" which got him a little sidetracked.

•CECIL ROGERS•

After talking so much smack, someone finally responded to Cecil's "fight me" cry and he wasn't ready for an actual response.

•ERICA ROSEN•

Erica Lee, like, got fired from her job, like, because, she, like, never showed, up. Really.

•DAN RUDNICK•

Out of college, Dan realized that he still loved Johanna Owings. His new mission in life was to find his highschool crush and make her his wife so that they could, together, make wonderful, healthy babies. Well, at least he found Johanna.

•MIKE SCHWARTZ•

Whatever Mike's parents did for a living when he was in high school, that's what Mike is doing. Have you seen the size of his house?

•WES SCHWARTZ•

Wes teamed up with Aaron Weiss to form the first Olympic Synchronized swimming team to use the Allman Brothers as the accompanying music. Their innovative take on the event won them the gold. However, Wes was stripped of his medal after testing positive for steroids.

•EILEEN SHIN•

Eileen hit her head and got a clue.

•GURTEJ SINGH•

Gurt gave up medicine to become a standup comedian, recycling all of the jokes he heard during school.

•JULIA SIVITZ•

Julia married Matt in a ceremony that wasn't at all religious. They live at Camp Ramah in the Poconos and act as groundskeepers during the non-camp season.

•MIKE SOENS•

After an extra year of revisions, Mike made millions from his best seller, My Body, My Temple.

•ERIC STILES•

The windows in Eric's dorm room at college were sealed to save money on heating. Initially, Eric tried to adapt, but eventually he realized that you can only fishbowl a room so many times. He now lives at home in his sister's third floor bathroom and makes "just chillin" mixes.

•ERICA STURDIVANT•

After selling Fashion Fair cosmetics for four years, Erica finally got enough money to bail her boyfriend out of jail. Erica and her man started their own line of "Femme Mac" gear which is now sold at "Yo Booty!"

•JENNIE UTSINGER•

During her college years, Jennie was still devastated by her car accident with the trash truck. She decided to overcome her fears one day so she dropped out of college. She can now be seen every Wednesday driving her trash truck down Park Line Drive.

•ANGELO VICOLI•

Big Ang did exactly what you'd expect. He sought counseling for his anorexia, got a suit, and became a preacher.

•KEN WALLACE•

Ken is currently the M.C. of his own prime-time television talk show, "Golf and Sarcastic Remarks." He still dreams of the good ole days with Tyler Simpson and Chris Johnson.

•SAM WASCOW•

After changing her name to Chiquita, Sam had trouble using her fake Penn Charter I.D. at Egypt. On July 20, after much frustration, Sam finally stopped whining.

•SCOTT WASKO•

After years of trying to recover from ear surgery and failed attempts to become an Olympic swimmer, Scott decided to try out the wonderful world of magic. He amazes audiences everywhere by keeping his body submerged underwater while breathing through his "crazy" ear.

•SETH WECHSLER•

After numerous failed attempts, Seth eventually gave up his bid to build a Snapple powered car. He can now be found at Cal-Tech arguing with the nation's physicists over whether or not an engine has the capability to light a bulb.

•BRAD WEINBERGER•

Brad entered the corporate world and, as one might expect, did absolutely no work. Regardless, he made millions.

•AARON WEISS•

Aaron was jamming with Wes when he got a little too into the groove and became a slinky.

•AMY WELTON•

Amy couldn't cut it in college without being close to the Wissahickon skating rink. She left school and returned to East Falls area joining the Wiscapades where she met and married Scott Stojko. The pair's routine is now highlighted in every weekend's show.

•ART WHITMAN•

Arthur presented a speech on how much he despised human nature and violence. Fortunately for Art, by the time he was finished speaking, humans had become extinct. Problem solved.

•BRAD WILSON•

Brad became a pro-surfer, bringing glory to his adopted nation of Costa Rica. Unfortunately, Brad's surfing ability could not land him a role in the latest "Endless Summer" movie.

