The President Speaks

February 16, 1999

It has been said that you can not appreciate what you have until it is gone. That leads me to believe that I would have an easier time reflecting on the experiences of our class at some point after we graduate, but I will try my best to do that now. I have spent my years at PC trying to observe the people that surround me, and attempting to appreciate the people around me. Our class has played a very important role during my time here.

Although people may differ in opinion about the school, the amazing talents of our class are unquestionable. I have spent my years at PC among unparalleled scholars, athletes, volunteers, musicians, and artists. I have tried to soak up as much as I could from the experiences that make up my everyday life. As we have made the journey through this diverse school, I have seen our class grow into a group of extraordinary individuals.

As we step away from the security of these familiar surroundings, we will all take different paths through life. Many things may change, but we will carry many of our PC memories and experiences with us forever. I can only imagine the success that our class will see as they move into the "real world". I am now, and always will be, proud to be part of such a talented group of people.

In conclusion, I want to thank you for the opportunity to serve as your President. I have done my best to serve you well in my three years. As we all move on in life, I wish you good luck in all your future endeavors.

Sincerely,

Mark Hecker

Tony Resch

Let's be honest with ourselves now: what person at Penn Charter doesn't know who Mr. Resch is? Even if you haven't experienced his teaching in a sixth grade class, you most certainly have heard of his position in the spotlight as the coach of the recent Wings Lacrosse team champions. And if for some reason you are so far removed from society as to not even know that, then you must have at least noticed him in the hallways. Mr. Resch's impressive stature is enough to distinguish him in the minds of the students and the faculty.

But for anyone who knows anything about Mr. Resch, these qualities of fame and physique are petty compared to the awesome qualities of his character. On and off the school lacrosse field, his strong integrity and determination are more than inspiring to his players. While he has the ability to demand hard work from his lacrosse team, and in the classroom, his soft-spoken support and encouragement are vital aspects of the sixth grade educational curriculum. The virtues of discipline and compassion are perfected and balanced in Mr. Resch's example. It is no wonder that his room is constantly occupied by a diverse group of sixth graders, middle and upper schoolers, team captains, and coaches.

To the class of 1999, Mr. Resch's presence has special significance. As the first class he "experienced" at Penn Charter, this year's seniors hold the claim to fame of "breaking him in". While it is probable that the class of 1999 might have been a bit of a loose cannon for the then-rookie teacher, it is more probable that he holds a irreplaceable and unforgettable place in their hearts.

This year's senior class, who fell in love with Mr. Resch six years ago, can only hope to embody some of his qualities as they continue on to future experiences.

Upon graduating from Penn Charter last year, one senior lacrosse player said, "Mr. Resch is a great, great man. Penn Charter is a thousand times better for having him as a teacher and a coach. I'll never forget him." These words speak to the feelings of all members in the Penn Charter community, but especially to this year's seniors. Upon taking leave of the school this June, the class of 1999 would like to give a tremendous shout-out to Tony Resch, for being an amazing and inspirational force in our lives. Thank-you far beyond these words, and the best of luck to you in whatever the future has in store.

Erin Purcell

There is so much more to teaching than giving tests and grading papers. Any eleventh grader who has had to do Ms. Purcell's "favorite teacher paper" has probably already realized that. The teachers important enough to single out are the special ones who step outside the classroom.

Ms. Purcell is established as a tough English teacher. At the same time, she's the kind of teacher that students work for – she could make students feel guilty about forcing her to give them a bad grade. Although Erin Purcell has mastered those academic requirements, she is better known for excelling in the other areas, the ones that a student remembers forever. Due to her roles as college counselor, senior grade advisor, and field hockey coach, Ms. Purcell comes in contact with each senior on a daily basis probably more than anyone else. Her office door is always open for nervous college applicants (and there are many of us) to come in and vent their frustration. Her words of encouragement and reassurance are always soothing because it is obvious to all how hard she works to get everyone into the college of their choice.

Ms. Purcell even has a way of making menial tasks more pleasant. From the dreaded, but necessary, lunchroom duty to flipping burgers at football games as grade advisor, Ms. Purcell was always there to cheer on the students (and to supervise her partner, Mr. Hitschler). Erin even visited the yearbook office to encourage the over-worked editors, who appreciated her support, whatever her true motives might have been (caffeine?).

Not only is our class affected by Erin Purcell daily, but in the long run as well. Ms. Purcell's dedication to and genuine care for her students often shines through. Several students drop by for a mid-day or after school chat about classes, friends, problems, fears, relationships, or life. A feeling of friendship and trust fills her office. No topic is off limits and Ms. Purcell loves hearing about the good and the bad. Listening and problem solving are specialties of hers and many students rely on her for those things. Perhaps that is why so many OPCs return for visits with Ms. Purcell. It's evident that she enjoys keeping up with former students

Many class members have never been more touched by a teacher than when Ms. Purcell showed up quite voluntarily and "off-duty" at our junior prom solely because she cares enough about us to want to share in our special moments. She teaches devotion just as much as she teaches English. It's for making each one of us feel so special that we thank Erin Purcell. She is as unique as she makes us feel.

The best new pop group "N Sync" showed off their trophy at the 26th Annual American Music Awards in Los Angeles, Monday, January 11, 1999. Unfortunately, the teen wonders recieved no credit for their matching patent leather outfits and incredibly bad haircuts.

Chicago Bulls star Denis Rodman and surprise spouse Carmen Electra arrived at the Planet Hollywood restaurant in Montreal in July 1998. Sixth months later, Rodman discovered life without basketball. His good sense remained intact.

A retired police officer named Tony Lepore, a.k.a. "The Dancing Cop", directed traffic at an intersection in Providence, Rhode Island on December 15, 1998. Officer Lepore, who retired in 1998, comes out of retirement annually during the Christmas season to direct traffic and spread holiday cheer in downtown Providence.

Seconds after this picture was taken, King found himself K.O.'d on the floor. Apparently, he's not as funny as he thought. King might not want to interview Tyson.

... in a world ruled by chaos, real meaning, real news can be found only in the truly important stories of the day. And to find those stories, one needs to dig deep.

Really deep.

Lindsay Davenport celebrated her win against Martina Hingis in their finals match at the U.S. Open tennis tournament on September 12, 1998. Her no. 1 world ranking was surrendered to Hingis in early 1999.

President Clinton, flanked by National Turkey Federation (NTF) Chairman Frank Gessell and NTF Secretary Treasurer Jerry Jerome, guard a 45-pound turkey in the Rose Garden of the White House over Thanksgiving. The president, in a pre-Thanksgiving tradition, pardoned the bird.

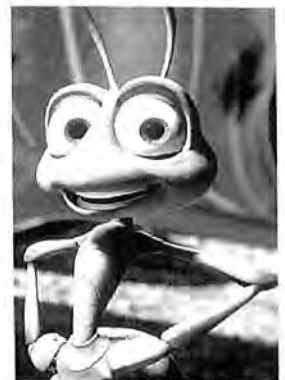

Tom Turkey was sent to the Frank Perdue Poultry Sanctuary in Fairfax, Virginia.

It's a rough world: Fluffy the Squirrel looked desperately for some sustenance inside this jack-o-lantern in October 1998. A few moments later, the rodent and the carved pumpkin were devoured by Helga, a 32-year-old silverback gorilla.

Natalie Imbruglia posed with her new best new artist video award for her hit song "Torn" at the MTV Music Awards in September, 1998. Natalie, on the left, had no role in Disney's "A Bug's Life", although some were "torn" over drawing other conclusions.

I love you! Jaimie: We managed to stay as close as ever, even when you went to college. I am so grateful for that. I love knowing that I can count on you for anything. You are the greatest! Steven: I don't know how I will handle not seeing you every day next year. You are the most amazing brother. I've loved being with just you for the past three years. I'm so happy that you were for me. You make me so proud!

Brooke: I don't know what I am going to do next year without you. Whose house am I going to run away to? I want to thank you for always being there for me. I couldn't have been blessed with a better friend. I will always be here for you. L.U.L.A.S. Traci: Where do I begin? You are the sister I never had. You will never know how much your friendship means to me. I love you. Meghan+Shack: You guys are the best. You have made my four years at Penn Charter so much fun. I want to thank you both for always being there for me with open arms. I love you and will always be here. Eden: You are the sweetest person I know. Thank you for always being there and listening to my stories. I love you. M.W.I.A.K.P: Thanks for all of the crazy memories. I am going to miss hanging out on Maggie's porch. Chris F.: I had so much fun with you the past four years. (Especially when we were getting in trouble) I am going to miss all of your crazy stunts. You better never forget your Princess. Love ya. Chris G.: You will never know how much I appreciate and admire our friendship. I hope it will last forever. I Love You. T.P.C.R.P.G.J.N.J.L: You guys are the best. I am going to miss you. Thanks for a great four years. A.M.A.P.N.M: You guys are awesome. You better come and visit me next year. I love you guys. M.K.L.H: You girls better be good next year. Melissa, you are a lot like me, careful. (Watch your attitude.) C.A.M.O: What would I do without you? I'll always know that only a phone call away. You always make everything better. Thank you for everything. I love you.

Kate: Thank

you for all of the special memories. I don't know what I am going to do w/o you and Brooke. All I know is that we will always be the "Little Miss Merchantville's". Love you. Colleen K.: I am so glad that we became such good friends. We are only going to be about 30 min. away from each other. I can't wait. Love you. Erica: I know that we aren't always in touch, but we always seem to pick up right where we left off. I hope it continues that way. I love you. Gid, Sassy, Kath: You girls are truly my sisters. I will never forget all of the good times that we have shared. (I'll probably never forget the fights either) Thanks for always being there for me. I love you. Ms. Glascott: I don't know how you ever put up with me. However you did it, I want to thank you. Mr. Resch: Thank you for the endless advice and encouragement. I love you. Mrs. White: All I can say to you is thank you. You have made a lot of things possible for me. I love you. Sean: Although I may not always show it, I love you. I'm not going to be here next year to watch over you, so you better be good. You know where I am if being the only child gets overwhelming. Love you. Chris: You will never know how much I admire and respect you. You are such a great person, never change. Thank you for always being there for me. I love you. Mom+Dad: I want to thank you for everything you have done for me. You are the best parents anyone could ask for. I love you more than you will ever know.

We may take different steps on different paths, we may get caught up in different aspects of life, we may not be able to touch and share...but our love will always be there.- S.A. Sheade 11 years are finally coming to an end. THANK YOU GOD! Hey Fellas, when we graduate we have to ask ourselves: "Did we do what we wanted while we were in this place? Did we have as much as we could have while being in this place? did we do (you know what) to as many (you know who's) while we were in this place?" You characters are what made Penn Characters that much more enjoyable. When I look back at it all I'll remember how crazy he was, how funny that guy is, or what a great athlete she was, and what a player he thought he was. Thanks Fellas and give ourselves a round of applause for giving Farnese the best 18th a guy could get.

Mom, Dad, Marnie, Kate, and yes, the one and only Emily Briskin. I don't need a page in a yearbook to explain how much I love all of you. You are my family and the ones who give me a reason to wake up in the morning with a smile. It's gonna be tough not being able to see you guys every day while I'm in college so make sure you wish me luck.

Matty D, we've have our fun and we've done what we wanted to do. We've had crazy memories and some trips to Jersey. EUSTACE calls. You've given me the chance to be able to call someone a "best friend." Will you be able to visit me in college? MATT, Do Bears - - - in woods?

I can't believe that my swing is over... I still feel like the kid in school...I came in fifth grade and it has been seven years...So much has happened...I don't really look back on my high school years as the best...Freshman and Sophomore years were actually kind of lame but I had a decent Junior year and Senior year is the best yet...I am trying to just kick back and have a good time....After the stresses of Junior year between two AP's and all of the rest of the craziness I am just glad to be able to relax..... Ready memories:....Captain Cades a.k.a. Cappy...Israel '97...truth is I don't have many Penn Charter memories, but I still have memories...to friends: Big EEE, T-Bone, Effervescence of Evations, Brandi, and of course Michelle...you are my happiness....and to all of the rest thanx for the great memories and also to many more to come. Thanx: I want to thank many of my teachers but especially Mrs. Davis for helping to make me achieve all that I could...Of course my mom and dad...where would I be without them...My sister Lisa....I will always love you more than you can know....I will miss you most of all and I don't know what I will do without you....Pop you know what I think of you...All of the papers and everything else I have ever said and written about you...You have been the greatest influence in my life and for that I am forever indebted.

So with that I leave you Penn Charter...You have held me for seven long years and I am finally free...On to better and brighter things...I am sure that someday I will look back on these years as good but for now I can only say that I am happy to be moving on.....Thank you and Goodbye.

So many life altering things can happen in such a short life.

Numerous events can occur without one ever knowing why.

So many people have touched my mind, heart, and soul. Numerous memories I'll have until I grow old.

From the first time I met J.L. w/ C.D. by my side
Something just felt right and I'll never know why.
Then A.P. came with her short hair and grin,
God had bestowed me with my three new best friends.

D.F. was there as my mentor and my sister
I don't think I could've survived the first two years without her.

God sent J.B. to stir up my life
So that I could experience love, pain, and "trife life."

Then I became the P.C. "Life Counselor"
To give advice to lost people,
Like R.S. and her many men
And T.V. and her "crazy, deranged friends."

I guess I took on the role as big sister
There are several of my girls that I love to lecture
Thanks for listening when I gave you hell
J.J., I.R., S.W., and T.L.

The summer I spent in Spain '97
Was nothing short of a visit to heaven.
That's where E.C. and I became sisters
And had life experiences, like the last night at Nacho's

Then there was the summer of '98
My life had never been so great.
C.D. and I got to meet Kasim
Every girl's All-American Dream.

Me, T.R., and E.H. became closer
By spending the summer dealing with our troubles.
Like Mo, Sylvester, and Zahir
Good thing Curtis and Laron were there.

Although I'm almost done,
I still feel I'm forgetting someone.
I don't want to leave anyone behind
So mad shout outs to the CLASS OF '99!!!

Mom, there is no way I could ever thank you enough for always being there. You have been both my mother and my father for the past ten years. Even though we may fight, I know you know...that I'm always right.

Anthony this is how I will always remember us. Sweet, innocent, cute...and you unable to talk.

If God intended us to have only a few special friends, I must have been extra good in a past life.

FAMILY- We have reached the end of the beginning. I could not have succeeded without the everlasting support of my friends and family. MOM- You will always be my "girlfriend". Thanks for being all that I needed you to be and more. Remember that we have more days ahead of us to explore together—just me and you. GRAMS- The queen in my life. Thank you for being my "lifesaver" when unsuspected obstacles arose. You will always be my mother too. POP-POP- God blessed our family with you, and your presence has added to our happiness. NANA- Even though distance continues to be a factor in our relationship, we still remain connected. Thank you for giving me a heritage that has infiltrated into my dreams. Your support and love never ceases to be felt where ever I am. Thank you for holding on to me. WINTER- Well, I couldn't have expected what God had in store for me when they said I had a little sister. Though our age difference is clearly evident I feel closer to you each day. Thank you for your undying love. I'm excited to see how beautifully you will become as you grow and develop.

FRIENDS- Memories remain in the heart and the mind. They will never leave you. Just the five of us: Latrisha, Alison, Jen, Brandi- God positioned us precisely so that we would always remain connected. All of us relate in different ways and that's what makes our friendships so special from the others in the world. We've shared plenty of experiences together to last a lifetime. You girls are one of a kind and spectacular in your own ways. Thank you for your love and support. I will always love each one of you. Sushma Raman, Lenee Voss, Mark Kormes, Katie Hayes, Kiea Hutty, Arthur Whitman- All of you who came before me cared enough to ask if everything was all right. Your insights, challenges, and experiences have been incorporated into my own. You were the older siblings I wish I had and let me know that I need not worry about tomorrow. Everything would be okay. I love you for being you.

Jess- Only you and I can recall the "Oh Baby", "Godiva Chocolate", and "He Never Failed Me Yet". Thank you for pushing me forward when I was afraid to try. You helped to give me confidence in my abilities. I'll miss you. Anita- You always remind me how to have fun no matter what. Your sunshine attitude will inspire others around you because I have been affected by you. Stay sweet. Jesus loves you. Julie- Remember the musicals, the concerts and Spain. Somehow we've experienced all these together and shared personal feelings and frustrations with one another. Buena Suerte! Evan- Time after time, you've shown me that you care and our friendship continues to survive. Live up to your expectations and be the best at them. Joe- Thanks for all your prayers throughout the past four years. You are truly a friend indeed. TEACHERS- Influences come from all those who cross our paths. MR. FITZ- I can't begin to say how blessed I am to have such a wonderful choral director. You've helped me to advance tremendously as a vocalist and for that reason I am continuing my studies in music. Your presence gives hope to us all that life is what you make it and when that has come to pass, it's worth living and enjoying. Thank you for giving me the appreciation of music. MR. DOVER- "DAD", what can I say? No matter what I was concerned about it was always important to you, and you handled it with care. You've been more than a teacher to me and my family. You reminded me that there are people in the world who continue to care for and love those who are not their own. You've opened doors for me and made a way so that I could reach my goals. GOD has granted us life and love. His plan is for us to take action in life and to give love where it is needed. Everyone He has created has value and importance on earth. Jesus loves us and only wants us to live more fulfilling and abundant lives. May God reveal himself to all of you in ways that you never would have imagined. His truth, power, and love are magnificent.

Derek Lee Drizin

Dear Dad, Mom, and Dean,

Thank you for being the best family a person could hope to be a part of. I love you all. You are my heroes. Whenever I travel, you will always be in my thoughts.

Love,

Your mutzi, Derek.

To the rest of my family:

I enjoy the company of all of you greatly. Thank you for your support, friendship, and love.

To friends, teachers, and staff:

Penn Charter is a special place to me because of all of you. It is hard to try to consistently set the examples of others, but it eases my mind to know that there are many people here doing so. It is not easy to be a part of a place like Penn Charter where one's job is to learn how to lead, but I feel thankful that I had the opportunity to do so.

I would like to thank the following people for their support and advice:

Mr. Allan Brown, Mr. Ballengee, Mrs. Ball, Mrs. Purcell, Mr. Huntigton, Mr. West, Mrs. Irving, Mrs. Geary, Mr. Rentschler

SURF'S UP, SO I AM OUT, CATCH YOU LATER!

"As far as I could tell, Ted Williams, Don DiMaggio, Walt Dropo, Birdie Tebbetts, Billy Goodman, and all the rest came from humble backgrounds. On that basis I used to think there was some connection between rough childhoods and good batting averages, which is why I sometimes wished my own house would burn down, to give me some edge." --Lawrence Sheehan, How to Play Second Base.

As I look back at the past two years I have spent at Penn Charter, I must say that I have gotten an "edge" in exactly the opposite way Lawrence Sheehan hoped he could. My experience here has been a positive and influential one, and I am thankful to my true friends (CR, CG, TP, JN, SB, PG, JL, JW, RB) and teachers, (Especially Mrs. Ball, Mr. Franek, Ms. Purcell, and Mr. Burkhart) for making it so significant. Most of all, I would like to thank my family, Mom, Tom, and Andrew, for giving me this opportunity and for supporting me along the way. You have been, and always will be, the most important people in my life. Your love and guidance are my "edge" and I would put that up against Sheehan's any day. My "edge" will never erode or decline like a batting average. Rather, it will remain strong and constant throughout my life, and I cannot begin to fully show my appreciation for it. However, I assure you, my next four years will indicate just how much your love means to me. Good luck and may God bless all in the Class of '99.