•PETER WITHSTANDLEY•

Pete's squash ability helped him to take over the Calvin and Hobbes Corporation. He immediately re-ran all of his favorite comics in every newspaper across the nation.

•JEANINE WYSZYNSKI•

Jeanine got sick of being asked about her brothers constantly, not to mention the fact that her last name was impossible to spell, so she changed her name to that of her favorite singer, Madonna.

...YOU'VE NOW BEEN

Hap's Messages

My Boys ES, JC, JH, BM, CA, CM, WS, AW, MG, CR - We've all had good times together that I will remember forever. You are all very special to me in your own ways and you guys are the reason that I look forward to coming to school each day. Our bonds are so tight that I know that all of us will be great friends forever. All of you have changed the course of my life in some way, probably more than you know, and I hope that I've changed your lives for the better as well. I hope that you can say that your lives are better because of me because I know that my life is better because of you. My door is always open when you need and I would love a phone call or a letter. If you want to find me, just call my mom.

Kate K - We've had terrible fights in the past and we almost stopped talking all-together, but we made it through and our friendship grew stronger. You have always been very special to me and you always will. I love you very much.

Kate H - You have been a terrific friend to me and you were always very patient with me when I did something stupid. I can talk to you about anything and you have always been there when I needed you. I care about you very much and I will always be there when you need me.

Sam - I cannot put into words how much you mean to me. You have always been my best friend through the disagreements and the arguments and nothing can destroy our friendship. I can tell you everything and you have always helped me through my difficult times. I wish you could understand how I feel about you, but there are only three words that I could say that could come close to letting you know. I love you.

Lifer Receives Parole

Stephen D. Bruno graduates from William Penn Charter School Philadelphia:

From auspicious beginnings as one of many kindergarten students, Stephen Bruno began his illustrious career as a "Lifer" at the William Penn Charter School in 1984! Making waves through lower school, Stephen befriended the likes of Ms. Sykes, Mr. K., Mr. Rentschler, and Ms. Burnett the science teacher. Attesting to a great love for animals (which he currently shares with his dog, BUDDY) Stephen held court with hamsters, guinea pigs, ant farms, and fresh and salt water fish. Dogs, horses, pigs, sheep, and ducks were among his pets at the Bruno Family Farm. However, much to his chagrin his parents drew the line at the ongoing request for a ferret, claiming as parents, will, that ferrets are too odiferous and moody.

Acting became a passion for Stephen in Middle School. He earned plum roles in several performances. As Scrooge, Stephen roamed the hallways of Penn Charter revealing the trials of life and how to turn them into tribulations. In Romeo and Juliet, he portrayed Benvolio, Romeo's good friend. Continuing with the drama department, parts in the Playground, and Spoon River were Stephen's tenth grade endeavors. Last but not least the part of a troubled teenager was aptly performed by him, in the play Juvie.

Summers were punctuated with camp, teen tours, trips to the shore and work. Recent summers were mostly spent working at the Philly hot spot, "Rock Lobster". The restaurant benefitted by Stephen's dedication to learning his job as a busboy and mastering it. Next year watch for him as a waiter at Rock Lobster. Stephen, once again, proves that old fashioned hard work pays off.

Just to add intensity to this picture, Stephen aimed his sights on the Presidency of his class. With characteristic ease and grace, Stephen Bruno, won the presidency of the 10th grade class and the 11th grade class and the 12th grade class. Stephen led the class with simplicity and energy. Let us not forget the 76ers opener, the Valentines Day Dance and the general well-being of the CLASS of '97.

At home, Stephen was little brother to Jeffrey, and second son to Leonard and Karen Bruno. Jeffrey and Stephen shared many years at William Penn Charter. The Bruno Boys played, worked and vacationed together. STEPHEN BRUNO is now a twelfth grader, a senior, a success story. The boy who became a man at William Penn Charter. The man who will conquer his ever expanding world in his own way, with his own glory, OUR SON STEPHEN DOUGLAS BRUNO.

Congratulations Scott!