I'd also like to thank Miss Crockett (soon to be Mrs. Jones) and my tenth grade English class, for giving me one of the best classes of my life, and certainly my best in school ... The best time of all was the Disney trip and the Disney World Dozen: Christiana, Janey, Jason, Adam, Allison, Anita, Bill, Crystal, Jen, Julie, Jess and Me ... Adam, we've been friends since the first snowball fight during the snow day and you have been the one friend at school who has been consistently there for me. Bill, although we haven't always been friends (namely the 8th grade fiasco), we became friends, and I'm sure that I will eat lunch at your house long after our senior year. To my out of school friends: Brian, Brooke and Craig, We've been friends since I've lived in Philly and we'll be into college and throughout life. Adam, Matt and Dan, We'll keep seeing movies, going to Wawa and B&N, Papers! ... Finally I'd like to thank my teachers and all of the people at Penn Charter for making my school years ones to remember.

understanding and caring as you, that were willing to sacrifice so much for me. I hope you both know that you are not just my parents but two good friends that I will have forever. I love you. Ali- You truly are the sweetest girl in the world. You have been much more than just a girlfriend, you have been my best friend. The good times and love that we have shared have been very special. You have always been there for me no matter what the situation. Your smile has always brightened up my day. No matter where our two paths may lead we will always have something very special between us, I will always be there for you, and that will last a lifetime. Thank you for everything and I love you. Nan and Pop- I want to thank you both for always being there. You have supported me and extended your love throughout my life. No matter the weather, good or bad, you have both been there to cheer me on in everything I have done. You are both two wonderful people and I thank you for everything, and I love you. Walters- I have a tremendous amount of respect for you, so I hope we are able to continue our friendship. We have had some good times, bad times, and bird times together and through it all we have been able to remain good friends. Good luck in everything you encounter, and don't let anyone or anything change you. Jenny- We have had a friendship that is very special. We have shared many good times together and you have always been there for me. I will always be there for you, so remember that I will always be there for you whenever you need someone to talk to. Good Luck in everything you do. Albright, Brent, Mahabee, and McKinney- You guys have a great future in front of you, and I want to wish you guys good luck with everything, and thanks for being such good guys. Make sure you keep in touch. Brownie, Farnese, Gal, Larkin, Nejman, Pomrink, and Rahill- You guys have been my teammates, friends, and most of all my brothers. Most of my good times have been because of you guys. Our good times will be memories forever and there will be more good times in the future. Through the good times and bad you guys have been there to make me laugh or just to help me make it through. Whether it was eating a Steve Prince cheesesteak, playing a game of Madden, staying out at Lafayette, living in 759, driving to UVA, flying to ND, going to Dickinson and joining the Carnival, or having Tiffany and Chrissy over my house; it's all been a great time thanks to all you guys. You all have always had my back and I will always have yours. Thanks. To the class of '99 we are a group of people that have come from many different backgrounds, but have been able to come together and have something that is special. Good luck and thank you to all of you.

I feel as though it would be impossible for me to recapture all of the memories I have had at Penn Charter on a single page. For six years, this institution and all of the people associated with it have been such an important part of my life. I do not think that a single paragraph can fully express my gratitude to the people who have really made a difference in my life, but I'll try my best. To Pam: I can't even tell you how much being friends with you has meant to me. You are truly one of the most intelligent, beautiful, down-to-earth people I know, and your insight and humor inspire me on a daily basis. Whatever you end up doing in life, I know that you'll be successful. I don't know what I'm going to do without you next year. To Gita: You are a girl with so many talents. I am constantly impressed with your achievements: you're an amazing athlete, a brilliant student, and perhaps most importantly, a truly good person and friend. I'm going to miss being able to see your smiling face every day. To Shana: We have become so much closer over the past few years. You're a terribly smart, funny (and sometimes a little crazy) girl, and our friendship has been really important to me. I'm truly going to miss you and your sarcastic humor next year. To Sarah B.: Well, we made it! You are an amazing friend who has always been there for me and I don't know what I would have done without you all of these years. To J.A., L.R., G.T.,

L.B.: You girls are the greatest. I'm so glad that we're friends. You have given me friendships I will treasure forever. S.R., S.R., C.K., and G.S.: Okay, I realize that you have teased me for three

You have taught me how to think, write, and discover, and I feel that all of you are partially responsible for any success I have achieved up to this point or will achieve in the future. Thanks for everything. To Brian: You are such a caring, good-hearted, and (whether I would like to admit it or not) funny person. We have become so much closer as we have gotten older, and I know that our relationship will grow even stronger. Thanks for being such a great brother. I love you. (Try not to miss me too much next year.) Finally, to Mom and Dad: What can I say? I don't think that I could have asked for better parents. The two of you have been a source of constant support, direction, and inspiration. The love you have given me has meant more to me than I could ever say. I love you guys, and I am going to miss you so, so much next year.

I want to thank everyone who has helped to shape my career here at Penn Charter. It is a long list and I don't want to leave anyone out. So, I just won't name anyone. My friends know who they are, you've been great. I'll see you all soon. To my advisor: Ms. Purcell I could not have asked for anyone better. You have helped me through the worst, I would not be who I am without you. Charlie: You're the man. Not only did you manage to make swimming fun, but you have always been a person who I could talk to and get a straight answer. My family: Cathrine, Maureen, Grif, Chip, Putt, Mom, and Dad. I love you all. Thank you for everything. I cannot say enough.

RIP Uncel Marty, Aunt Pat, Aunt Jill, Ms. Mary, Cousin Spikey, Mr. Bill, Keon and Polly. I'm sorry you didn't get to see me make it this far. To the remaining members of the Magnificent 7: Chavar "Simply the Best" Hollinger, J.B., Reggie and Scott, hold down the fort(what's left of it). To Mrs. Spadaro, Crosby Brown, and Mr. Granger: thanks for helping me fine tune my artistic abilities to the point where I can express my thoughts on paper with so much more ease. To Mr. McCloskey, Mr. Resch, and Dr. Bonnie: thanks for all of your time and for all the memories. To all my teammates: I wish you the best of luck in all of your future campaigns. To the lifers: it's been real. To Mommy and Dad: thanks for believing in me, even when I didn't.

Life... is like a box of chocolates. A cheap, thoughtless perfunctoral gift that no one ever asks for. Unreturnable because all you get back is another box of chocolates. So, you're stuck with mostly undefinable whipped mint crap, mindlessly wolfed down when there's nothing else to eat while you're watching the game. Sure, once in a while you get a peanut butter cup or an English toffee but it's gone too fast and the taste is fleeting. In the end, you're left with nothing but broken bits filled with hardened jelly and teeth-shattering nuts, which if you are desperate enough to eat leaves nothing but an empty box of useless brown paper wrappers.

I wanted to take this opportunity to thank the following people for being such an important influence in my life: Team Andrew and all the other people that have taken part in Relay for Life... Drew and Danny Mac for always making me laugh... Charlie for being such a great coach and friend to me for so many years... Ms. Glascott for never being too busy to listen... Fitz for making me rediscover my love of music... LC for always being there when I needed to complain about anything... PM for being such a great friend, and discovering with me the wonderful world of sarcasm... GR for always being there when I needed to vent... All the teachers that have supported me in everything that I do... Meg for being there during the toughest times of my life... Brian for taking my insults (I only do it because I want you to do what I know you are capable of)... Scott for becoming such a good friend... Dad for still inspiring me to be the best I can every day that I have... Mom for supporting me in everything I do, and believing in me when nobody else does. All of you have made my years here so enjoyable. Thank you.

HUNTS! The Sultan of Sax

Well it's been an interesting twelve years here. I have a couple of thank you's to bestow on a few lucky people. Firstly I'd like to thank my parents. I don't know how you did it, but you raised me up well. This wouldn't be as much of an accomplishment if it weren't for the fact that you did this in spite of my having the worst genes imaginable. Thanks a lot.

Next, I'd like to thank the two people who introduced me to my two greatest loves. In no particular order I'd like to thank Lynn Riley and Mr. Brown. Through them I learned Jazz and Art, the two most rewarding skills anyone can have. Neither is better than the other, just different, and each gives me so much joy. I wouldn't be happy without them. Thank you very much.

Now I'd like to thank the two teachers that have made the biggest difference in my life. Mr. Don't-Call-Me-Doctor Kashatus. You showed me the ideal teaching environment. I may never go into History, but you opened up teaching for me, which I may very well go into, as a source of joy second only to art and music. I will be certain to steal all your ideas if I do choose to teach. Finally, I'd like to thank Mrs. Davis for showing me how much I can enjoy science. If music or art fails as a full time career, I can always splice them in with a subject that is only a couple inches behind them. If music and art succeed, I will always keep reading and attending lectures. I will never forget science, and I have you to thank for that. Thank you very much.

And now, on with everyone's favorite part, the incomprehensible blurbs:

10th Grade. The squash team at the pancake house—M.W. graphically describes M.B. and C.M. and horrifies two unwilling listeners—that and the loss of color in the waiter's face as he sees 15 rowdy kids enter the restaurant (luckily we were squash)...Mr. M. ruins Wilkens' hard work... "Take Five"...M.S. vs. C.R....summer in France...A needed reunion with O.A.

11th grade. E.J.'s exploits begin with a Spaniard. C.C. flashes after Unknown Solutions...B.F.'s sister thinks I'm cute????...I try to get Mr. W. Fired...Mrs. D. introduces me to hell...Mr. Kashatus shows me what real teaching is—"Oh, Maaarvin!!!!"...4WBP] or Kids in Shorts perform for the Overseers banquet...Lord Trumpet...Tim: "You don't... with fruity pebbles...Shatz kidz...Three people tell me about my eyes, bringing the total up to four...is O.A.'s sister encouraging me?"

12th grade. I'M BEING RECRUITED?...nothing really happened in 11th grade...How long you been teaching here for Mr. W.?... K.P. has a photographic memory?

I do it for the joy it brings because I'm a joyful girl, because the world owes me nothing and we owe each other the world. I do it because it's the least I can do. I do it because I learned it from you. And I do it just because I want, because I want to. —Ani DiFranco

To Rachel—

"I've got your mind," I said. She said, "I've your voice." I said, "You don't need my voice, girl, you have your own." But you never thought it was enough so... they went years like sisters, blanket girls, always there through that and this. "There's nothing we can not ever fix," I said. —Tori Amos

Well, Satan, we survived and I needed you through all of this like a third arm. We had some great times in the graveyard with Keith and playing Nintendo at Ed's. My word! I can't name all the crazy memories because I'd get sent to a shrink, but I remind you of that time in Miami Beach with the flamingos and the white out. I love you! You are my memory bank for the last four years and it's so good to have someone to share everything with. You are sweet, funny, and beautiful (and I like beating you up). K.I.T. 624-1702. Love you. Amber—I'm a brat, you're a brat. That sums it up. May now we can stop beating the crap out of each other. Actually, you may not believe me, but I have a lot respect for you and I am just looking out for you. You have sweetness at your core and I love you.

Daddy—I'm so glad to see how our relationship has fused. I've always known you loved me, but now you are a friend. I will miss your humor and cooking more than anyone else's.

Mommy--You are more beautiful now than ever. I am sorry for my sometime selfishness. Your strength and resilience never cease, and I am in constant awe of you. Thank you for giving me yourself as inspiration. I love you.

To Amy—

DANCE FOOT TO BE WEAR WEAR RELOCATED...I have never stopped feeling like a piece of me was lost when we stopped being so close. I love the memories we have, especially freshman and sophomore years. Thank you for being my friend unconditionally. I hope, when we're both hip and cool in New York, we can spend more time together and go do trendy, expensive (or maybe cold, expensive, and parapalegic) stuff. Love you (And Michael Stipe). You keep humoring me, too!

I keep on dying again. Veins collapse, opening like the small fists of sleeping children. Memory of old tombs, rotting flesh and worms do not convince me against the challenge challenge. The years and cold defeat live deep in minds along my face. They dull my eyes, yet I keep on dying, because I love to live.

I love Mickey Mouse more than any woman I have ever known.

—Walt Disney

The most important thing I learned on Tralfamadore was that when a person dies he only appears to die. He is still very much alive in the past so it is very silly for people to cry at his funeral. All moments, past, present, and future, always have existed, always will exist. The Tralfamadoreans can look at all the different moments just the way we look at a stretch of the Rocky Mountains, for instance. They can see how permanent all the moments are, and they can look at any moment that interests them. It is just an illusion we have here on Earth that one moment follows another one, like beads on a string, and that once a moment is gone, it is gone forever. —Kurt Vonnegut, Slaughter-House Five

Warning! The remainder of this run-on paragraph is my blurb. This is a blurb that will be remembered. This is a blurb that, when I am president, may have me impeached. This is a blurb that can make or break a marriage. Of all the blurbs you read, make sure this is the first on the list. Read it before you read your own! Who am I? I am the guy next door, the doggy in the window, the man on the moon. Wait, I'm none of those things, I'm just Evan. And, all other Evans and homonyms of Evan must change their names and stop ruining my reputation. So, why the few memories? Because, if I unloaded all my memories, you would be choking on your own vomit right now. I will uncover some secrets. I was a polygamist and had three wives. 1, M.N. 2, M.M. 3, S.E. One inside comment first: (N,M you are always on my mind, don't ever leave, you are a 12 on a 1-10 scale). I was sick for two weeks, but was better by the junior prom. Midnights at the rodeo! Two years ago I fell in the cafeteria. No, this wasn't a fall, this was a cartoon-like slip into the air. One week, I completely forgot to wear pants, and it happened to be the same week I had to give many speeches during Meeting for Worship.

Mrs. Davis doesn't hate me. I only mumble in my spare time. I'm bad at cross country. I can't throw a football. I can't dance. I had a thing for H.B. in sixth grade. I have 11 fingers. I never said, "Be tall as this!!" And yes, my dad is a UFO researcher. To my parents: I've said it before and I'll say it again, thanks for the whole life thing. I love you guys. To Matt, Ed, Adam, Todd, Alison, and Mike: You each know how much you each mean to me, and I thank you for your love, and I love you all back. To Mrs. Davis: Dabis, I never called you "Mom" (Although D.C. thinks I did), but you are as good as a second mother to me. I love you for all you have done for my life. To all the ladies in the joint: yeah, you know who you are. Thanks. To all the women of the world: take a number. And, finally, to my brother: good move! To all the people that I missed, I can never cover everything. One last thing. Go into Mr. Franek's room and read my Chapbook, especially the sentence handbook. You will die a horrible and painful death—in laughter! It's the greatest Chapbook ever written. Go read it! DISBAND!!

It will not be easy to leave the people who have been my life for eighteen years. I will leave, but I will never forget. To my teachers: Thank you for genuinely caring. It is with your help that I have become the person I am today. To my family: I wouldn't want to be a part of a world in which I did not have your love and support. Each of you holds a special place in my heart. To my friends: Thanks for the lessons. It is from you that I have learned the most. Be lucky, be well, and above all, be happy. Spencer, Greg, and Scott: You have been the source of much laughter and happiness in my life. The connections that we have built are a few of my greatest accomplishments. For your friendship I am eternally grateful. Wherever you are, you will always be in my thoughts and in my soul. Court: I have watched you grow from a little girl into a strong and intelligent young woman. You have always been on my side. I appreciate this more than you know. I know that our relationship will only become stronger. Continue to grow and to learn. I will not be at home, but I will always be only a phone call away. Take care of Mom. I love you. Mom: Your selflessness and dedication will never cease to amaze me. I cannot express in words the gratitude I feel towards you. You have done everything in your power to give me every opportunity. For this I can never fully repay you. I can only promise to make you proud in return. You are the person that I truly admire. I love you like I will never love anyone else.

Whatever benefits might result from dishonest or otherwise unethical actions will always be outweighed by the damage that is done – damage to your relationship with the other party, damage to your reputation, and damage to your own self-esteem and sense of honor. In the long term, it is always more advantageous to take the high road. Beyond the practical rewards that will eventually accrue, there is the immeasurable benefit of being able to wake up in the morning and know that you have done the right thing. Amy- It's hard to believe that you're 12
years old and I'm graduating. It seems like yesterday when I carried you around everywhere.

Susan- The friendship we have formed over the past few years is something that I truly cherish. Thank you for always listening. You have helped transform my life and were always there, lending undying support and encouragement. I love you.

Dad-- It is difficult to put into words how much our relationship means to me. You have always been there for me, always standing strong in times when I was weak. You have taught me so many lessons, most importantly, perseverance. I love you.

You have matured into a beautiful young woman and I have enjoyed watching you grow up. Know that you always have my unwavering love and support. I'll miss you.

Tori and Jay- Thank you so much for putting up with my silliness. You brought me so much excitement and joy. You were the two friends who stuck with me through all of the ups and downs. I will always remember; I will always love you.

darkness and light.

Mom and Dad- Thank you for starting me on my journey. You paved the path and held my hand for so much of the way. Thank you for showing me what it means to love unconditionally. You have prepared me to walk the path of my

To my friends- I wouldn't have made it without you. Thank you for filling my heart with laughter and tears. Whether running through the rain, experiencing an anticlimatic night out, waiting for the rate determining factor, making candles, enjoying my jokes (hah!), learning to use public transportation, giving "good" advice, playing with Scooby, learning to dance, picking out my fro, or facing the great challenges of life, we had some good times. As a gesture of gratitude, I'd be glad to play some Max-

Teachers and Mentors- You opened the door of my soul with knowledge, wisdom and understanding. Above all, thank you for your faith in me. I will carry your sparks with me forever.

For the most part, people do five things on their senior pages. They comment upon and thank the people that influenced them. They have quotes that they think shaped them or to which they feel a connection. They have quotes they think are funny. They talk about what other people do on their senior pages. And they speak about their closest friends. I plan to do all these things.

First of all, special thanks goes out to my mom, her constant love and support has helped shape me and make me the person that I am, and to my dad, he always pushed me to do my best and never settled for anything less than what I was capable of. Thanks also to my grandmom, whose unconditional love has inspired me to be the best person I can be.

During my high school career certain teachers have had a definite impact on my life. A few of these teachers I would like to thank are Mrs. Davis, Mr. Watters, and Ms. Purcell. Thank you Mrs. Davis for seeing the potential in me and never allowing me to do any worse than my best. You have been a true friend and a trusted advisor. Thank you Mr. Watters, you helped me through my difficult middle school years and made me feel welcome in a foreign environment. I will always try to follow your example, making people feel comfortable wherever they are. Thank you Ms. Purcell, you showed me that there is more to English class than boring stories and lifeless essays. Also thank you for making sure I got into college.

To my friends: These high school years have been both some of the most trying and some of the most exciting of our lives. You have inspired me to be a better person, made me laugh, made me cry, and above all you have been there for me in my times of need, just as I have been there for you, in your's. Thank you to my friends, make sure you never forget the good times we have had: 9th grade: The Tab * Naked and the Nude * Eddie Da K * Todd, the move, and the couch incident. 10th grade: The stup * The Gang * Ed = The enforcer * The List * Ghoti Kharr * Evan's first wife * The kid in the closet * at Ed's house * Moongate * Monkey arms * "Breadfruit, Horse feathers, and Indian chiefs" * Sigmund * SSPS Mike. 11th grade: Dabis * More wives for Evan * CD saga * AP chem with Dabis * Disney World Dozen (Jason, Christiana, Janey, Bill, Julie, Ben, Jen, Crystal, Alison, Anita, Jess) * Tickling Jen's knee in band * The big black guy getting out of his car * RAGE! * Cancer walk * the Halloween costume * Cross country talks with Evan * APUS study session * "I'll give YOU the clap." * Monkey siblings * Acrophobia * Wall Street Sports * "Do you know Todd?" * Chinese fire drills * France at ILMUNC * BILL'S # 1!!! * Andorra in the rain with Jen * Friendly's * Valentine's day at Jen's house * Brer Bear * Shut Up, Jen * The JL fiasco * Dopey and Satan * Hours on the phone with Bill * and finally Ben's crazy theories. So to STM, ESJ, MSZ, EK, BEF, WSK, JL, JL#2, AP, and LC, I wish you the best of luck. I will always be there for you.

Here it is. This is what you paid to see. Even if you got this yearbook for free, or if you stole it, or something, this is still what you paid to see. Or didn't pay to see. I imagine some people paid not to see it. At any rate, this is my page. So. Are you ready? Get ready. Here comes my stuff. You know, memories and whatnot. It's a wild ride, and not one for those of you with weak stomachs, heart conditions, or pregnant women. This page is a litany of things none of you should do at home. Don't do them anywhere else, either. They could get you shot, arrested, or, in some states, burned at the stake. Don't worry if you don't understand; in fact, I don't understand. Just believe, as I do, that they were all funny at the time.

We're looking for the American dream, and we were told it was somewhere in this area... Well, we're here looking for it, 'cause they sent us out here all the way from San Francisco to look for it. That's why they gave us this white Cadillac, they figure that we could catch up with it in that.

-Hunter S. Thompson

An old woman was walking down the road when she saw a gang of thugs beating a poisonous snake. She rescued the snake and carried it back to her home, where she nursed it back to health. They became friends and lived together for many months. One day they were going in to town, and the old woman picked up the snake and the snake bit her. Repeatedly. "Oh God," she screamed, "I am dying! Why? I was your friend! I saved your life! I trusted you! Why did you bite me?" The snake looked up at her and said, "Lady, you knew I was a snake when you first picked me up."

I would like to thank all of the wonderful people who have inspired me during my time at Penn Charter. To all of my teachers: thank you for enriching my life in so many ways--not just in the classroom. To my classmates: I have known many of you for what seems like forever. I wish you all the best, wherever life takes you! To my best friends: writing this down is forcing me to deal with the fact that we will soon be going our separate ways. You have been with me through all of my highs and lows over the past few years. The times that we have spent together have meant so much to me. Each of you has a place in my heart forever. Always keep in touch. To my parents: I love you more than words can say! Thank you for the inspiration, unconditional love that you have always given to me. David and John--I'll miss you next year! I'm very lucky to have you for brothers. Don't ever change. I love you both, very much.

" 'Real isn't how you are made,' said the Skin Horse. 'It's a thing that happens to you. When a child loves you for a long, long time, not just to play with, but REALLY loves you, then you become Real.'

'Does it hurt?' asked the Rabbit.

'Sometimes,' said the Skin Horse, for he was always truthful. 'When you are Real you don't mind being hurt.'

'Does it happen all at once, like being wound up,' he asked, 'or bit by bit?'

'It doesn't happen all at once,' said the Skin Horse. 'You become. It takes a long time. That's why it doesn't often happen to people who break easily, or have sharp edges, or who have to be carefully kept. Generally, by the time you are Real, most of your hair has been loved off, and your eyes drop out and you get loose in the joints and very shabby. But these things don't matter at all, because once you are Real you can't be ugly, except to people who don't understand.'"

Penn Charter better abolish the dress code and the sports requirement or I'm never giving to the alumni fund. OK, that was my public service announcement. Mom - You're the reason I am who I am today (whether or not that's a good thing I don't know). I love you and I always will. Thank you for everything. Al - Thanks for showing me Cocteau movies when I was six. Maybe that's why I'm so weird. Gram and Pa - Someday that book about our family will be written. Dana and Rachel - I never would have made it this far without you guys. In ninth grade you were blessings disguised as cute new girls with great shoes. Never lose your spunk, your senses of humor, your loyalty or your tastes in clothes. Jess and Marg - What would I have done without my combat boots-silver chains-black nail polish-rock n roll-AP US girlyies? Although our politics may differ, we'll always have Iggy. Keep the faith. Sarah M - Thanks for all the shows, First Fridays, homemade outfits, not to mention Disney World. Don't you forget about me. Sarah K - We've been there for each other through everything; the zine, the scene, Harrison Ford and other boys. I'll always be there for you. Julie T - You are my longest friend at PC. If we can make it through ballet, middle school and AP US, we can conquer the world. Stephanie - If you live through this with me I swear that I would die for you. Trina, Jon and the rest of the Brown mob - It was one crazy summer. I know I haven't seen the last of you. My PC underclass friends - Stick it out. If I can make it, so can you. Sonic Youth - Thank you for being the soundtrack to my life.

This has been thirteen years of my life.

Mom and Dad, you have always been there for me with constant love and support. Thank you for giving me the space that I needed to grow and experience new things. I could not have asked for better parents. You are not only my parents, but you are my friends. I love you more than you could ever know.

Zandy, you are my best friend in the whole world. I don't know what I am going to do without you in college. Thank you for making me laugh.

Greg, Colin, and Scott, you guys are like brothers to me. Thank you for all of the funny, crazy, and great times we had.

To all my friends and teachers at Penn Charter, thank you for making me want to get up and come to school each day. It is my friends and teachers that make Penn Charter such a unique and special place.

It was a puzzling day in 9th grade when I first dragged my feet across the doorway of P.C. I still remember making it a habit of getting lost in myself and the crowd and the hallway all at the same time. Confusion got the best of my intentions. But, as I got my feet wet in the Penn Charter community, I felt some of the weight that had confined me to my limits slowly disintegrate into the back of my mind. After this experience, the strength that I had built up from dragging an anchor along with me to wherever I went had paid off in the end. I saw myself boundless in world that previously appeared caged; however, when I saw the pathway clear towards my goal, I gathered quite a bit of confidence after each triumphant step. Penn Charter, thank you for being an important stepping stone in my path to happiness. Mom and Dad, you have collectively been such a big man at my corner and I thank you for sticking behind during all of my life. Laur, you're an unbelievable sister and I have always been impressed to find you, regardless of the situation, with your head on straight. You've set a good example. Friends, you guys have been indescribable. Backstreet Boyz- we don't care about spelling. Gooney Gugu. Just remember, Stevie Wonder is a mutual genius. I'm gonna miss you all.

-Matthew Silverhardt

Mountains should be climbed with as little effort as possible and without desire. The reality of your own nature should determine the speed. If you become restless, speed up. If you become winded, slow down. You climb the mountain in an equilibrium between restlessness and exhaustion. Then, when you're no longer ahead, each footstep isn't just a means to an end, but a unique event in itself. To live only for some future is shallow. It's the sides of the mountain which sustain life, not the top. Here's where things grow.

Susan and Rachel I love you both and I know I can count on you guys whenever I need you.

Dad, there is nothing I would not do to spend one more minute of quality time with you. I think about you everyday. I still remember everything you taught me and I can only hope that I've made you proud.

Mr. and Mrs. Park thank you for always making me feel welcome and free in your house

Mrs. Coleman thank you for your honesty and showing me the meaning of respect

The easiest question to answer is 'what has been the best part about going to Penn Charter?' For me it has always been the teachers I was lucky enough to have. My deepest thanks are for the moments I spent in your classrooms and my deepest regrets are for the teachers I missed out on having. I would especially like to thank: Ms. Purcell for your honesty and courage...Mr. Burkhardt for your diligence and kindness...Dr. Kashatus for the challenges you put in front of me...Ms. Glascott for your extraordinary heart and for your interest...Mrs. White for showing me the kind of person I want to be when I needed it most...and Mr. West for your inspiration

Mr. and Mrs. Watters: I am who I am and have accomplished what I have accomplished in part because of you. I miss you guys. Here's to the future. All my love.

Liza: Your friendship and outstanding character are a rock in my life. I miss you terribly but am looking forward to all that lies ahead for both of us. I love you and don't forget, next year it will be you.

Grange: I write these words while all the while I know that they are inadequate, that they will never be able to express what I truly feel. However, I feel content with the knowledge that they have never been more sincere, then they are as I say them to you. You are an amazingly passionate, inspirational, spiritual, and loving human being. You are my teacher, my advisor, and my friend. I do not think I could have made it through these last years without your guidance. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Bright Futures for Bright People

Lizzie Roller married a televangelist who greatly resembled Jesus, named Bruce Offacliff. Keeping her maiden name she became Lizzie Roller-Offacliff.

After graduating from Wharton, Matt Blank, went on to be an entrepreneur who owned a national chain of massage parlors. After several years of unparalleled success, suspicions arose about the parlors. When asked to comment on this, Matt replied, "I don't do that kind of stuff."

Pat Gallagher caught a break in Hollywood starring as Wayne Arnold in "Wonder Years" the movie. After the movie flopped, Pat moved to Avalon to open an all night lemonade stand on the 21st street bridge.

Chris Rahill's life became threatened when a long time McDonalds' employee tracked him down and beat him with a plunger for his illegal use of the "upper deck."

Sarah Shacklett, shunned from Broadway, finally hit it big in Hollywood. She has her own game show titled "Truth or Dare." Contestants and audiences alike love the experience and charisma that she brings to the game.

Jamie Wybar opened up a hot dog stand in England with Joe Hwang, where their specialty was "saucy Hwang Hwieners". When asked how they make such a tasty dog they replied, "We make 'em like it's our job."

Margaux Genovese, saddened at the thought of leaving her boys behind, decided to buy a home so she could be near them. For their graduation present she is planning a trip to the Bahamas at a reduced rate.

Chris Hatcher-McMullen decided to follow his former classmate Warren Penn in starring in a comeback sitcom show on prime time television. Warren's inspirational role as Webster made Hatch believe that he too could gain stardom from a previous show. Hatch decided to shave the 'fro leaving only a line down the center of his head. Hatch was ready to tackle the role of Mr. T in the A-Team. But was the A-Team ready for him?

Chris Ferrari witnessed the potential for his success and decided to audition for the role of Al in the Bundy family reunion. He got the part but refused to take the role unless Maria Pagnanelli was cast as his wife Peg.

Ricky Mariano was appointed head of the teamsters by his father, Governor Richard Mariano Sr. Several years later Ricky was reported missing never to be seen again. Some said that he was taking his two tone car for a little joy ride and that he would be back soon.

Lisa Christy became the feature wrestler in the Gorgeous Ladies of Wrestling (GLOW), taking the name Lisa "Lay the Smack Down." She decided that the competition was not stiff enough for her so she decided to break the sex barrier and join the WWF.

Ernie Weiss tried to revive the American gladiators in a solo effort. He attempted to be both the contestant and the Gladiator at the same time. His attempt failed and after trying to joust himself he ended up with missing teeth and a broken heart.

Matt Stone realized that the future of his lumber company rested on getting back his old partner, James Wood. Their slogans included such favorites as "We have more Wood than the average guys," "We Just want to give you our wood," and "Have you ever seen logs like these."

If you thought that Matt Kessler was going to be a famous sports announcer...you're wrong, 'cause life doesn't always work that way. However, Matt did not give up his dream. He is presently calling play by play for seventh grade field hockey. We salute you Matt Kessler.

Ryan McGorman became so jealous at the rise to fame of his brother that he unleashed his samurai sword and stabbed him in the back and took over his position as chief pianist of the New Radicals. He then changed the name to the New Grundicals

Jamie Stretch's picked up the nickname "The Anvil" by indoor lacrosse fans for his punishing blows. He is coach Resch's favorite enforcer.

After Penn Charter Ben Schroyer and Eric Lightman moved westward to raise crops and live off the fat of the land. When the harvest came Eric and Ben had contrasting views about the future of the crops. Unable to battle with Eric, Ben took his seeds elsewhere and started a farm of his own.

After hearing that World War Three had been declared, Young Kim was the first person to sign up for the army. For two weeks following his commitment to the war, Young practiced his war maneuvers in the comfort of his home. He couldn't wait to get his gun and uniform. However, when it came time for Young to report to boot camp, and he learned that he would actually be going to the front in six weeks, Young quit the army and took up synchronized swimming.

Kathleen Rogers and Emily Manning sat on a park bench every day of their lives and complained at the strollers passing by.

After graduation, Keith Cappel didn't know what to do with himself since Chris Ferrari was now out of the picture. So, he wandered around aimlessly until he joined Kathleen and Emily on their park bench. He still aspires to be KC of "KC and JoJo."

Jed Spielman was upset with the fall 2004 line of clothing from Abercrombie & Fitch. He decided to burn his wardrobe and make a switch to all FUBU gear.

Anne Hassler was hired as Greg's personal assistant, but was fired when the water from the toilets mysteriously disappeared. Rather than suffer the embarrassment, she shouted "This is it!", and fled to Spain.

Maggy White finally earned enough money to afford a second-rate apartment in Soho. After selling seven hundred copies of her book: Stories with a Protagonist Resembling the Marlboro Man, she was offered a position as a reporter for the "New York Times". She declined the offer, complaining that the deadlines were "enough to make you wanna puke". She started her own publishing company. She now resides in the cafes of New York among a new breed of modern philosophes.

Katie Park, upon graduating from PC, was plagued with a bout of restlessness. She decided to participate in a vigorous outdoor program entitled: An Excuse to Dress Up Like Rambo. After slipping in some mud for the millionth time, she landed in a pile of dank weeds. She grew up to pursue the lucrative yet outdated career of train robbing.

Ryan Briskin went to medical school to become an obstetrician specializing in premature births. As with most premature births there are many complications. It is his job to save the baby.

Things found in Scott Roslyn's hair: Squirrels, Esther Kim, the murder weapon, his AP History textbook, a throw rug, a Jaime Wybar patented saucy hwang hwiener, magic, an adjective and tickets to the wolf show.

Shana Etish decided to reveal all in her new book, "The Life of a Dancer". In the book, titles of chapters include, Chapter 1: Maintaining My Flexibility, Chapter 2: The Fire in my Dance, Chapter 3: Don't get burned, Chapter 4: Dare Me to Push the Limit, and Chapter 5: I Did it My Way.

After years of believing it to be true, Colin Kelly finally received conformation that he was God's gift to women. He described this revelation, "I was sitting all alone in my room when it hit me. I always get what I want."

Kate Ginty was reported missing somewhere on Mt. Everest. Everyone had given up hope of seeing her again, but last month she resurfaced. When asked what was the hardest part of being removed from society for six years, she replied, "I couldn't shave my legs".

While attending Duke University, Spencer Reich not only enriched his mind, but continued to tone his body. He had all the tools: the tight abs, the 24 inch pythons, and the will to win. He just had to dance. His raw power combined with his natural talent led him to Las Vegas, where he took the National Dance Championship.

David Cades decided to convert his moniker "Cap'n Cades" into the hero of a children's television show which eclipses both the Mighty Morphin Power Rangers and the VR Troopers in the ratings. Look for "Cappy the Video Game" and "Cappy the Flame Thrower" this Christmas.

Pam Mirsky was accepted to all of the colleges that she applied to. When May 1st rolled around, and everyone told her that it was time to make a decision, she was looking at them but not listening. She failed to make the decision and now works at Houlihan's as a waitress.

After being cut from the football team for showboating in practice, Chris Glowacki begged to return to Penn Charter for another year. When they refused, the former President spazzed. He is still serving Saturday detentions.

Kyle Chaffin went to Penn and earned a degree in Biology. After college, he started working with his old friend Dorian in Happy Valley, so that he could finance his grad school education.

Marvin Cooley's success in the music industry left him with some very powerful friends (Larry Flynt and Hugh Hefner to name a few). His buddies helped him to publish his magazine "The Player's Instruction Manual." He and his beautiful young wife T.T. have four children and live near the Philly Airport.

David Allahand made quite a name for himself in the esoteric film industry. When asked what the highlight of his career was he said, "Working with my good buddy Ron Jeremy and a rhino."

Dana Greenspon married her old boyfriend Ben Cake and they live on an organic rice farm. She supports him in his endeavors to be hackey-sack champion of the world. She is presently working on creating a superior brand of rice.

Korman Weimer grew up to be a really swell guy. He bought a house, had some kids, and talked fondly of his best friend in school, Pete Farnese. When asked about his relations with Korman, Pete replied "Who the hell is that?" Pete should remember that Korman was the one who bought him a whole bag of lollipops for his birthday.

Inspired by her successful retellings of her weekends during frees in the lounge, Dana Inverso became a stand-up comic. She replaced Sarah Jessica Parker on a TV sitcom, but spent all of her salary on shoes. Broke, she moved to Abington where she married Relluf Neb.

After being mistaken for Dana one too many times, Rachel Brown went berserk, shaved her head, got plastic surgery, and had a pair of platform shoes surgically attached to her feet. These changes vastly improved her tennis game and she went on to win a Wimbledon title. She and Dana still manage to wear the same outfit one day after the other.

All that eating finally caught up with Brandilyn Alexander during her first year at Penn. When Ms. Flemming saw her 20 pounds heavier, Brandi was booted off of "the list."

When Latrishia Chattin left Penn Charter, there was chaos because no one knew whom to see with their problems. She returned quickly as the new "school counselor". She set up office right next to her locker, as it has always been.

Crystal Davenport got back from Spain in May, but spent so much time getting ready that she missed graduation.

Jenn Leath made it to the 2004 Olympics for the 100 meter dash and the long jump. The United States hope for gold was dashed since she was conspicuously absent from these events. When asked to explain, she stated that she had been "catching up with old friends from the InterAc."

Derek Drizin went on to surfer fame as he starred in "Endless Summer 3: Meet the Hawaiian Tiger" with Tiffany Amber Theissen. The film went straight to video.

Ari Elias -Bachrach freed Kevin.

Ben Fuller missed a chance at Physics book fame when he was drafted into the NHL. However, he was forced to give up this career after a devastating broken finger suffered during a high-five with a teammate. He now resides in Miami.

Julie Thompson became a motivational speaker on "How to Keep Calm When Behind the Wheel". After the tour was given bad ratings, she was seen cruising through Chestnut Hill with her "posse" in tow.

The moment she graduated, Kate Ogg went through a Cinderella-like transformation: the teal Mustang turned into a Jeep Grand Cherokee, the McDonald's job became one at the J.Crew store, and her catch phrase went from "What the *&^@? to "What-ever!"

"Caliope", Amy Phillips' pride and joy, was seen by the promoters of the Lillith Fair. When they asked if she would go on tour as the roving reporter, she gladly accepted. Keep your eyes out for the girl in the leather/vinyl pants reciting her poem "How my heart was stretched for love".

Margurite Pfoutz followed her true calling to become a surfer girl/bum. She is the poster girl for Sunkist and she also works as Derek's agent.

Alison Peet fulfilled her lifelong dream of working at the Flyers concourse (yes, Shjon Podein returned to the team). She also has a call-in radio show about how to solve all your problems in less than an hour. She was also seen attending Wrestlemania 45 as the guest of Jon Bon Jovi.

Bill Krebs never left Penn Charter because of the Y2K threat. When asked to comment, he said "That could be a problem".

After graduation, Ethan Schwartz put on his cowboy hat and rode off into the sunset.