When you were little you filled your wagon with toys for your travels, and filled your life with curiosity, courage and optimism. Everyone has to face the challenge of change, and the challenge of knowing what to change and what to keep.

Though your toys and travels, ambitions and achievements will change through the years, may you always keep your curiosity, courage and optimism.

We are so very proud of you and love you very much.

LOTS OF LOVE,
MOM, DAD, ZAC AND Q-TIP

Dear Samantha,

I can't believe you're graduating! It seems you've grown and matured into a beautiful, bright young adult, wise and responsible beyond your years.

What's really wonderful about all this stuff is you've managed to create these characteristics all on your own.

I'm so very proud you've turned out to be such a special young woman. You have your dad's trust, love and respect. Without you all that is happy, right and dear to me would not exist.

I truly have been blessed!

Love,
Daddy

P.S. You've always had that fresh mouth & biting tongue, which I struggle to overlook.

I have watched you grow into a beautiful, strong and loving woman. Your focus and drive keep me in constant awe of you.

I love you more than all the stars in the sky! I will always be there for you.

All my love forever,
Momé

Even before you entered school you were determined to chart your own course and travel your own road. You have gently but firmly guided us down your road in our journey together. It has been a journey filled with new adventures and love. We have witnessed your many accomplishments and victories with a sense of wonderment and pride. You chose the right paths, not the easy ones. You have now reached the point where you will go on alone, and in typical fashion have chosen the difficult, not the safe course. Yet, you have made us believe that you will reach your goals. We will miss you so, but know that as you reach for your star you will remember your roots.

*Love,
Mom & Dad*

Congratulations Steph!

May you soar through life
Clearing life's hurdles

We love you so much and

WITH ALL OUR LOVE

You want to fly free
And we want you to be Yourself.

But remember, please Remember what we have learned:

That sometimes,
even in clean air,
There is turbulence, and Directions can become confused.

Oh, you will find your way,
Of that we have no doubt;
You would find it by
yourself.

But with some problems
you will face,
Some mistakes that may erase
Your gains,
Bear in mind that
you are not alone,
And if that single word
Help
Has meaningful appeal,
You have only to ask.

Richard Martin Stern

Brendan —

Thanks for being such an awesome brother. You taught me so much and I will never forget all the fun we had together. Thanks for driving me around at nights, especially that one time — you were right! You will never know how much I am going to miss you. Have fun at college and good luck.

Love always, Erin

BRENDAN,

Our hearts are filled with pride in the person you are and all you have accomplished. Continue to believe in yourself, and know we will always be there for you. Congratulations!

We love you. Mom and Dad

To a grandson who has the potential to do great things with his life. May all your hopes and dreams come true. Congratulations and good luck.

Love you, Nanny Moore

Brendan — you are so talented and could go so far so don't waste the opportunities that are out there waiting for you. I know you're shocked at my kind words but I really do mean them.