A top research scientist at MIT, Jess Nicholson discovered the cure for cancer, but then forgot it. She then embarked on a cross-country tour of hotel lounges singing operatic covers of Guns N Roses songs while accompanying herself on the piano. Her burgeoning career was cut short when the weight of all her enormous rings crushed of her fingers. Having discovered cold fusion and having solved the unified field theory, Todd Meyer pushed Stephen Hawking out of his wheelchair and called him names on national TV. After a series of "boo"s, he suddenly rejected science and went into the NBA draft with Mike Zaid. He plays on the Utah Jazz under the name "Steverino."

Steve Stanek and Matt Silverhardt decided to take their JJBL (Junior Jewish Basketball League) show on the road. They decided to create an NBA expansion team called the Long Island "Challah Bakers." Their patented play was the "lox and roll."

Rico Pagnanelli, after failing to attain ranking as a great tennis star, got his dream job as a Baja Beach Patroller.

After an unsuccessful career as a Madonna impersonator, Anita Idiculla went to LA where she was hired as a writer for TNBC. Impressed with her crafty plot twists and "wicked cool" character development on "One World", Ricky Schroeder proposed to her. Though he was too old for her tastes, they were married on the "Pirates of the Caribbean" ride at Disney World. Ricky, Anita, and their daughter Dara and their son Will live in Annapolis.

Pierre Revol, the great lounge singer, feared that his music was too Latin for the Americans but too American for the Latins. He decided to move south of the border where he took on the name, JJ Ramirez, "the Ultimate Latino."

Everyone knew that Dan Greenberg's attraction was so great that it was bound to happen. It came as a surprise to no one that the two would be united forever. After all the time they spent together nothing could break them apart. Yes, Dan married the purple hippo at the zoo. And you must wonder what happened to his high school sweetheart Meg Baran. She's doing ok.

After having his legs tied into a knot while snowboarding, Edward Kim became an announcer for ESPN 2 and a Rage Against the Machine groupie. Because he is so talkative, he is looking for a career in "replacing that guy from the Micro-Machines commercials" or "being the new 'scat-man.'" However, he has not received his call-backs.

Adam Melnick attempted to break the world record of having the greatest number of people in one car. He just quite passed the record when he fit three-hundred and fourteen people in the self-proclaimed "shaggin wagon." With the record shattered, Adam has devoted his life to skiing and the Dave Matthews Band.

Michael Zaid and his criminal-companion Evan Jacobs held up a few banks before splitting up during an argument over which one was the more perky. After a brief pro-wrestling career, Mike ran for President and was elected. Shortly after his inauguration, he resigned to follow his true dream of the NBA draft, and now plays on the Utah Jazz with Todd.

Gita Rao ended her successful medical career in order to pursue her love of soft rock. She bought B-101 and took over for her idol Delilah. She can now be heard from 8-12 every weeknight playing her favorite love songs.

Unable to support all of his children, Tom Pomrink was forced to drop out of college and got a job as a full-time lifeguard. However, due to an error he made with his trusty TI-82 calculator he lost his apartment. Painfully, he gave up his dream to break Wilt Chamberlain's scoring record and moved in with the Nejman's where he is studying to be a priest.

After graduation, Joe Nejman opened up his own weightlifting supplement store, which promptly put GNC out of business. Joe lost his millions because of the various aggravated assault charges. He moved back in with his parents and is studying with Pomrink to be a priest.

Lindsay Coleman moved to the upper west side and became a spiritual advisor to chic Manhattanites. Her influence was visible when New York's rich yuppie set changed their usual stylish black clothing for the punk look. Of course it all started to fall apart when the world discovered that the bald guy who followed her around was only Nano, who had lost all his hair using too much bleach.

After a struggling career in the minor leagues, Joe Larkin was spurned by Eden Silverstien. When asked to comment, she said, "I was in it for the money." Overcome with disappointment, Joe and Pat "the Dogg" moved in with Paul Hart and became career assistant coaches.

Zach Segal missed Penn Charter so much that he went into a deep depression. Unlike most people, who stop talking when they are depressed, Zach talked continuously for three months.

Unfortunately, Matthew Huntington had his father as a teacher in the last trimester of senior year. Shortly after his trauma and graduation, he was seen playing the saxophone and flute simultaneously in Mexico City. Most recently, Matt has become a professional beatnik, and has been seen saying "java" and "daddy-o" for money.

After becoming the star of the WNBA Championship team, Stephanie Straup challenged both Tom Pomrink and Pat Gallagher to games of one-on-one. She easily beat them both with the help of hecklers Chris Ferrari and Keith Cappel in the stands.

Imogen Anderson grew up to buy McMichael Park. There she set up a riding rink for jaded seniors to visit during their frees. She abandoned the project when the techno remake version of her original song, "I Only Beat You 'Cause I Love You" made it big.

After years of perseverance, Mark Hecker became the talented star of Broadway's Les Miserables with Tom Griffin as his understudy.

Stephen Brown hit it big in the entertainment business. He starred in the remake of Animal House as Bluto Blutarski. Brownie cashed in and bought Holt's Cigar company. He now lives next door to the Playboy Mansion but he is still driving his '85 Chevy Celebrity.

After thirty years playing lacrosse, Meghan Walters remembered how much fun she had as a swimmer and returned to PC to replace Charlie Brown as coach.

Because of her athletic talent, Jen Albright was offered several film roles, but turned them all down. Unlike Meg, Jen continued in her lacrosse career and moonlighted as her brothers' manager, which made her a millionaire.

After being examined by a dermatologist, Lindsay Ballengee discovered that the freckles that are only on one of her hands were actually formed by toxins which were directly caused by the many death threats found in her notebook. Due to her fear of being locked in a bathroom with no doorknob again, and her extreme fear of feet, Jenn Abbott thought it would be safest to live alone in a doorless house. She is often visited by Steve.

It turned out that Marianna Tretiak lied all through high school. About being Ukranian, that is. She revealed that she was 100% Argentinian and spent the rest of her days as a J.J. Ramierez groupie.

Tom Griffin became involved in an undercover children's rebellion movement. The group was called Kids Helping Kids Spy on Their Parents.

Evan Jacobs finally decided that life wasn't a joke after all. So he got serious and started his own architecture firm. He quickly discovered that architects don't get nearly as many chicks as clowns do. So he worked at McDonalds to pay his way through Clown College and now he tours with the Rolling Stones as their opening act.

Taylor "Crane" McDowell ran across the stage butt naked during a presidential campaign speech for twenty bucks. Unfortunately, he tripped and fell over a news camera wire in front of millions of viewers. In a later interview he said, "I just had to seize the moment."

Greg Scherneck was convicted of polygamy after being found with five wives in five different states and 20 children. He was sentenced to 30 years and was given the nickname "the penguin".

Lower School

Lower School Faculty & Friends

Colby Enderton
Kindergarten

One of the fun things Ms. Enderton, our kindergarten teacher, did was to make erasable boards to write on. When we went to someone's house she jumped on the trampoline. She's really nice.

Nicole Harris
Kindergarten

Mrs. Harris, one of our kindergarten teachers, is very nice and works well with kids. She also makes learning fun.

Sue Shelly
Kindergarten

Mrs. Shelly, our kindergarten teacher is always cool! She makes reading fun and interesting.

Candy
McGuire
Kindergarten

Mrs. McGuire, our kindergarten teacher, is so nice. She lets us make things with small tiles and make mazes in math.

Joan McIlvaine
First Grade

Mrs. McIlvaine, our first grade teacher, always has something nice to say in Meeting for Worship. She is very nice, and I am glad that I had her as a first grade teacher.

Judi
Morrow
First Grade

Mrs. Morrow, our first grade teacher, is nice. I liked it when she drew elephants. I also like when she taught us math, social studies, and reading. She made it fun.

Naveena Bemby
First Grade

Mrs. Bemby works very hard with her first grade students. She is a very good and confident teacher.

Chris
Christoph
First Grade

Mrs. Christoph, our first grade teacher, is very nice. She always encouraged us to do our very best.

Beckie
Miller
Second Grade

The second graders are lucky to have Mrs. Miller for a teacher. She has a unique ability to mix fun with learning.

Lower School Faculty & Friends

Charlie Kaesshaefer
Second Grade

Mr. K. is great! When I was in second grade in his reading group, he let us make Freckle Juice, and sample chocolate for Charlie and the Chocolate Factory.

Nancy Anderson
Second Grade

Ms. Anderson, our second grade teacher, is nice and kind. She works well with kids. She does lots of great projects.

Dick Stobaugh
Third Grade

Mr. Stobaugh, our third grade teacher, is a great teacher. He is smart and funny mixed into one.

Alice Sykes
Third Grade

Mrs. Sykes is our third grade teacher. She is a kind and considerate person.

Karen Dzialowski
Third Grade

Mrs. Dzialowski is the nicest person. She's always there when you need someone to talk to.

Elaine Ballengee
Fourth Grade

Mrs. Ballengee, our fourth grade teacher, is really nice. She teaches great things and the Mayan projects are cool.

Jo Anna Fecker
Fourth Grade

Ms. Fecker is our new fourth grade teacher. Ms. Fecker can always get the point across no matter how long it will take. She always gives her students a hand if they need one.

Maria
Odilia Romeu
Fourth Grade

Ms. Romeo, our fourth grade teacher, is really great. She likes to do the AIDS walk, and teaches drama for our enrichment program.

Ruth Aichenbaum
Fifth Grade

Mrs. Aichenbaum is a fun fifth grade language arts teacher. She teaches us to become better writers and how to write plays.

Lower School Faculty & Friends

Chris
Burnett
Fifth Grade

Mr. Burnett is the fifth grade math teacher. He introduces us to activities that make math fun and interesting.

Harvey Rentschler
Fifth Grade

Mr. Rentschler is a kind, smart social studies teacher. He is also the varsity boys cross-country and the middle school track coach. He's one of the world's authorities on track and field in the state of Texas.

Jeannette
Burnett
Science

Miss Burnett is a great science teacher. She teaches us things that we want to know about. She taught me to light up a light with only a battery, light bulb and a wire.

Carol Spadaro
Art

Mrs. Spadaro is one of our lower school art teachers. She is a great art teacher because she always has fun projects every time we come to art class.

Karen Riedlmeier
Art

Mrs. Riedlmeier, one of our lower school art teachers, is very nice. She is excellent at art, especially drawing.

Karen Rothschild
Math

Mrs. Rothschild, our lower school mathematics coordinator, is a math specialist. So if you're stuck in math Mrs. Rothschild comes to the rescue.

Val Erdmanis
Physical Education

Mr. Erdmanis, the lower school PE teacher, is really funny and his class is cool. It's almost like recess.

Eileen Shultz
Reading

Mrs. Shultz, our lower school reading coordinator, is always so nice. "I will always remember Mrs. Shultz as the teacher who really taught me to read."

Michael Miller
Technology

Mr. Miller, our lower school technology coordinator, is always there to help when we need a hand with our computer or before school in the lobby. He is our computer hero. He always knows what to do to fix our computers and alpha smarts.

Lower School Faculty & Friends

Tina Bell
Library

Mrs. Bell, our librarian, helps us find great books and gives us her opinion on books that she likes. Thank you, Mrs. Bell, for reminding us when our books are overdue.

Kathy Singer
Library

Mrs. Singer, our librarian, is a very nice person and she makes library fun. She reads the best books to us.

Debbie Kaesshaefer
Music

Mrs. Kaesshaefer, our music teacher, has a beautiful voice. She is very fair; she makes sure that everyone gets a turn playing musical instruments.

Kathy MacMurray
After-School Program

Mrs. MacMurray, our after-school program director, is nice and funny. She is great at helping us with homework.

Trish Volonnino
Bus Duty Coordinator

Mrs. Volonnino, our bus duty coordinator, is a very nice person who has a good sense of humor. She leads us in the right path.

Wendy Browder
Admissions

Ms. Browder is the admissions director of the lower school. She fills the kindergarten, plans open houses, and gives tours of the school. Ms. Browder can answer any question about the school. She is always willing to give a helping hand.

Barbara Petruzzelli
Administrative Assistant

Mrs. Petruzzelli, our lower school secretary, is always there to lend a helping hand from early in the morning until the end of the day. She helps us make copies, and she always lets us use the phone when we don't know how we're getting home.

Nooha Ahmed-Lee
Director of Lower School

It is Mrs. Nooha Ahmed-Lee's first year as director of lower school at William Penn Charter, and she loves it. Mrs. Ahmed-Lee sends a special message to the fifth graders because it is their last year in lower school. "Good luck in middle school. We will miss you."

Halloween was celebrated with the traditional costumed parade. Seniors convened in the cafeteria for a pre-parade celebration. From there they met up with lower school students and accompanied them through the middle and upper school hallways.

On Thursday, October 15, Penn Charter celebrated the importance of community service with a Day of Service. The ninth grade worked to restore the Whissahickon trails. The eleventh grade was involved in helping set of materials for the AIDS walk, working in the Casa Del Carmen, tree restoration in East Falls, and the clean-up of the Germantown Boys & Girls Club. The tenth grade worked on trail repair in the Whissahickon, a Philabundance Garden Project with the first grade on campus, and helping out at the People's Emergency Center, Whosoever Gospel Mission, and the Germantown Habitat Warehouse. Students in middle school worked with Manna.

The senior trip took place on campus this year. Seniors and a select group of faculty convened in the activities building and the old gym to perform various group activities designed by the group dynamics program, Adventure Network.

Rarely is chaos more alive than at the annual PC/GA pep rally. Union Busters, in Nirvana cover, was followed up by some tunes from the band Jane Air.

The Christmas season was kicked off by the lower school with the Lower School Choral Concert, organized and directed by the lower school music teacher, Deborah Kaesshaefer.

When speaker Michael Dyson came to Penn Charter this fall, no one was prepared for his highly animated speech and his thoughts on modern racial awareness. Mr. Dyson awed the audience with his vast knowledge, ranging from civil rights movements in the sixties to lyrics from hip-hop songs to modern political issues. His vivacity captivated the attention and thoughts of the audience for an hour and a half. Some time was given in upper school classes later that day to discuss the issues presented in his speech.

The Upper School Holiday Concert ushered in the joyous spirit of the season on December 15th. Charter Sing-

Little Drummer Boy" and "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas", among other seasonal songs. Charter Singers also inspired the audience with a rich performance of "Hallelujah" by Beethoven. Quakers Dozen impressed the audience with the traditional "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming" and a difficult rendition of "Jingle Bells" as arranged by the King Singers.

ers, Quakers Dozen and Symphonic Band each thrilled and entertained family and friends with a variety of selections.

Joe Fitmartin directed the Chorus and Quakers Dozen in his third holiday concert Penn Charter. He set the standard of excel-

The excitement of the evening continued as the Symphonic Band performed "1812 Overture" with power. Band director Jeremy Schilling led the ensemble in his first time directing the Upper School Symphonic band in the Holiday concert. The legacy left by Steven Stouffer was continued. Mr. Schilling and the band showed daring and competence in the performance of "The Inferno" by Smith. This musical interpretation of Dante's Inferno was a departure from the customary repertoire as it surprised the audience with some unusual sound effects. The Symphonic band concluded their performance with a traditional rendition of "Sleigh Ride."

The performances of each group exceeded all expectations. They filled the hearts of everyone present with happiness, hope and joy. This concert showed the accomplishment and improvement of performing arts at Penn Charter. The groundwork was laid for each of these performing groups to excell and reach even greater heights. The Holiday Concert showed the fruits of much effort, commitment and excitement. It is clear that the Music Program has not only improved, but has also become an integral part of many students' lives at Penn Charter.

The King and I

This year's musical, The King and I, was performed on two nights in February with a Sunday matinee. Not only did this performance showcase some of the most talented upper school students but also many gifted middle and lower schoolers.

The King and I is set in the King's Palace in Bangkok, Siam in the early 1860s. The musical begins with the arrival of Anna Leonowens and her son Louis from England. Anna has just been hired by the King to teach his wives and his scores of children; the two are immediately at odds over an unkept promise of a house for Anna and her son. Her attempts to return to England are overcome by her students' pleas to stay. Anna's teaching is interrupted when the King intercepts a letter stating that the English people believe the citizens of Siam to be barbarians, and are threatening to turn Siam into a protectorate. The schoolteacher-turned-advisor-to-the-King quickly organizes a lavish banquet that is sure to convince the English otherwise.

When the two stubborn personalities of the King and Miss Anna are unable to compromise, she is resolved to return to England; but news of the King's illness turns her around in her tracks. When she finally arrives at the palace the King is not far from death. Before he dies he proclaims

Prince Chululongkorn, son of head wife Lady Thiang, the new King. The Prince's first declaration (the rescinding of the practice of bowing to the King) shows promise of Siam rising to a great civiliza-

Griffin played the omnipotent King who thrilled us not only with his strong baritone voice but also with his astounding acting skills as well. Senior Julie Thompson starred as the persuasive songstress Anna, the King's unofficial advisor. Also featured were Andrea Clair as Lady Thiang, the head wife with the sterling voice, and Mark Hecker as The Kralahome. Prince Chululongkorn was played by both seventh grader Tim Starr and fifth grader Alex Crozier-

Jackson. In the play within the play, freshman Chelsea Erdmanis was Tuptim, the unhappy "present" from Burma, who runs away with her true love Lun Tha, emissary of Burma, played by senior Joe Hwang.

The King and I featured some of the school's dancing talent, highlighted in "The Small House of Uncle Thomas" ballet with leading dancers Candice Hebden, Eboni Heyward, Ashley Soloff, Tiffany Reynolds, Shana Etish, and Margaux Genovese.

This phenomenal all-school musical continues the tradition of excellence on the Penn Charter stage that can pack the house for three performances.

Under the direction of Eva Kay Noone, maestro Joe Fitzmartin, and set designer Travis Whitaker, this all-star cast rendered a supreme performance. Senior Tom

Father of the Bride

Penn Charter's winter production was a straight-ahead comedy, Father of the Bride by Caroline Francke. Performed in a classic slapstick style by members of every upper school class, and directed by Eva Kay Noone, the play was a comic success last December.

When Kay Banks (senior Jennifer Abt) announces to her family that she's engaged to Buckley Dunstan (senior Matt Stone), Mr. and Mrs.

Banks (sophomores Brad Rosen and Jennie Rosen - no relation) nearer and nearer, the chaos and hilarity surrounding the Banks household grows. What began as an intimate affair with only the closest family and friends as Miss Bellamy, Mr. Banks's secretary and Delilah the maid, respectively. As Massoula, sophomore Karl Blumenthal gave a sleazy sensibility to the overenthusiastic, condescending caterer. His assistant, Jo, played by senior Anita Idiculla, lit up the stage whenever she was on it, as did senior Kate Ginty, who played Mrs. Pulitzki, the dressmaker. And who could forget junior Scott Dunbar's emphatic recitation of Pete the furniture mover's one line, "What do you mean break your neck? You said balloons into a massive, extravagant production, with a new crisis each day. The telephone never stops ringing, movers, florists, caterers and dressmakers amble in and out of the house and everyone's patience is put to the test. The marriage is even called off at one point, but it all works out in the end.

Set on the ground floor of the Banks' house (designed by Travis Whitaker and constructed by PC's stage crew), the action in Father of the Bride was nonstop. The strong cast was anchored by the Banks family, which included brothers Tommy and Ben (frosh Jason Harrow and senior Matt Huntington). The large and diverse group of supporting characters added greatly to the humor and confusion of the play.

Seniors Dana Inverso and Amy Phillips attempted to keep the Banks household under control can't believe their ears. Ellie Banks is ecstatic about the wedding of her only daughter and can't wait for the big day. Stanley, on the other hand, is worried about this "character" who is about to become his son-in-law, not to mention the wedding itself. He only wishes that the whole mess be simple, easy, and, most importantly, cheap.

As the wedding date draws

hitch and I hitched." It was truly a showstopper.

Father of the Bride took place in the 1950s, unlike the popular movie remake starring Steve Martin and Diane Keaton. Although some of the jokes and concepts were dated, the theme of a family in a comic crisis was universal. Another strong showing by the whole theatre entourage!

The start of the season for 1998 Quakers was not as they expected. Against a tough, but beatable, opponent in Hammonton High from South Jersey, the 7-6 loss left the team a bit dejected. However, they came back in force against perennial Public League powerhouse Frankford High. The Quakers expected a challenge, but they rolled to a 20-0 win led by the rushing of junior tailback James Berry.

The Quakers then went on to play another strong opponent in Valley Forge Military Academy in their second home game of the year. The Quakers used great efforts from seniors Chris Glowacki, Chris Rahill, Joe Nejman and Tom Pomrunk to down the Cadets 14-0. All season long the seniors provided key leadership and moral fiber that brought the team together and ensured their success.

The Quakers opened their Inter-Ac season against much improved Episcopal Academy. The Churchmen gave Penn Charter a tough game, but the defense dominated down the stretch to give the Quakers the victory. Defensive stars Kyle Chaffin and Pat Gallagher controlled the line of scrimmage while linebackers Zach Golen, Joe Nejman, and Tom Reilly added support from behind to form Penn Charter's solid defense. The Quakers took their momentum from Episcopal to provide inspiration against league rival Malvern Prep. The Quakers used timely interceptions from safety Barry Mahabee and a miracle punt/fumble recovery-touchdown by Chris Glowacki with 0:00 left in the first half to offset Malvern's volatile offense. This victory over Malvern placed the Quakers atop the league standings with two games remaining.

The Quakers' next contest was with a much weaker Haverford School; the result was a blowout as their game was firing on all cylinders. With one game remaining against Germantown Academy the Quakers controlled their destiny: a win meant the undisputed league title, and a loss meant they would be co-champs with Malvern. The Quakers showed everyone their desire to win as they dominated GA in the 112th annual meeting. The seniors rose to the occasion to purge the memory of the last two losses to the Patriots, with QB Chris Rahill, Joe Nejman, Chris Hatcher-McMullen and Tom Pomrunk having solid games. Behind junior James Berry's record-breaking, 346-yard, four touchdown, Geis Trophy game the Quakers ran to victory and ran away with the league title.

Penn Charter field hockey made history in its fifth season under the leadership of coach Gwen Alexander. Many of the team members began the season in the first week of August at Old Dominion University team camp, where P.C. clinched a fourth place finish despite some injuries. It was at Old Dominion that this team became a unit and established standards of sportsmanship, leadership and unity which would mark the season.

Led by senior captains Meg Baran, Brandi Alexander and Jen Leath, and seniors Katie Park and Sarah Shacklett, the Quakers came to preseason with a winning attitude. The first two contenders, however, reminded the team that a desire to win had to be met with a commitment to skill building. The team was quick to respond with a win in the third game of the season against Friends Central. At the GFS playday Penn Charter proved a worthy match for each of the Inter-Ac and non-league teams present.

For the first time ever Penn Charter beat Unionville, Shipley, & Westtown. The team also made history in the league opener which resulted in the first win against Germantown Academy on GA fields. Stellar players this year included the masterful defensive player and scorer, Katie Park, and Brandilyn Alexander, who led the team with five goals and twelve assists. Also, Sarah Shacklett and Lindsay Donn consistently scored goals which secured significant wins. Junior goalie Meg Ryan completed an excellent season with 121 saves, only allowing 15 goals. New talent was realized in freshmen Chelsea Erdmanis, Catherine Butler and Leah Collins, among others. However, the leadership of these and many other players was not only in their field hockey skills, but in their ability to work as a team.

Though the Inter-Ac record was speckled with defeat, Penn Charter came out with an overall winning record. It also ended with its best Inter-Ac performance yet. This year's team learned that hard work and perseverance do result in growth, however slow that growth may be. This team stood strong in the face of mental and physical challenges with which it was presented. The PC field hockey team showed a commitment to progress which is to be commended. With the strength of this year's juniors and underclasswomen great things are to be expected in the 1999 PC field hockey team.

The 1998 girls soccer team experienced many changes this year. With the loss of six seniors and our coaching staff, the success of our team was unpredictable. The addition of head coach Dennis Conn brought a new level of intensity and dedication to our team; Penn Charter placed high in the Inter-Ac, second only to GA. Crosby Brown and Dave Davis brought support that really pushed us in the right direction. As the season progressed, Penn Charter girls soccer finally got the recognition they deserved.

Seniors Emily Manning, Kathleen Rogers, Lisa Christy, Margaux Genovese and Jenny Albright led the team not only on the field, but also off the field with their maturity. With such a young team, talented freshmen Rachel Prowler and Caroline Seider always stepped up and helped out when needed. Junior Katie Morton could always be found working her hardest to make plays happen.

The offense this year was led by Jenny Albright and sophomores Lauren Herman and Melissa Knight. Who could forget Collette Oldham putting in a goal whenever she had a chance? Morton, Seider and Prowler gave us strong support in midfield. The hustling of Margaux Genovese, always fighting for that loose ball, and Liz Manning, who never gave up, pulled us through many tough games. The solid defense of Christy, Rogers and sweeper Emily Manning could always be relied on to shut down the opposition. The expert goalie skills of Steph Miller made us virtually unstoppable, most of the time.

With the loss of five seniors, the girls soccer team hopes that underclassmen will continue to step up and go for the Inter-Ac title again next year. Our only two losses this year were at the hands of GA, so next year's team has a good chance to win it all.

GOOD LUCK NEXT SEASON!!!

This year was a new experience for the boys varsity soccer team. It was the first year without veteran coach Dr. Kashatus, who inspired integrity and honor in the team. However, new assistant coach Mike Hines stepped in to bolster veteran coach Mark Franek. Mr. Hines offered leadership and guidance as a friend and a former player, and his influence was a key part of this team's success.

Under the leadership of captains Greg Scherneck and Scott Roslyn, the Quakers achieved a new level of excellence in Penn Charter sports. This year's team became the first to win the Inter-Ac championship outright since 1952 and their record of 17-2-4 stands as one of the best in Penn Charter history.

With a strong schedule the Quakers encountered some of the toughest competition in years. The non-league schedule included quality teams such as Washington, Neshaminy, Hill, and Roman Catholic.

With impressive senior leadership, the Quakers mixed a group of talented young players with strong, seasoned veterans. Key players for the Quakers included seniors Greg Scherneck, Keith Cappel and Chris Ferrarri, but most of the offense originated with freshman stars Bobby Convey and Brian Devlin. Their playmaking ability combined with tough play from sophomores Sean Albright and Anthony Pepe, and Arni the "Ice Man" Valgeirsson, to produce a balanced attack.

The Inter-Ac season began with the Quakers as the hunters; however, they would soon become the hunted as they asserted a claim to the title. With a disappointing loss in the opening game to Epsicopal, the season seemed to take a turn for the worse, but the boys persevered and produced a string of wins (including two over previously undefeated teams) to place them atop the leaderboard. The importance of the season was realized when the boys traveled to Chestnut Hill for their homecoming game. With a tough effort, the boys triumphed over the Devils in a 1-0 win, placing them firmly in control of the league. From that point on, the Quakers rolled to the league championship, which was nailed down with a 4-2 win against Germantown Academy on PC/GA day. The Quakers capped the dream season with a sixth-place final ranking in the South-eastern Pennsylvania Soccer Poll, which was the highest in Penn Charter history.

With a lot of young talent and a will to win the Quakers now focus their attention on defending their title next year. The Quakers should get quality play from juniors Ed Gulko and Jason Greenfield, in addition to the continued scoring punch from Devlin and Convey.

The tennis team had high expectations this year, after winning the Inter-Ac title last season; but led by captains Maria Pagnanelli, Kate Ginty, and Lizzie Roller, they were up to the challenge. The team started off the season with an easy win against Friends Central. From then on the team never looked back.

One of the toughest matches was against one of our arch rivals, GA. The entire competition came down to one match, second doubles. Freshman Jane Affleck and sophomore Melissa Morris won their match in three sets, thus clinching the win for Penn Charter.

The Quakers won easy matches against Notre Dame and Springside, and it seemed as if they were headed for the Inter-Ac title for the second year in a row. Next came the Episcopal match. This was a must win for the team, and after strong matches by Tracey Gemmill, Cessa Murasko-Blank and Katie Ficken, Penn Charter walked away winners. The next tough match came against Agnes Irwin. This match proved more difficult than expected. After wins by first and second singles and second doubles, the match was tied. It came down to the third doubles team, who were unlucky that day. Nevertheless, the team rallied back to finish the season with a win against Baldwin, to tie with GA for the Inter-Ac title. Even though the team will lose three seniors, they have great potential for next year.

This year's boys cross country team was a much improved team as they stepped up and showed their hunger and will to win. While the Quakers struggled at times throughout the season, their overall effort was much stronger.

With a difficult opening schedule coach Harvey Rentschler's Quakers faced some of the top competition in the state. Competing in the Radnor and Salesianum Invitationals the boys were thrown into the mix early. However, they showed their stuff with good, strong finishes in both, asserting themselves as a factor in the Inter-Ac chase.

The league season opened against powerhouse Episcopal Academy, home to some of the best runners in the league. The Quakers fought hard, but did not have enough to win. With the next two meets against top-notch opponents in Malvern and Haverford, the Quakers tried to keep their morale up. They continued to show improvement as they battled in both meets, but still could not pull out the victory.

The boys continued to work hard every day in practice and they came out with fire in their bellies at the state meet in Mercersburg PA. The boys ran with reckless abandon, and proved themselves by finishing third in the state, finishing above the vaunted Episcopal Academy. This stellar finish provided a spark for the boys as they moved into the Inter-Ac championship meet. Due to a three-way tie for first place the Quakers assumed the second place spot, continuing to establish their success.

With strong leadership from seniors Jamie Wybar and Derek Drizin the Quakers took a major step back to the level of dominance they had in the early nineties. However, the key contributors to the team were mainly younger runners like Sean Taylor, Isaac Matthias and Brian Cash. With their return next year, and continued maturation from even younger runners such as Chris Markey, the Quakers appear to be in good shape to challenge for the title for years to come.

Girls cross country raced to the very top of the Inter-Ac this season, and excelled far beyond the league. The team had an unbeatable combination of natural talent and fierce motivation that led it to landmark success. The Quakers had a strong foundation for this season, with a tremendous amount of returning runners who dropped valuable minutes from their times of last year. Led by an experienced coaching staff of Mr. Ballengee and newcomer Ms. Dibble, and captains Gita Rao, Eden Silverstein, and Steph Straup, the runners competed fiercely at the six Inter-Ac meets as well as the five larger invitationals.

The season started strong with an impressive win against Germantown Academy, a team that defeated Penn Charter last year. A huge success came with the George School Invitational where the Penn Charter runners dashed through the three mile course to win the entire invitational.

Eden Silverstein, Stephanie Straup, and Gita Rao

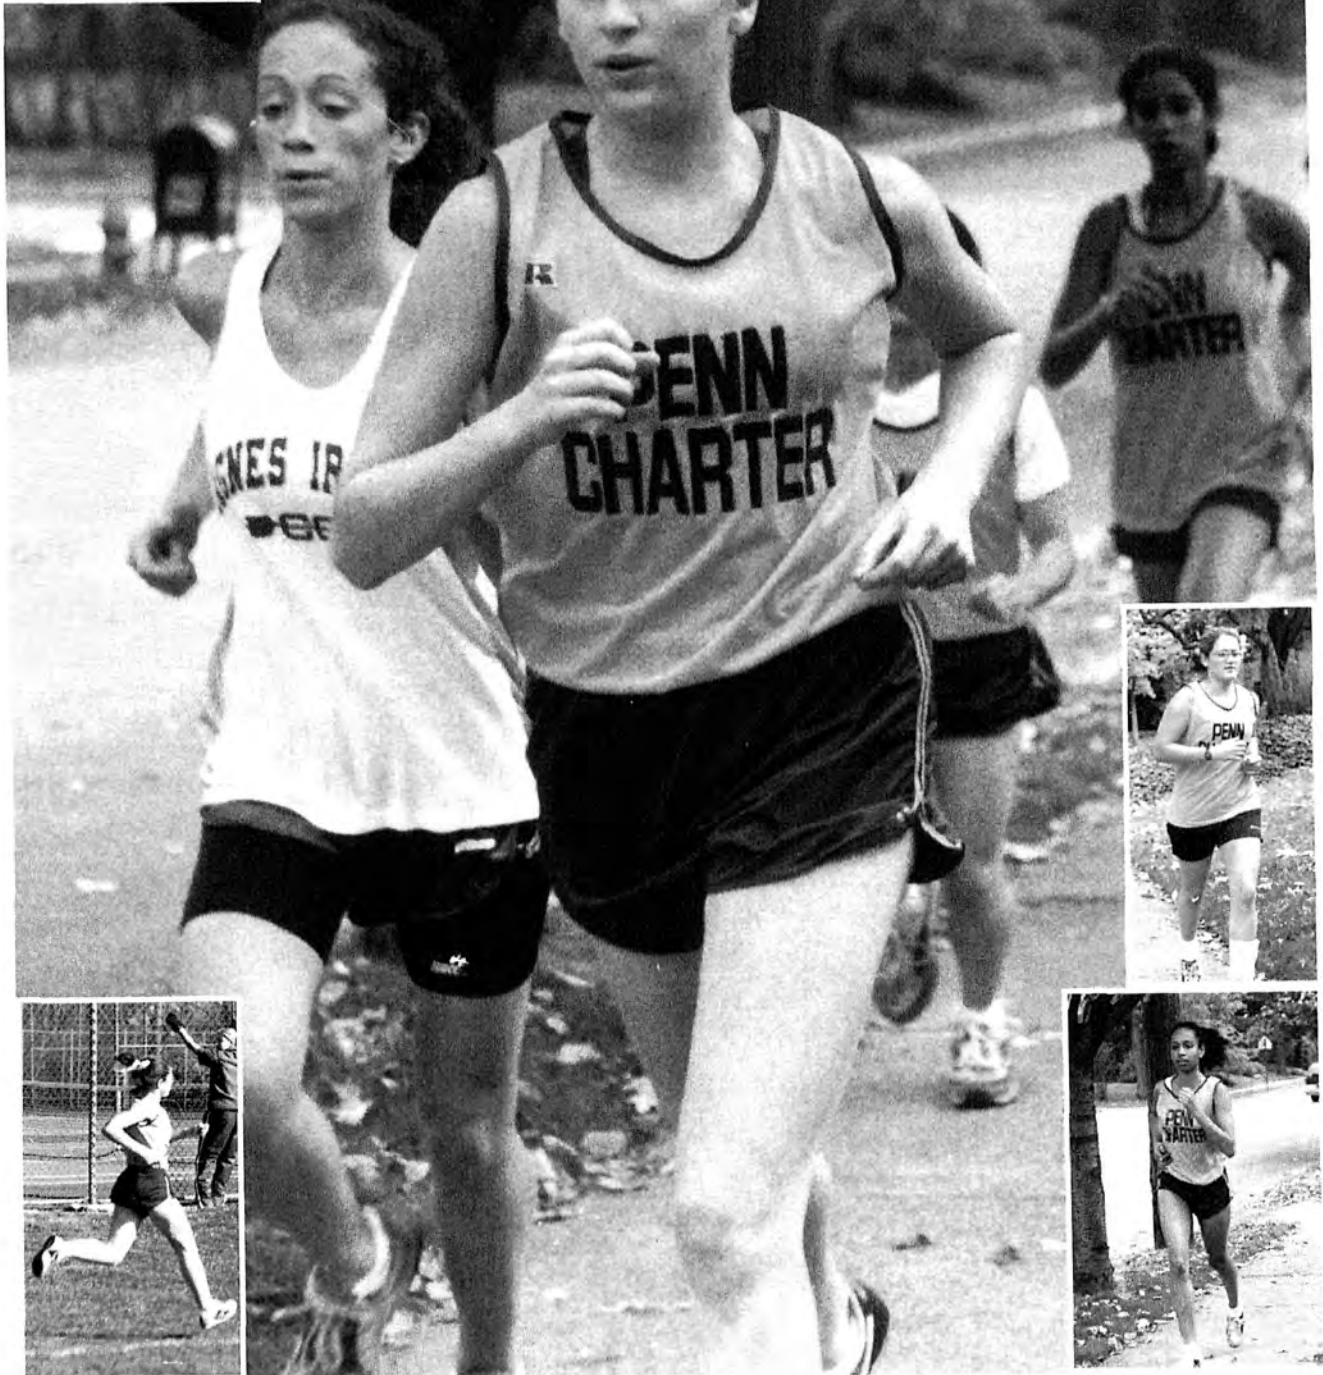

The success of the team at the invitationals was largely due to the determination and talent of the pack of girls who consistently displaced the top five runners of other teams. This pack consisted of Tiffany Reynolds, Rachel Stein, Steph Straup, Meg Walters, Gita Rao, Alison Peet, Tara Donnelly, Lindsay Ballengee and Jessie Stein.

The Quaker's greatest accomplishments came towards the end of the season, when they traveled to the state meet in Mercersburg with dreams of winning, and returned with a State Championship Title. Both Catherine Peff and Eden Silverstein also earned All-State Honors for their second and fourth place finishes in this one-hundred person race. Following states, the Quakers went on to crush all other Inter-Ac teams to earn the league title as well. Of the 15 First Team All-Inter-Ac girls cross country runners, seven represented Penn Charter. These girls included Catherine Peff, Eden Silverstein, Tiffany Reynolds, Steph Straup, Meg Walters, Gita Rao, and Rachel Stein. This fall for girls cross country was truly a memorable year where the team reached new heights: Inter-Ac Champs and State Champs.

The Water Polo team had a season of ups and downs. While the team did have the winningest season in PC polo history, they had some difficulties at some of the bigger tournaments. They had a tough schedule this year, facing such schools as the Hill, Episcopal, and Wilson High, but the Quakers never went into games expecting defeat.

The starting seven players had plenty of talent, but they also learned how to play together as the year progressed. The team was made stronger by the addition of Matt Carroll and Taylor McDowell. Taylor had played goalie for three years, but he quickly picked up the field game and became an offensive power. The leadership of captains Tom Griffin and Mark Hecker helped to hold the team together during tough games. The offensive game plan centered around Dan McKenna, who stepped up to the challenge by scoring 121 goals, a P C record. The defense was anchored by the combination of Tim Hayes and Chris Seeger, one of the best defensive duos in the area.

At InterAcs, the Quakers struggled in the first game to pull out a win over Germantown Academy. In one of the better games of the year in the second game, they came up short against our biggest foe, Episcopal, coming home with second place for the second straight year. At Easterns, Charter entered the very talented field as the fifth-ranked team. The first game against Cathedral Prep was sent to overtime by a last-second goal by Dan McKenna, still ending in a loss in a very close game. The second match presented an opportunity to overcome that disappointment with an easy win over eighth ranked Gilman. But the season ended on a sour note with a final game loss to Pingry.