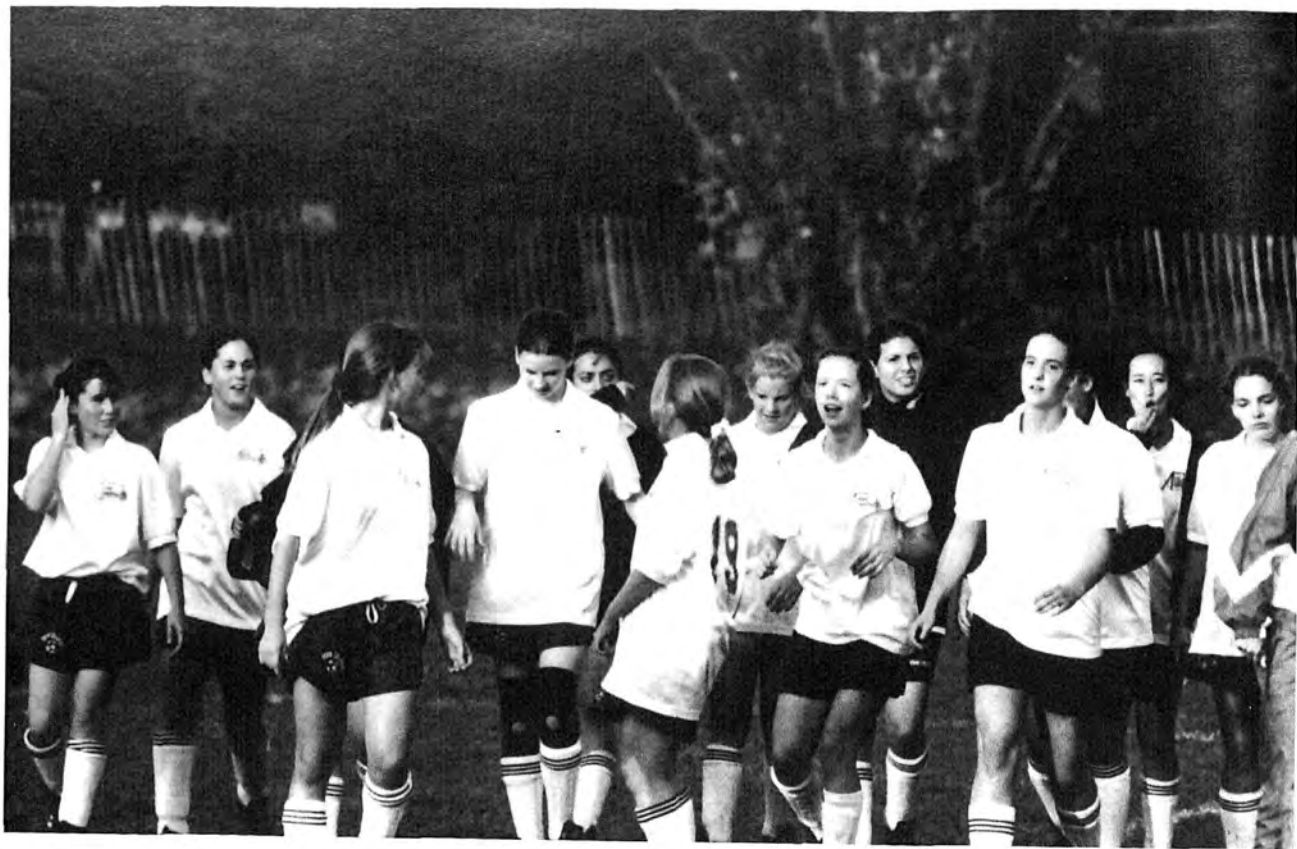

Enjoy life and have a blast. The next thing you know you will be graduating from college and wondering where the best four years of your life went. Believe me, they go by so fast.

I wish you the best of luck.

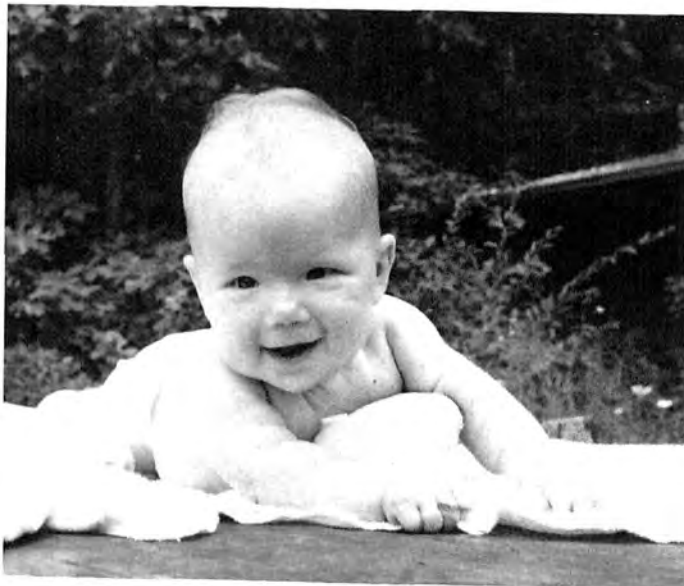

Love you always,

Your older sis, Meg

Night Game, Roxborough

Under the lights the girls look small and solitary.
The ball casts two shadows as it crosses the infield and in the outfield the little girls are tripled by their shadows.
The grass darkens from green to black beyond the lights.
Each game is unique, but the game's rhythm never changes.
Schmitty could dig it out, throw and beat the fleetest runner.
And our Bear throws a rainbow with the same result.
The geometry of the game holds true at every age.
You see the styles, too, at every age and level.
The natural, like Willie, making every play look easy.
The hot-dog, with a special stance, taking the big turn past first to let the fans appreciate her skill.
And the gamers, the battlers, the kids who "came to play",
tiny images of Bowa, Stankey, or Pete Rose.
The game nears its close; down one, two out, the bases full.
Quick pitch, first strike, the Bear cries out in protest but the ump is weary and eager for the game to end.
The Bear steps out, like hitters mythical and real from Merriwell and Casey to Baker, Ruth and Cobb.
She lifts her bat with care. "Ball One!" And again steps out and raps the shining soles. "Ball Two" and then a firm "Play Ball" enjoining one more delay in a game gone far too late.
Bear turns, steps out, stares back at him with fighter's eyes.
She tugs on her pants then steps back in to win the game.

We remember this.

And we have memories for all the years to come.

If you can meet with triumph and disaster and treat those two imposters just the same...

Last Saturday night I got married me and my wife settled down
now me and my wife are parted gonna take a little stroll downtown

Good night, Irene, good night
good night, Irene
good night, Irene, good night Irene
I'll see you in my dreams.

Congratulations John

and the Class of 1997

May the smile on your face...

And the sparkle in your eyes...

Hold a future for you
With only blue skies!!!

Love Always,

Congratulations, Brad

Dear Brad: You have filled our hearts with pride and with love which we shall always hold dear. Over the past seventeen years you seem to have made all the right choices and you have achieved a very good balance in your life. Your sense of ethics and concern for others is matched only by your many academic accomplishments, tennis trophies, and your sense of humor. We know you will be successful in whatever you pursue. We wish you just as much happiness as you have given us. You are a great son.

We love you so much.
Mom and Dad

Dear Brad: It seems like just yesterday we were beginning school together; now you are graduating. I treasure the memories we share and the fun times we have together. I want you to know that you're a great brother and that I've always looked up to you. Best of luck in college and remember, I'll always be around for advice and help. Thanks for always being there.

I love you!

Lauren

Dear Bradley,

From day one until now, we have been fortunate always to be around to share and enjoy your many accomplishments. We wish you all of life's best. You know that we love you very much and are very proud of you. God Bless you.

The Last McDonough to Graduate H.C.

Colin, you've always had to bring up the rear, you've always been up to the task and have done it with style. As you always say, we saved the best for last.

Your greatest asset has always been to question why (though we didn't always appreciate it); don't stop asking.

We love you and are very proud of who you are. We know you can do anything that YOU set your mind to.

Love, Mom & Dad

Colin always had a fondness for hats.

As we bid a fond but tearful farewell, we want to thank all the friends we have made over the years at P.C. for always being there when needed. Whether to share a laugh, problem, housing or a ride, please know that your kindness was always appreciated. Our last has finished but the memories will remain with us forever.

THANKS FROM ALL OF US.

MUSIC IS LIFE EVERYTHING ELSE IS JUST DETAILS

"WHERE IT ALL BEGINS"

There's a lot of different forms of communication, but music is absolutely the purest one... You can't hurt anybody with music. There's nothing that could ever be bad about music, about playing it. It's a wonderful thing, a grace. Music is fun. [Rock music] that's to set you free. Rock 'n' roll will tell you where everything is at.
– Duane Allman

If I'm a guitar hero, I never really entered the competition – I forgot to fill in the application form. – Keith Richards

AIN'T WASTIN' TIME NO MORE.

It's the gift that keeps on giving the whole year long.
– Christmas Vacation

I've never touched nothin' that my spirit could kill.