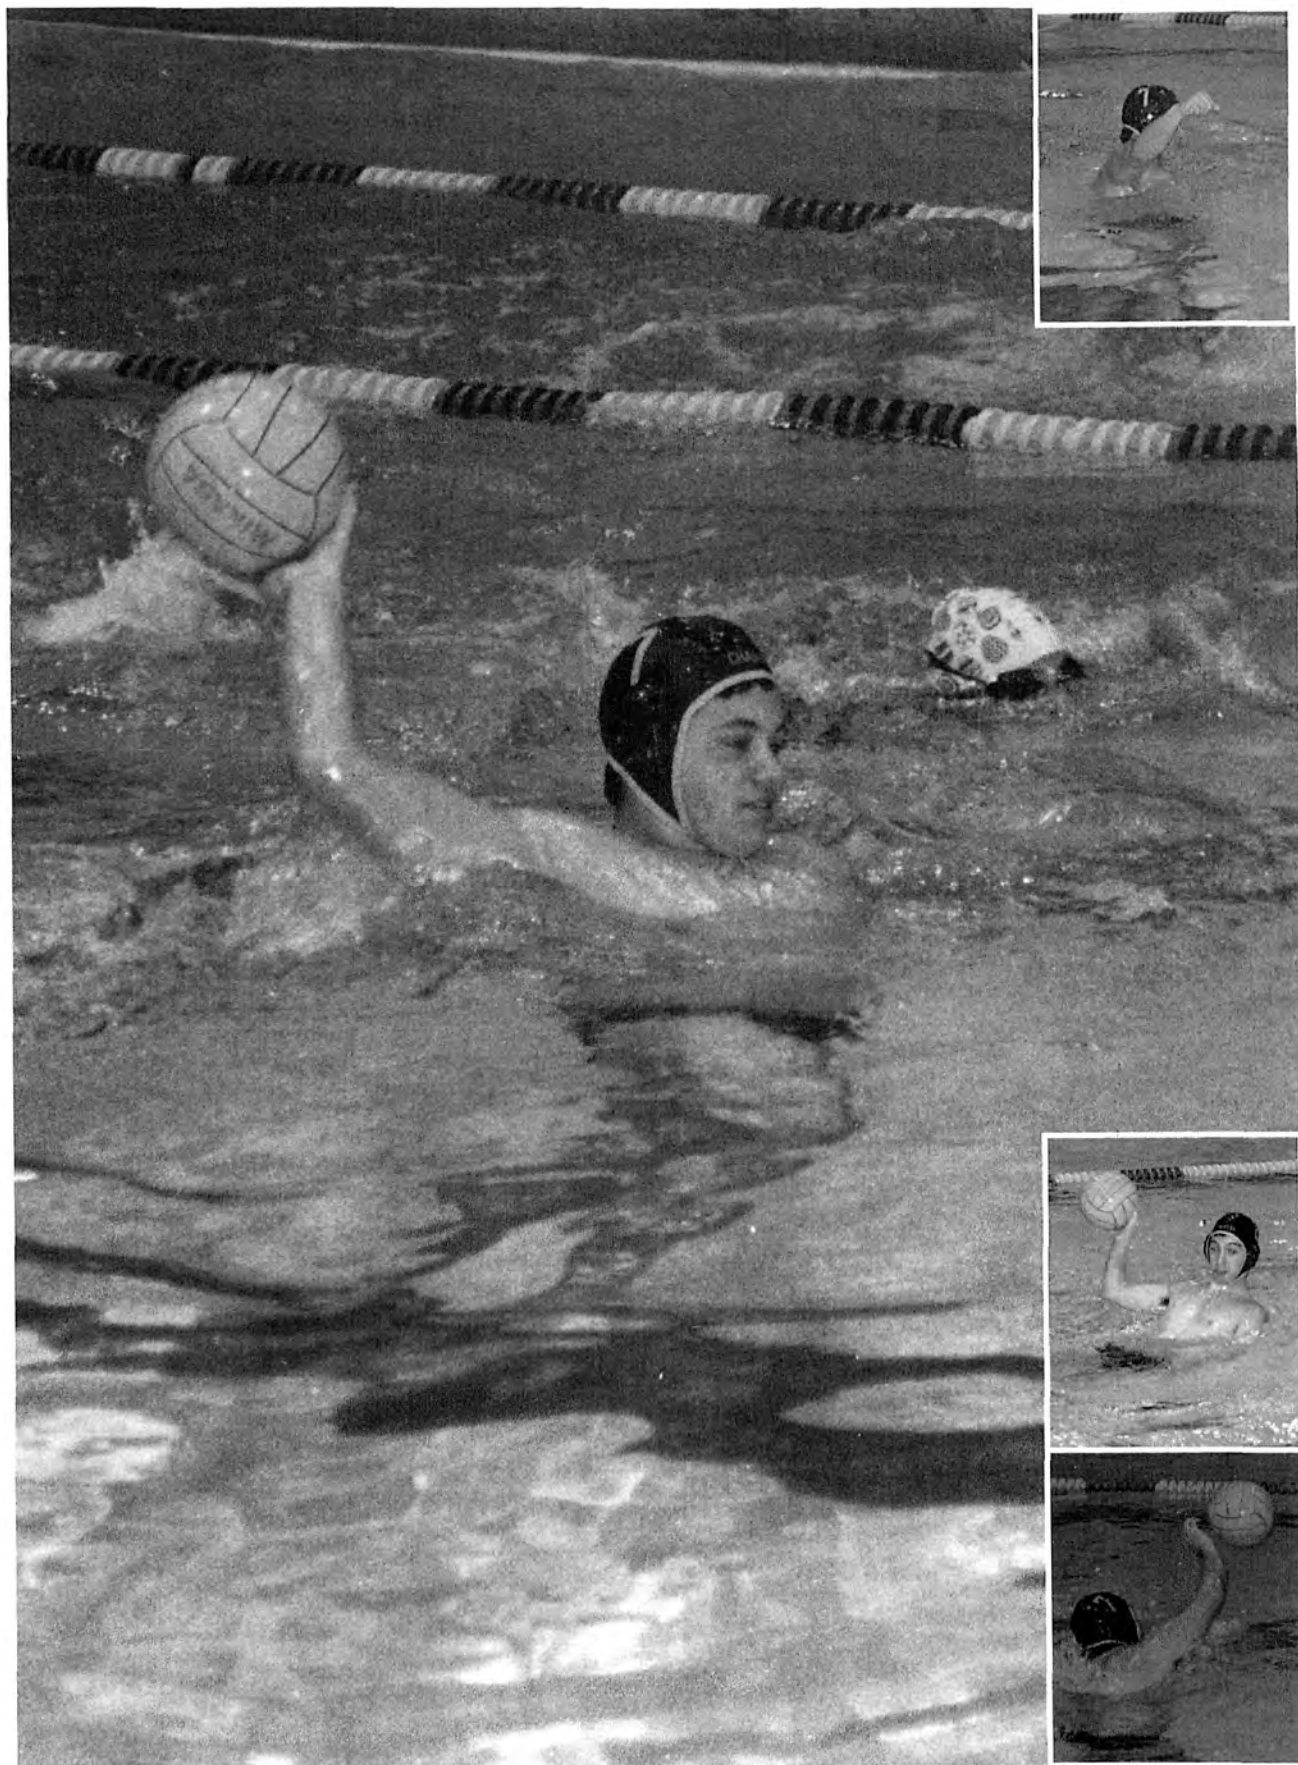

The team will only grow stronger in the years to come. The seniors wish next year's team luck as the juniors step up to lead Charter to an InterAc championship.

The 1998-1999 basketball team had a successful and exciting season. Returning the majority of key players from last year's squad the expectations for this year were high. The Quakers looked to junior Brett Storm and senior Tom Pomrink to provide positive leadership and guidance on the floor for the young team.

The season began with two disappointing losses to Cardinal O'Hara and Father Judge; however, the Quakers bounced back quickly beating the Hill School and winning the Germantown Community Tournament. As things seemed to be looking up the Quakers ran into a large road block in Faith Christian who derailed the Quakers from their current streak. Taking time to regroup the team refocused and proceeded to win a series of key non-league games, which led up to the much-anticipated Inter-Ac season.

The Quakers began the year against league favorite Haverford, playing hard but falling in the opener. The loss didn't set them back, with positive leadership and determined play the Quakers managed to fight their way back into contention for the league title with wins over Episcopal, Malvern and CHA. The rematch with Haverford would determine if PC still had a shot. With a great game from junior Brett Storm the Quakers pulled out the win, keeping them alive in the league title hunt.

Unfortunately the next game was a tough road loss, making it impossible for them to win the championship. However, they were not discouraged, and continued to play hard, scoring key wins against CHA and GA placing them in a tie for second in the league standings.

Highlights of the season were the team's successes at the Germantown tournament and the 1000th point of junior star Brett Storm, making him the earliest player in Penn Charter hoops history to ever reach 1000. With four out of the five starters returning next year, the Quakers are early favorites to place first in the league. With the same hard work and determination that they showed this year, this team has unlimited potential.

The girls basketball team had a transitional season after losing three seniors from last year's championship team. The '99 squad was a young team with talented and dedicated athletes, who brought out the best in each other every day. The girls finished the season strong, showing that determination, teamwork and pride can overcome any obstacle.

The team was led by seniors Steph

Straup, Jenny Albright, and Brandi Alexander. The team also received outstanding play from juniors Andrea MacCullough, Amy Straup, Mary Rogers and sophomore Melissa Knight. Coming off the bench, freshmen Rachel Prowler and Carol Seider played great as well.

In the beginning of the season, it was a struggle; however, there were several bright spots, especially when Steph Straup scored the 1000th point of her career against Girard College and became the first girl in Penn Charter history to reach that prestigious benchmark. Also there was an outstanding overtime win against G.F.S. in the Germantown Community tournament, which was a true team effort and paved the way for the girls' fifth consecutive tournament championship.

As usual, the G. A. game proved to be one of the best games of the season and was a true test for our team. We stayed close the entire game because of key baskets by Melissa, Steph and Mary, which led them into overtime, where the girls first started to show signs of victory with tenacious defense led by Jenny and Andrea, and excellent rebounding from Melissa, Amy and Brandi. However, foul trouble was the Quakers' only handicap during that game and with key players fouling out, the result was a devastating, but extremely well-played and entertaining loss.

Through the wins and losses the girls never gave up and showed that they were true champions, growing as teammates and as friends. The future of PC girls basketball looks bright with the returning talents of Melissa, Andrea, Amy, Mary and the underclassmen.

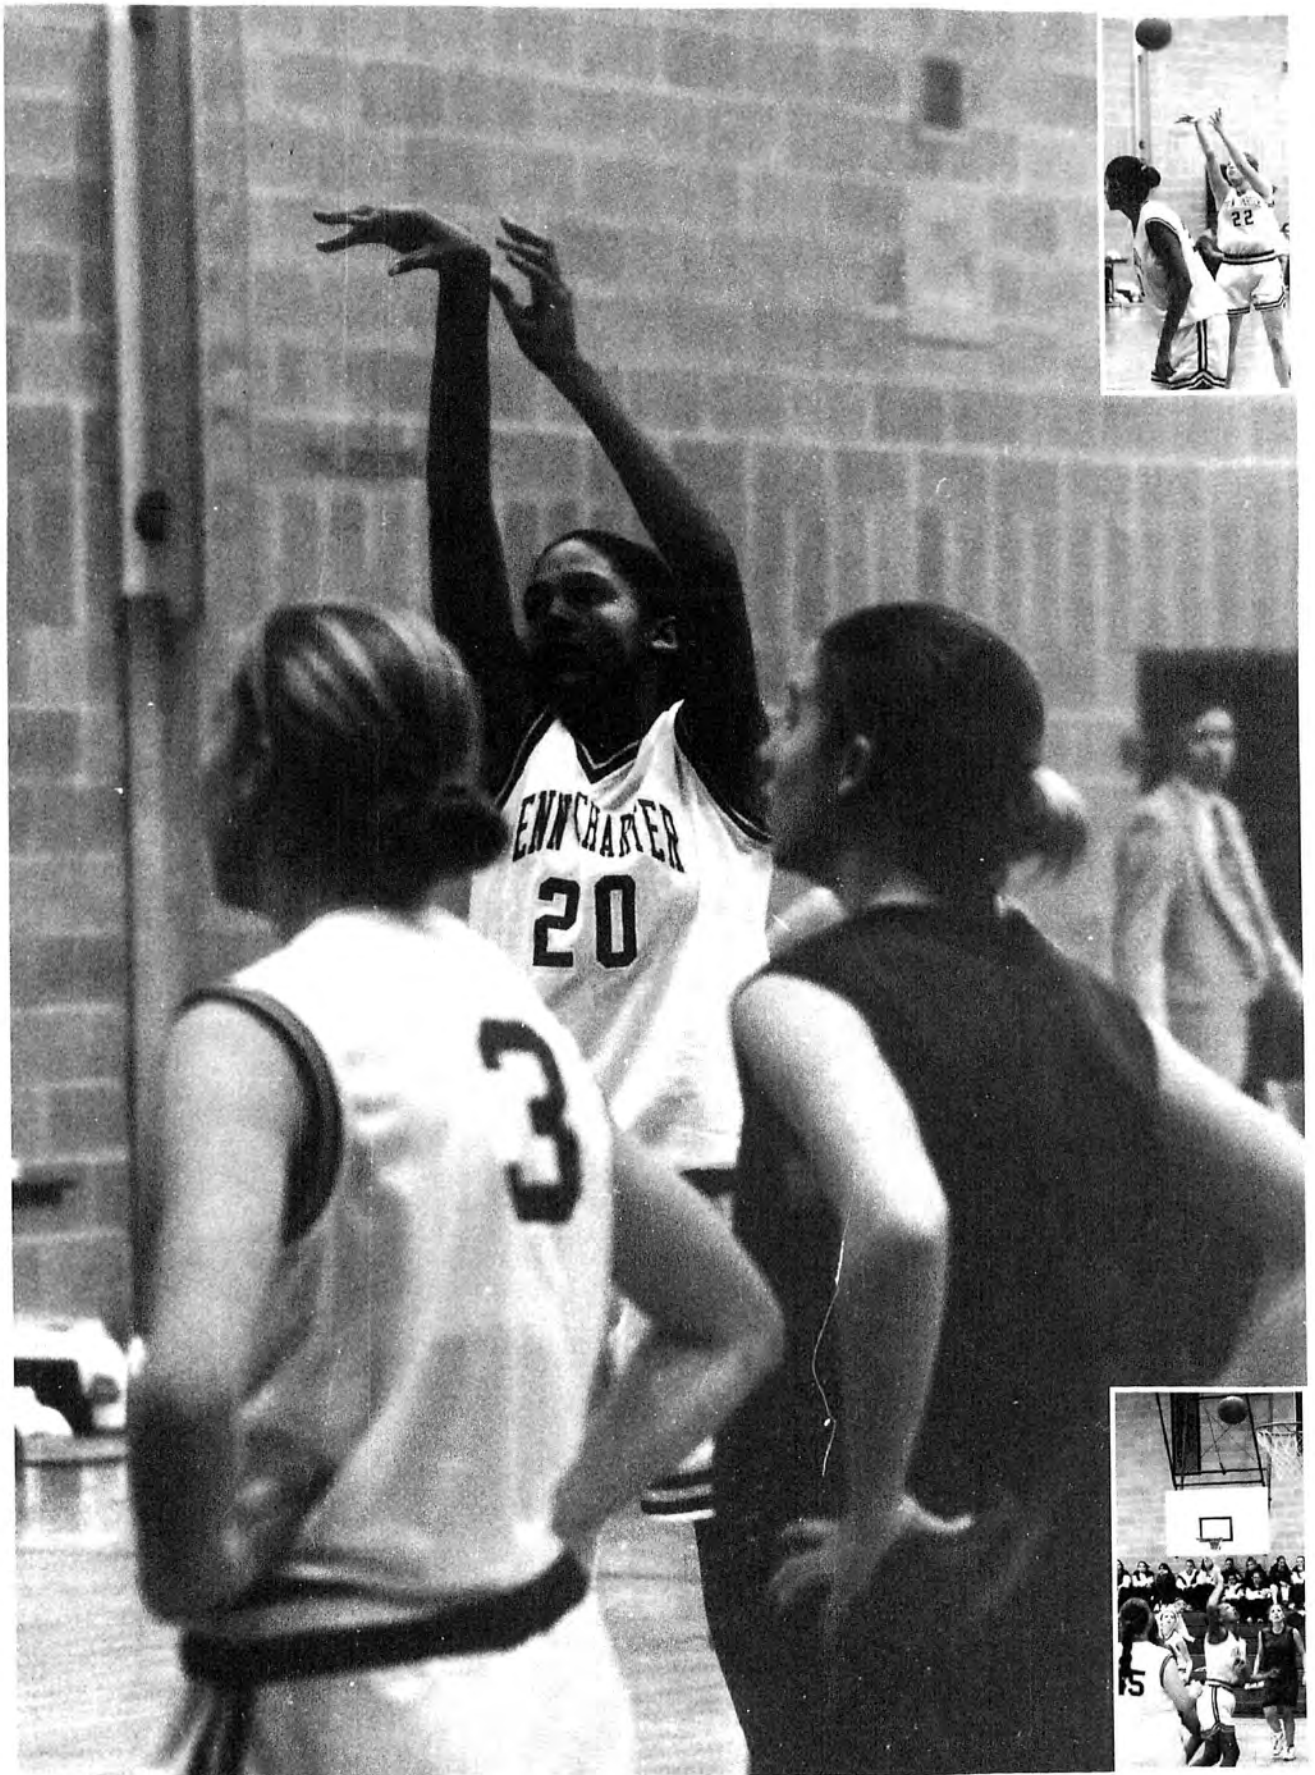

We would especially like to thank our coaches, Mr. Lynch, Ms. Flemming, and Kelly and Dave Heineman for their time, support and dedication to our team. Finally, we thank our parents, friends, and faculty who showed support for us all season long.

The boys swim team had a very successful season this year considering that the team consisted of only nine swimmers. Although the outlook for the season was very grim, the team never gave up hope and continued to train hard throughout the season.

The season started with losses to Lower Merion and Westtown, but that skid soon ended when the girls team helped the boys pull out a win in a coed meet against Valley Forge Military Academy. A coed group pulled off another impressive victory against the Perkiomen School later in the season.

While the outcome of most meets was known from the outset, the team actually had a very competitive meet against Shipley. Shipley came into our house with a nine man team equal to ours, and due to strong swims from the entire team we came out on top.

All the work we put into this season was with one goal: do not finish last in the Inter-Ac. We came into our meet against Haverford assuming that it would be our only chance to avoid the cellar. Although the Fords brought some stellar swimmers, we actually beat them because of our depth. We came up with all the second and third place finishes necessary to secure the win. The win made all the season's training worthwhile, and showed that every member of the team is important.

This year's team consisted of only one senior, Mark Hecker, so the team looks strong for the future. Two Juniors, Alex Freyer and Matt Etter, will provide talent and leadership next year. Alex is the one of the team's elite sprinters and will pull out some of the big races for next year's team. Matt not only provides comic relief during those tough practices, he also has become a true threat in the backstroke, bringing home crucial points with second or third place finishes.

The team's lone sophomore, and one of its most improved swimmers, is Matt Sklar. He has quickly become one of the team's better freestylers, a competitive swimmer in everything from the 50 to the 200 freestyle.

In the freshman class, Lev Davidson was the team's strongest breastroker and also helped all of the relays. Andrew Seifer was one of our most versatile swimmers, competing in butterfly, backstroke, and freestyle. Phil Balderston and Ryan "LB" Vass improved in every meet.

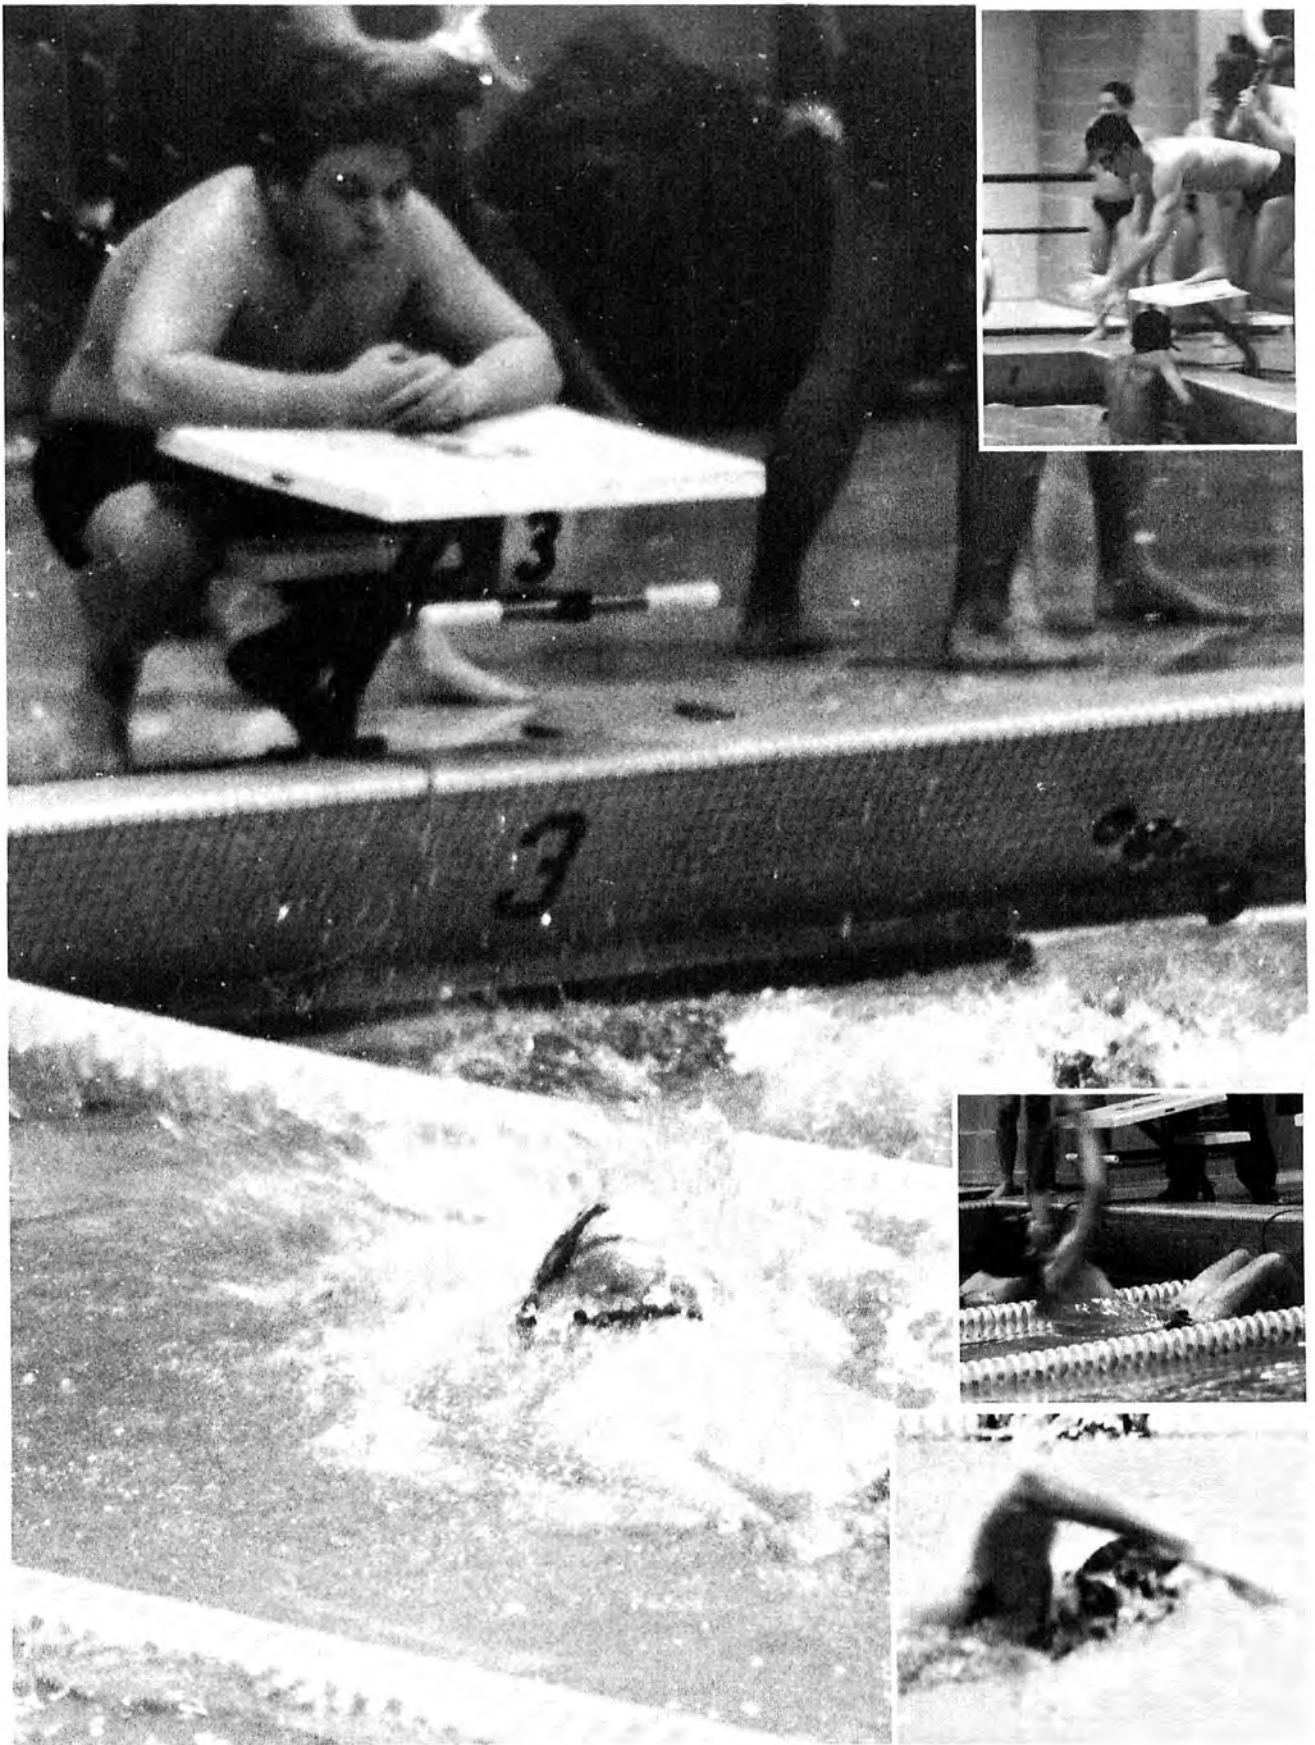

Eighth grader Ryan Still came up to help the varsity and proved to be a strong backstroke and freestyler. These young swimmers should see a rejuvenation of the program at PC in the next few years.

The girls' swim team did pretty well this season. With the return of seniors Lisa Christy, Pam Mirsky, and Katie Park, and the comeback of seniors Megan Walters, Megan Baran, and Sarah Shacklett, we knew we were going to have a good season. The team also had great support from sophomores Ashley McDowell, Oksana Yaworsky, Vicki Scarpato and Catherine Griffin, and eighth grade phenom Rachel Ahrenhold. We even had sixth grader Margeretta Ehret. Great diving by Whitney Ehret also helped the team to many wins.

The swim team started the year strong with wins against Westtown and Lower Merion. We had our big win this year against Agnes Irwin. We also had our only three losses at the hands of strong teams like the Mount and Episcopal, and perennial swimming powerhouse Germantown Academy.

We also sent a couple of strong relays to Easterns. The team also had many people entered in individual events.

Definitely a rebuilding year. While the boy's squash team did not have a record that they could boast about, so to speak, they gave it their all and got as much out of the sport as it had to offer. Led by team captains Ziggy Whitman and Matt Stone, these guys formed a solid and cohesive unit. Whether it was Andy Goldberg and his Schwartzchild density, or Matt Greenberg's yellow garb, the team formed a unity that was unparalleled. Coach Geoffrey Shields also added a lot to the team's comedic flare throughout the year with comments that deal with Ziggy no longer using a particular brand of racket. Despite the losing season, the men's team did reasonably well at the year end tournament, MASA and ended up winning the sportsmanship award for the year. The team's biggest triumph, however, came when they beat up on G.F.S. YEAH PC SQAUSH!! But, while there are triumphs, there are also defeats and the biggest fall of the team was at Zinn's Diner in Lancaster. The waitress never stopped bringing out the food and we just couldn't finish it all. Also new this year, we wore "big bird" uniforms that were soooo yellow. But at least the opponents knew that we were coming. All and all, it was an extremely fun season and despite the win-loss record, everyone came out a victor.

Girls Squash

The girls varsity squash team had a lot of fun this year. They had a pizza party at the Coleman's house, and they almost went to South Street to pick out their team uniforms. The pictures on the facing page depict the members of the squash team frolicking on the playground. These photographs lead one to wonder: is there no limit to this unadulterated fun? While the squash team really knew how to have a great time, they almost always recognized the importance of hard work and practice. They could sometimes be seen running around the school track, or doing step-ups in the aerobics room. More often they could be seen devouring the candy Ms. Coleman brought, or gossiping on the court. But these activities just added to the carefree spiritedness of the team.

The most amazing aspect of the team, was its diversity. Members included girls from grades sixth through twelfth. Allie Brady, in sixth grade, played number four on the team. Stacey Petro and Hillary Bennett, representatives of the middle school, were key assets to the team.

Above all, the squash team knew how to stick together. While their record was not SO impressive, they were very supportive of each other's efforts. In fact, if one person on the team lost, the other members of the team were likely to lose also, so as not to make the first person who lost feel left out. This amount of cameradery is rare in teams, and the girls should be very proud of themselves. Good luck to next year's team.

As the season slowly concluded in the dark and musty confines of the Pit, there was not only a strong feeling of courage and honor, but a true sense of happiness. This season represented more than just a series of matches, but an emotional journey filled with its own highs and lows.

The early season was somewhat enigmatic this year, as the team lost a key matchup against Frankford High, which had proven to be one of our toughest and most rewarding wins of the previous year. Left in an awkward position, the team responded by not only coming back strong to win eleven dual meets, but regained their hold on the Friends Tournament championship along with key Inter-Ac victories against both Episcopal and Haverford. However, the highlight of the dual meet season was the climatic and exciting match at home against Malvern. Both teams wrestled with heart and determination and the match was a thriller which was not determined until the last bout at heavyweight. Taking the momentum of a positive season, the team used that force to have an outstanding State tournament and proved their skill by taking fifth place, PC's highest in over five years.

On the whole this year's team combined good leadership and age with youthful exuberance, sending out a lineup composed of seniors to eighth graders. Graduating only three starters, next year's team has high hopes, looking to improve on their fifth place state placement. Hard work and determination combined with laughter and companionship truly proved to be the winning formula for this year's Quaker Wrestlers.

Community Service

Service Council

This year, Penn Charter's Community Service program continued to expand, with an increasing number of service opportunities and greater student involvement.

There were several new additions to the Service Program. The Penn Charter administration approved service dismissals for Upper School students going to the Lingelbach School project. This has allowed more students to be involved. Also, the Penn Charter Upper School participated in P.C.'s first ever Day of Service. After a speech from local political leader Dwight Evans, students spread out around the Philadelphia area to serve the larger community. Students worked at the Whosoever Gospel Mission, the People's Emergency Shelter, the Philadelphia Food Bank, Philabundance, Casa Del Carmen, Habitat for Humanity, the Germantown Boys and Girls Club, the Aids Fund offices, and the trails by the Wissahickon.

The Penn Charter Service council's second year was very busy. This group of twenty Upper School students met every two weeks to discuss possible new opportunities and any problems or issues that have arisen in existing projects. In its second year, this group helped to coordinate activities on the Day of Service and to organize the holiday gift drive.

Service opportunities were available almost every day of the week to interested Upper School students. Penn Charter students continued to be very involved in tutoring programs. This is the third year that P.C. students have worked with children at Southern Home, a home for emotionally disturbed children in South Philadelphia, every Thursday afternoon. Students also tutor at the The Lingelbach Elementary School in Germantown.

At the Taylor School, students were able to tutor elementary school students during the school day. Starting this year, students also tutored at Casa del Carmen, a multi-purpose agency in north Philadelphia. This is the second year that students have gone to Iris House, a home for the mentally ill in Germantown. Here, students talked to the residents, played games, and learned some basic sign language in communicating with the deaf residents.

Middle and Lower School students were also very involved in the Service Program. Every Friday afternoon students had the opportunity to work at the Whosoever Gospel Mission, a Germantown home for recovering male alcohol and drug addicts. The Middle School also had a can drive to collect food for two local church food cupboards. The Lower School was involved in an ongoing project with the Wissahickon Boys and Girls Club, and the 4th grade volunteered at SHARE to bag food for low income families. The entire Penn Charter community worked together in the AIDS Walk this fall. P.C. students set up the walk route and raised money for the AIDS Fund.

Community service also became a larger part of the curriculum at Penn Charter. The 'Art of Caring' classes offer an opportunity to work at the Whosoever Gospel Mission, the Widener School, Lingelbach Elementary, and Houston Elementary, and to bring their experiences into classroom writing and discussion. Students in the 'Peace, Justice, and Social Change' course also participated in service through the curriculum. They tutored at Houston Elementary and worked in the Greater Philadelphia Partnership with students from Cheltenham High School. As a part of this partnership, students from both schools work together to address issues of drug abuse and its effect on the larger community. The eighth grade social studies program included work at the Taylor School.

Penn Charter's sports teams also became more involved in community service. This fall, the football team volunteered on 'Philadelphia Cares' Day by building a nature trail at the Lingelbach school. Members of girls cross country team took time off of practice each week to volunteer at Iris House, Casa Del Carmen, and the Lingelbach Elementary school.

With a growing commitment to community service and more and more participation, Penn Charter is putting our school's Quaker principles to work.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE CLASS OF 1999

Dear Matthew,

Since May 18, 1981 you have been nothing but a joy to us. For the complete love, affection and respect you have always shown us please accept our sincerest gratitude.

As we can all see your “grand passion” for sports started rather early in life. We just hope it serves you well in your college career and further on into life.

Love Forever,
Grandma Babe and Grandpa

To Chachie,

One more accomplishment, with a great future ahead!

Congratulations to you and

Congratulations, Jennifer

Jenny,

Congratulations! You are going to love college and I know you are going to be successful in whatever you do. You are a truly wonderful person and I love you very much.

Love,

Dear Jenn Doll,

You've made us so proud, not just with academic performance and acting successes but with the kind of person you are. You are caring and loving. You are confident in your abilities and willing to take risks and think independently. Your integrity enables others to depend on you. With these special qualities, we know that everything you want will be yours. And so, Plain Jenny (and of course you are anything but), as you begin to try your wings, remember where your roots are.

We love you,

Mom and Dad

Dear Jenny,

I'm so proud of you and your accomplishments. Life is going to be different (in a sad way) next year with you at college. I'm sure you will have a great time and succeed at everything you do.

Love, Steven

brother a girl could ever have! I am so lucky to have you!

Thank You, ♥ Always,
Mo

Tom,
Congratulations!
You've worked hard and always gone the extra mile to achieve your goals. I know you'll make an excellent college student and a wonderful adult.
Hit 'em straight
and long.
Love, Dad

Tom,
Beat your drum in time with your heart. Beat it with all of your passion,
and all of your strength, for all to hear. Let not the orchestra skip a beat.

Ring the world with your excitement and love. When you are finished, do not merely fade, but leave with a bang. Your presence will be missed, for without you the beat is lost; the life is dead, the concerto fades. I bid my last farewell now as I try to step up and take your place. The beat is different, and we play a different concerto. It will never be the same,
and I will miss it with all of my heart. It was my favorite.

I will love and support
you always.

♥ Cath

My Big Guy,
When I think of you,
I smile.
Love, Mom

CONGRATULATIONS & GOOD LUCK TO THE CLASS OF 1999

Colin, it seems that in the blink of an eye you have grown from a chubby blond hair boy into a fine young man. I am forever amazed at your hard work, dedication, and commitment to life. Being your parent, I thought my job was to teach you, but I am in awe of the valuable lessons you constantly teach me.

Believe in yourself to meet the challenge of your dreams!!

I love you very much!!

Mom

Colin,

You have always been there for me, no matter what I needed. Whether it be a small thing like a notecard or advice on a problem I was having, you were the one I talked to first. I will miss the small talks we had every day after school and all the fun times we have had together. I will even miss fighting with you about every little thing.

Love, your favorite sister,

Courtney

Amy, you always were a little different

To our daughter,
Jennifer Caroline Albright,

Like a shooting star, gone in the blink of an eye. From chubby baby, to awkward teenager, to beautiful young woman. The metamorphosis happens right in front of you, but you are too close to comprehend what you are witnessing and sometimes too removed to remember the pain it takes to get there. Then one day the butterfly breaks free from the cocoon and flies away. To venture forth is to grow, and grow you will. It will be with mixed emotions that we witness the changes with each return but thankful for them. We wish you great success and happiness in all your endeavors and hope that we can continue to share them with you.

We Love You,
Mom and Dad

Daddy's Girl!

Jennifer

Jen,

I have always loved you my whole life. You stuck up for me whenever I needed help. You are the best sister a brother could have. Even though we fight a lot and don't always get along, I'm still going to miss you when you leave for college. Best of luck!

Love,
Sean

Jennifer, thank you for always supporting me in any decision that I've made. I know you will be successful in the future, but if you ever need anything you know that I'm always beside you. And after everything I've been through, I'm still most proud of being able to call you my sister. Good luck. I love you.

Love,
Chris

Our Darling Anita (Daddy's Nitsy),

We wonder where the years have flown since you arrived as our baby girl. With love and joy we have watched you grow from infancy, childhood, to the teenager of today. Soon school days will be over and college doors will open.

You have extraordinary qualities that we want you to keep in the years ahead. Mum, Rajiv and Anil will always be there for you.

There will be challenges ahead and decisions to make.

We have confidence in your abilities and talents.

Keep your eyes always on the Lord, read His word and pray for wisdom and guidance for He will be with you at all times. May God bless you and keep you safe.