You can have anything you want
You can drift, you can dream, even walk on water
Anything you want. – Gilmour/Samson

The grass was greener
The light was brighter
The taste was sweeter
The nights of wonder
With friends surrounded
The dawn mist glowing
The water flowing
The endless river
Forever and ever
– Gilmour/Samson

Music starts playing itself through you, instead of you trying to make it happen. You always transcend yourself, no matter what you play. – Carlos Santana

Eat a peach a day while you're on your way.

REACH FOR THE SKY

What's good or bad
doesn't matter to me;
what does matter is
feeling and not feeling.
– Jimi Hendrix

I'm like a test pilot for the airplane – he don't know much about it, he just flies it. An amp and a guitar, I don't know much about 'em, I just play – or at least try. – B.B. King

Dear Emily,

You have meant a lot to me this year and I enjoyed all the weekends you spent at my house. Never doubt how pretty you are, because you were always the highlight of the parties. I love you and hope you have a lot of fun at college.

David

Hi, Emily! It's Cameron. You were always a great girl to hang out with, with or without David. There is a lot to say about you, but I will keep it short. Have a lot of fun at college and do not party too hard.

Dear Chris,

Old memories burn deep and linger long. New memories are out there waiting to become part of the old. Each new step is preparation for the rest of your life. Whether it's the new job or the World Cup, keep reaching, keep dreaming. Work hard, play hard, but most of all have fun and enjoy life.

We thank God that he has blessed us with you.

Love and Good Luck,
Mom and Dad

Dear Chris,

For all my fourteen years, you've been my older brother and my best friend. You were there for me at the good times and the bad times. When I needed advice you gave it to me. Thanks for always being there for me and good luck in your years to come.

Love,
Sean

Dear Christopher,

You finally made it through high school, and are on your way to college. I don't know what I am going to do without you for the next two years. (Don't worry, I know all of the rules.) Chris, thanks for being a great big brother, and especially a best friend. Good luck! I love you!

Love,
Jenny

"The magician is seated in his high chair and looks upon the world with favor. He is at the height of his powers. If he closes his eyes, he causes the world to disappear. If he opens his eyes, he causes the world to come back. If there is harmony within him, the world is harmonious. If rage shatters his inner harmony, the unity of the world is shattered. If desires arise within him, he utters the magic syllables that causes the desired object to appear. His wishes, his thoughts, his gestures, his noises command the universe." — Selma H. Fraiberg were in for, but I hope the ride was worth it. You didn't exactly have the most supportive classmates, but the few that came through did a great job. On top of Chaquille's creativity, the hours of other editors,

and the contributions of photogra-

Hilary,

I have known you ever since I can remember, and our families have shared so many wonderful times: birthday parties, walks on South Street, water ice, drivers' ed., SHS, break the fast, Fridays, summer weekends down the shore...we have truly grown up together. Congratulations on your graduation and good luck in all your future endeavors.

Erica,

For the past three years that I have known you, we have grown closer than I ever imagined possible. You have become like a sister to me and I know that our friendship is one that will last for the rest of our lives. From uncontrollable laughing fits to our endless phone calls and constant discussions, we will understand each other completely. You are a wonderful friend. I know that you will succeed in all that you do. Congratulations on your graduation, and "take care o' you."

Love,

Nicole, Brian, Leslie, and Burt

The editors apologize to Brendan Moore for errors on his page (155).

Parts of the blurb should read: "Yo guys, I'm so gone"...Dave Scare...Catchin' on..."All right, where's the trumpet?"

The quote beginning "The old get old and the young get stronger..." should be attributed to The Doors.

Brendan includes the following greetings: To Joe, Tom, & Ra-hill: Realize that things are changing. Having said this, have a blast the next two years and make me proud. Megan & Erin - you've been great. Thanks for taking my crap. Good luck to both of you. Fick-dog - what can I say? You're the Bomb!

I would still be loving you
When the mountains crumble to the sea,
There will still be you and me.*