Dear Tós,

Some ride, eh? Almost as much fun as playing that snorty girl who's ranked nationally. At least you learned who you can count on, who your real friends are, what kind of boss not to become, etc. You couldn't have picked a better theme for your class. I appreciate not only the time and thought you invested in the book, but the creativity you demanded of yourself and your staff. Thank you for not arguing with me all year, as most editors have done; I think your exposure to that other squash family has inured you to ranting & raving. Few people are as pleasant as you have been to work with; please don't lose your gracious & even disposition.

Your Favorite Taskmaster

Kate,
What can I say, babe? You have been one of the most important people in my life and always will be. I have absolutely no clue what I would have done without you. Thanks for all the listening, advice, fun times, laughs and most of all, for being my best friend. I love you always. Love your bestest chum, pal, partner in crime, mate, compliment, friend, Siobhan.

Spring Arts

Penn Charter enjoyed a great showing in the arts this spring. Ranging from visual to performing, the community came together to celebrate the talents of our many young artists.

In visual arts, many members of the Class of 1999 took part in the film assembly. A final presentation of the class's work, this assembly was a testament to the talent and perseverance of a group who truly enjoyed their work. One of Maggy White's and Lindsay Coleman's pieces, an editing montage depicting the feeling of senioritis, was a huge hit with the student-filled audience. A more serious narrative piece by Marianna Tretiak and Ben Iser-Schroyer tried to graphically present loneliness on a stark, urban landscape. The final film that included cameos by other film students Dan Greenberg, Eric Lightman, Taylor McDowell and Imogen Anderson gave a comic twist to the class's theme of belts.

Performing arts enveloped a wide array of events this spring varying from symphonic to comic.

Scott Weiss and Ben Gillespie loot nothing but love for Comedy Sportz

Comedy Sportz, the Penn Charter chapter of the competitive, improvisational comedy troupe, had two performances this spring. The first one, on a Sunday in May, made history as the group's first competition against another school—George Washington High. The P. C. team came out victorious, with notable performances by Anita Idiculla, Bucky Harper, Gabe Liedman, Evan Jacobs, and Jon Sullivan. The crowd was great that afternoon with an overwhelmingly supportive group of Penn Charter students and faculty. Their second performance, "Comedy Sportz Under the 'R's," hosted out on the back patio, was also a success—ending their year on a high note. Comedy Sportz was also called the "most talented group of performers at Penn Charter," by Mr. Ballengee.

The Drama Showcase was held this Spring on June 4th. This showcase celebrated the actors in our community who participated in the acting electives and theatre classes throughout the year. The audience that night was extremely supportive, and the performances were well-received.

"Jazz Under the Stars" was held this year on a rainy May 19th. Due to the inclement weather, the event was actually held in the assembly room with large, cardboard starts dangling from the ceiling. The night's performers were the Middle School Jazz Band, who opened the evening, the school's soulful gospel singers, Voices of Praise, and as a closing act, the Upper School Jazz Band. The night also featured performances by individual, student-conducted ensembles, such as the acoustic conglomeration of Lauren Weiss, Shawn Lenet, and Ben Brandow who performed a soothing rendition of Bob Marley's "No Woman, No Cry." Jazz award-winner Matthew Huntington also performed on his saxophone and the intensely sonorous trumpeter, Joe Reynolds, also played.

The upper school Spring Concert was held on May 26th. Charter Singers followed a very pleasing flute trio. Since the arrival of director

Matt Volk and the bench perform at this spring's Drama Showcase

Joe Fitzmartin, the chorus has seen some very positive changes. The group has nearly doubled in size due to a new-found interest in the upper school. The attention to detail in this performance was overwhelming and many songs received lengthy ovations. Notable soloists included Andrea Clair and Dana Greenspon. Also singing that night was Quaker's Dozen who provided an echo chorus for the Charter Singers in one song. A notable soloist in this satellite group is senior Mark Hecker. Upper School band's performance at the Spring Concert was very daring and original. The four pieces played were of very contrasting origins and compositions. The concert ended with a very up-tempo march. There was a standing ovation that night for all the different performing groups.

This Spring's Humanity Speaker was poet and author Li-Young Lee. One of his books, Rose, was read by every upper school English class, and was very well-received. Mr. Lee's truly original address was very much enjoyed by the students and faculty for its candor and spontaneity. Mr. Lee touched on some of his eccentric techniques for writing and entertained a wide range of questions. Mr. Lee also hosted a question-and-answer forum in the Gummere library all afternoon for classes and anyone interested.

How many middle schoolers does it take to teach a peach?

In middle school drama, Mr. Higgins directed this year's captivating performance of James and The Giant Peach, complete with innovative sets and special effects.

The spring of 1999 was truly a success, due to the hard work of the artists themselves and the support of the community.

*Charter Singers are singin' like it's Going...

Each year it is tough to say goodbye to some old and not so old friends, and a few friendly faces will not greet the next school year at PC.

Teachers new in 1998-99 who will not be returning are Shelly Baum-Brunner (English), David Davis (Math & Science), Sarah Dibble (Spanish), Karen Eason (Math), and Ginny Williams (6th grade); they gave us something special in the classroom and as coaches in their brief year here.

Joining us this year as "pinch hitters" were Gwen Maelson and George Fleming. Gwen took over the art studio while Randy Granger recuperated from surgery. George (OPC'71) substituted in many grades, but his longest stints were in 5th and 6th. We hope they will return.

sion on their students and colleagues, and both will be missed.

Although she was on maternity leave for the last few of her eight years here, Donna Cooper (photo unavailable) made a profound impact on the choral music program, and established the standards that have made it an integral part of the curriculum. She is leaving to devote more time to her growing family, as is Beckie Miller, who has given twelve years of dedication and patient teaching to the lower school, and has seen more than a few of her students graduate.

The list of retirees includes former security guard Fred Collins, who for seven years would begin his duty as most of us were leaving for the day, and a stalwart of the housekeeping crew, Ed Wright. Over 33 years Ed quietly did his job and sought no special recognition, but is respected by all who knew him as a strong, honest, dedicated and hard worker who served our school well. Alice Sykes retires from the lower school after 17 years of devotion to her students and generous friendship to her colleagues; her daughter Laurie is OPC'95. One person who will be greatly missed in years to come is Tom Katman, Physics-meister for 27 years. The '98 year-book lauded Tom for his many endearing qualities in its dedication, and it is safe to say that he is one of the most beloved teachers in this school.

Errata...

Even with a theme like "chaos" we can't claim that all the errors were part of the master plan. Some goofs slipped by the proofreaders, and we need to offer apologies for and note these corrections: Anita Idiculla and Spencer Reich should be recognized as Copy Editors (page 282); Melissa Grossman was incorrectly named Alyssa on page 156;

We all know that the 8th and 7th grades ought to be labeled the classes of 2003 and 2004, respectively; Somewhere before the faculty section we should have told our readers that the teachers' messages were responses to our question: "how do you deal with chaos?" And we really do know how to spell Kindergarten (title page).

The 1999 softball team had an extraordinary season, the first PC softball team to become Inter-Ac champs. After losing four members of the class of 1998 to graduation, the status of the 1999 team was a little uncertain. The team was joined by coach Heather Brown and intern Kathy Bederske to test our hitting against division-I pitching. With the help of these new coaches and the underclassmen stepping it up all year, senior captains Lisa Christy and Kathleen Rogers managed to find a championship at the end of their four years of dedication to the team.

The Quakers faced some stiff competition the whole season. They played well throughout the pre-season games. Some say this might be the best defense our team has ever put on the field. Mary Rogers was the number one pitcher all season and compiled impressive stats. Lisa Christy continued to improve behind the plate in her final year by throwing out numerous runners. The infield's only newcomer this season was Catherine Griffin, who took over at first base. Kathleen Rogers, Steph Miller, and Maria Negron played a pretty solid infield throughout the season. The outfield was protected by Liz Manning, Carol "Apple" Seider, and Nicole Mears.

The season came down to a big game against Shipley. They would own the Inter-Ac title if they won. Shipley showed up with cakes and banners reading "3-peat" that the Penn Charter team and fans did not appreciate. Shipley did take a 5-0 lead in the beginning, but the Quakers battled back to tie the game in the seventh inning. The defense held Shipley to no runs in the eighth while Penn Charter scored in the bottom of the eighth inning to beat Shipley for only the second time in history and end the season tied for first place in the Inter-Ac.

With only two seniors, Lisa and Kathleen, leaving, the Penn Charter softball team will have the players to defend its title in the year 2000. Good Luck!!

PC's baseball season this year had its ups and downs. The team got off to a very strong start, doing well in the opening non-league games. However, when league play began, the Quakers did not seem able to make the big play or get the big hit that they needed to win the close games. Despite the team's struggles in the Inter-Ac, PC baseball finished out the season on a positive note by defeating Malvern and ending the Friars' hopes to share the league title with Episcopal.

Although the team will be losing many integral seniors, including University of Alabama signee Joe Larkin, Peter Farnese and Dan Greenberg, PC baseball retains up and coming pitcher Matt Carroll, solid infielder Kyle Cousin, offensive threats Mark Borish and Jason Greenfield, and sophomore star Ken Devenney. All of these players and more must step up their level of play next spring so that PC baseball can win the league title again.

Coming off of last year's second place finish in Inter-Ac play, the Penn Charter Golf team began practice this spring with the goal of returning the squad to its championship form of the 1996 and 1997 seasons. Seniors Tom Griffin, Taylor "Crane" McDowell, and team captain Jamie Wybar hoped that their maturity and tournament experience would help raise the team's level of play. To complement these veteran golfers, the Quakers returned several proven underclassmen to the line-up: junior Todd Simpson, sophomore Phil Katz, and freshmen Mark Zbrzezni and Martin Lehr. The rest of the 1999 Penn Charter Golf team was filled by first year team contributors, including senior Eric Lightman, junior Matt Henley, and sophomore Scott "Skeets" Silver.

The team's title hopes were tested in the very first Inter-Ac match of the season. The overconfident Quakers were handed a loss by the perennial league patsy Germantown Academy. Disheartened, but not crushed, the team responded with two convincing wins over rival Chestnut Hill Academy. The Quakers seemed determined to claw their way back into the title race. With this newly found dedication, Penn Charter defeated league leader Malvern Prep in a very close match. The stage was set for the all important rematch. Even with several important players lost to injuries, the team put up one of its best scores of the year. Despite the Quakers' gutsy performance, Malvern prevailed. The team continued to fight through the rest of the season dropping three more matches by an average of two shots. The Quakers finished the year strong with a solid win over Catholic League power St. Joe's Prep and a shallacking of Germantown Academy.

With a 5-5 record, the golf team claimed fourth place in perhaps the most competitive year of play in Inter-Ac history. The Quakers finished with the lowest team average in school history. The strong play by this year's squad paid off in the end of the season Inter-Ac individual tournament where Jamie Wybar won the title. With the help of caddy Phil Katz, Wybar's 75 was enough to take a one shot victory. Mark Zbrzezni and Todd Simpson also played well at Champs finishing tied for tenth and twelveth respectively.

This year's tennis team finished second in the Inter-Ac, posting an 8-2 record in conference and an 11-2 record overall under Coach Horowitz: a new coach for this year. The highlight of the year was the nailbiter win against Haverford, PC tennis' perennial rival. Using the momentum gained from a clutch three-set win by Matt Blank and Brian Footer, Alex Macy and Andrew Weiss were able to finish off Haverford for the 4-3 win. This win really brought the team together and was the rallying point for the rest of the season.

Rico Pagnanelli and Joe Reynolds won at Inter-Ac champs in the first and second singles positions, respectively. Although the season was a bit disappointing, as Tennis did not win the Inter-Ac title, they hold the distinction of being the only Inter-Ac team to defeat Episcopal, the eventual Inter-Ac champs. The team must look to such up-and-comers as Chris Spencer and Dave Pagnanelli, and to current Junior Joe Reynolds, in 2000.

The girls lacrosse season this year was characterized by a series of highs and lows. After a few weeks of pre-season training, the girls headed off to D.C. to play in one of the toughest leagues around the country. The trip was loads of fun until the team suffered a devastating loss with the injury to captain Katie Park. She had led the offense for three years and in this season had already scored fourteen goals and had seven assists. The team, however, held strong and came back from Washington undefeated. Jen Albright and Meghan Walters, both captains, led the team into the Inter-Ac with confidence.

At the start of the season the team was unstoppable, running over teams like Baldwin and Penncrest. The Quakers were playing like champions and ready to face Episcopal Academy, who always proved to be the toughest opponent. Episcopal was both a high point and a low point. The game proved that Penn Charter was a team with incredible depth and not just a powerful competitor because of MVP Meghan Walters. Melissa Knight and Kate Ginty stepped up, as did the whole team, while Jen Albright constantly looked for just one more shot. The game ended on a low point as Penn Charter walked away with a tie. The Quakers regrouped and worked to push through with a winning record for the rest of the season, hoping for a tie as Inter-Ac champions. They were stopped by rival Germantown Academy. The game was another tough one, where both Meghan Walters and Katie Park had to watch from the sidelines. Latrishia Chattin played an excellent game in goal, but the offense just could not get enough past GA to pull it out in the end. While the team did not walk away with a repeat championship, there is a lot of hope for next year, as nine seniors depart leaving a host of talented underclassman to be led by Andrea MacCullough, Alison Pearlstein and Katie Morton.

The 1999 boys varsity lacrosse team had one central thought which guided their play this season: respect. In a league dominated by flashy sticks and fancy plays, and a state with teams led by All-Americans who were introduced to lacrosse as preschoolers, Penn Charter stuck it out as a blue-collar team in a white-collar game. But what they lacked in stick skill they compensated for by scrapping after every ground ball; what they missed in experience they made up by working harder than the competition. Their season was not just focused on winning, but on forcing the competition to believe that Penn Charter plays good, tough, fundamental lacrosse.

Realizing this goal was not without difficulty—during the early season, PC experienced ups and downs, defeating the defending state champions at Ridley, while losing in sudden death overtime to Downingtown at home. Charter entered the Inter-Ac season with a strong record, but was disheartened after a tough loss to rival Episcopal Academy in the league opener. The team then suffered two more Inter-Ac losses to GA and Haverford—the laxmen now had to fight their way out of a 0-3 league record. Where many teams would have packed it in and coasted through the rest of the season, Charter pushed on, found focus as a team, and resolved to turn their season around.

Travelling to EA's City Line Avenue campus for the Episcopal homecoming, Charter pulled off a key 7-6 win to break their losing streak, as well as ruin Episcopal's dreams of an Inter-Ac championship. Again facing the Haverford School (later seeded no. 1 in the state playoffs), Charter was unable to pull off a victory, losing 7-4 at home and saddling them with a dismal 1-4 league record. With little more than a week remaining in the regular season and three Inter-Ac games remaining, the team regrouped and strung together three league wins, defeating Malvern Prep (then ranked #2 in the state and #1 in the league) twice within three days, including a huge 5-0 shutout, and crushing visiting GA, 7-1, to close out the league season at a respectable 4-4. On the offensive end, Scott Roslyn and the Reich brothers helped attackman Jordan Seiken contribute a hat trick in each of the last three league games, while the defensive package of longpoles Joe Nejman, Tom Pomrunk, Dave Allahand and Jesse Cutaia, with star goalie Rayn McGorman between the pipes, held the opposition to a total of four goals in three games.

Ranked as the no. 9 seed in the state playoffs, Charter once again travelled to Ridley to play an opening round game. The team came back from a two-goal deficit to tie it up before halftime, but in the second half the Quakers' performance sagged noticeably, allowing Ridley to defeat Charter 10-3. This eliminated Charter from the tournament, but this disappointment does not eclipse the great achievements the team made in the 1999 season. Now under the leadership of such eminent seniors as Jordan Seiken and Jesse Cutaia, the underclassmen look to have another successful season to finish the twentieth century.

The girls track team reached new heights this season, overcoming many obstacles along the way. Although the team started the season filled with injured girls, everyone worked hard to make up for any lost time. All of the hours of practice finally paid off when the team won the GA Invitational, decisively defeating the four other Inter-Ac teams. The victory proved them to be the best in the league.

Not only was the season marked by incredible team victories, but it was also filled with record-breaking times. At the Penn Relays, the 4x400 team consisting of Tiffany Reynolds, Lauren Edgerton, Eden Silverstein, and Jen Leath set a new Penn Charter record. Competing in the Hill School Relays for the first time this year, five new Penn Charter records were set in the field event relays. Individually, Anita Idiculla set a new Penn Charter record in the discus while Eden shattered the old school records in the mile and half-mile races. Eden also set a new league record in the Inter-Ac with her 5:22 mile time. Jen Leath demonstrated her amazing talent with her second place finish in the high jump at the Judge Relays. Her long jump mark of 17'3" also broke the Penn Charter girls' record. Jen went on to win the GA Invitational individual award for the highest point scorer in the meet.

While girls track will greatly miss the seven dedicated seniors, the team has both the talent and the determination to once again rise to the top of the Inter-Ac next year.

This boys track season was somewhat of a disappointment this year. First, only five out of the six teams in the Inter-Ac were able to legitimately contend for the league title, a marked difference from previous years. This coupled with a dearth of talent on the team and numerous injuries (including to Ziggy Whitman, Barry Mahabee and James Berry) led to the first loss in a league meet for PC boys track in a long time (to Malvern) and also contributed to the team's second place finish at Inter-Ac champs.

The season was not without bright spots, though, as Steve Wiley broke both the school and Inter-Ac records for the high

The mightiest meditations of mankind canceled are by one merely opening leaf.' It is the present. We stand here. It is hot. We are living, breathing, our hearts are pumping at a steady rhythm. Those are the givens. Yet this and every moment is what we make of it....To see a sunset so amazing that your eyes won't move from it, that cancels out the bad day you had yesterday or worries about when you will be leaving for college. Sometimes 'beauty is more each than living's all'. There is that radiance in the small things, the common, which overtakes reason and responsibility....All of us stand on the threshold of adulthood and, right now, it seems like we know so much. We do. We know a lot. But life is a funny thing. We could absorb knowledge twenty-four hours a day every day that we lived, but, no matter what, we will never be prepared for life's erratic nature. In dealing with this, the best advice I've come across is merely to live, but do it in a beautiful way. Try not to spend all of your time figuring things out because many are unfigurable. Rather, drink up the sunlight when it shines on you and, when another's eyes radiate into yours with love, accept it and be thankful."

Dana Greenspon accepts the Phi Beta Kappa award as "the student outstanding in scholarship in the graduating class."

Jennifer Leath

In the still of the night, hours before the sun rises, the first sound of morning breaks forth. It is the chirping of a single bird. It is a song in the darkness. If you have ever been awake at 4am wondering how you were going to function on two hours of sleep, then you may have noticed that first bird singing in anticipation of the morning. Thus, the song is one of faith, hope and confidence because it is sung in expectation of morning, but without its guarantee. So, too, we must learn to sing through our nights. Our songs must be songs of faith. Our songs must be songs of success. We must sing in the dark....Whenever we sing, wherever we enter, we must usher in the morning with our songs. Every singer is essential to the song. Some people whisper while others shout. Some do not use words. Some use only a smile. ...That divine spark which kindles each of our souls is manifest in our songs. We are the bearers of light. Our songs have been shaped on the playing fields, in the musicals, in the classrooms, and in the Meeting room. We have known chaos and order. Yet, we have songs to sing. The power of the fire that can burn if we all sing together is limitless. Together, we are more than we think we are; we do more than we think we can do."

Mark Hecker accepts the Alumni Society Award from John Lemonick, OPC'79.
